Winter is the time when you most need to keep fit. Try these

EXERCISES

designed course:
these are the first three

MOST difficult part of physical exercises is doing them every day. It's easier in winter; they give you a good start to a cold day by getting all your circulation going.

Here are the first three of a series of 15 exercises extremely easy to do, which are good for you in every way.

If you're strong-minded enough to do them every day without fail this is what they'll do for you. Give you a good carriage, a clear complexion, a bright outlook and a love of life—in other words, you'll feel and look well and happy.

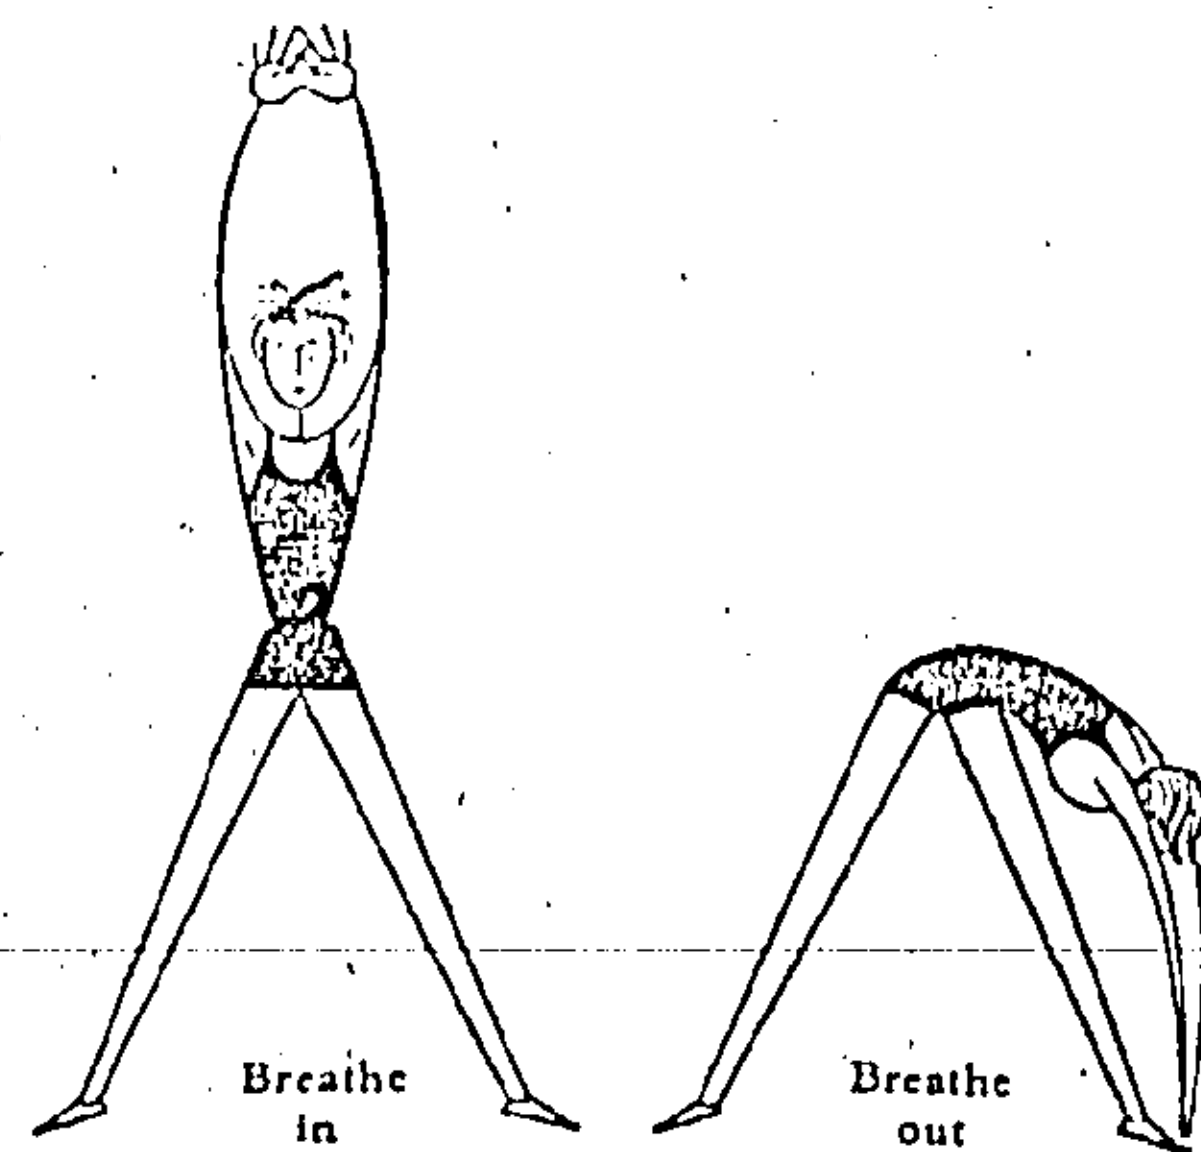

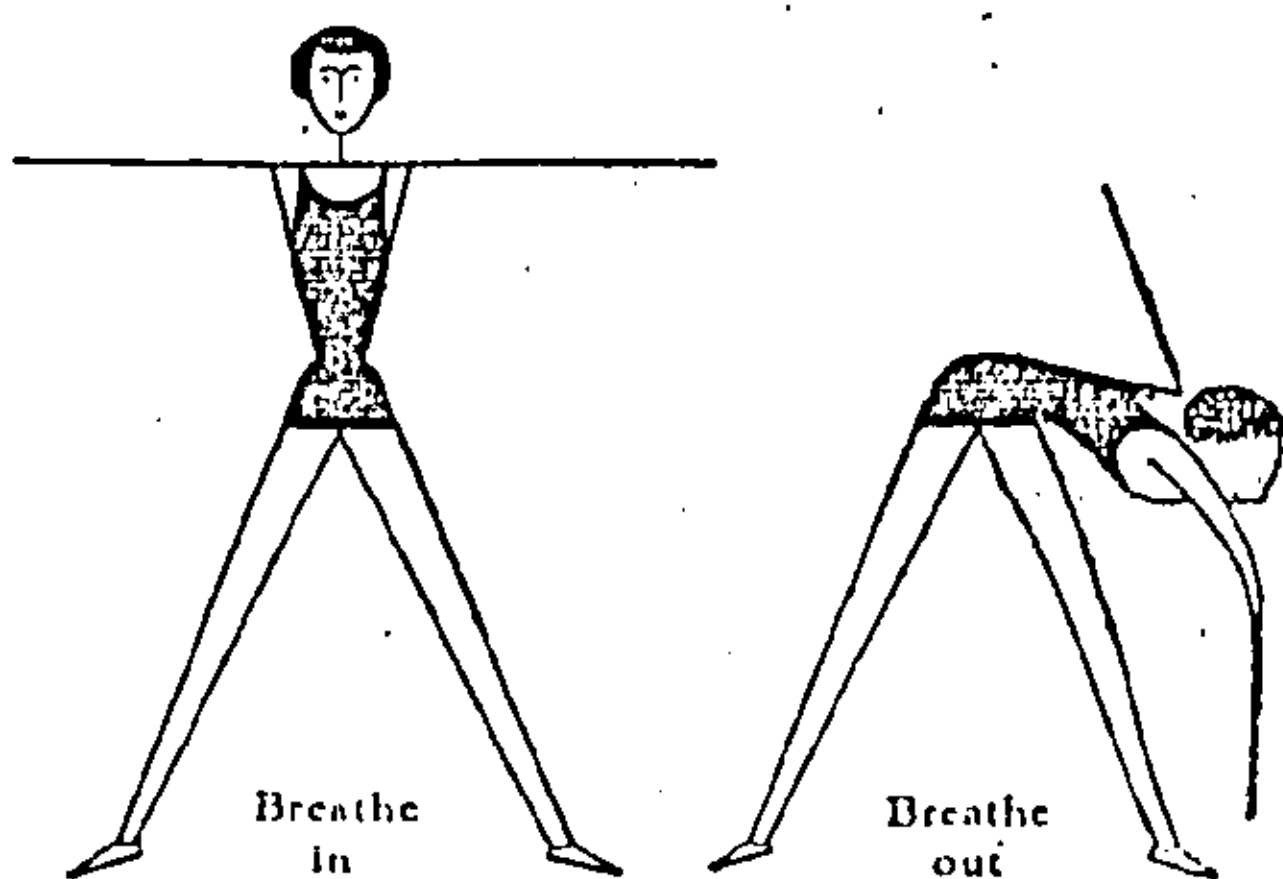

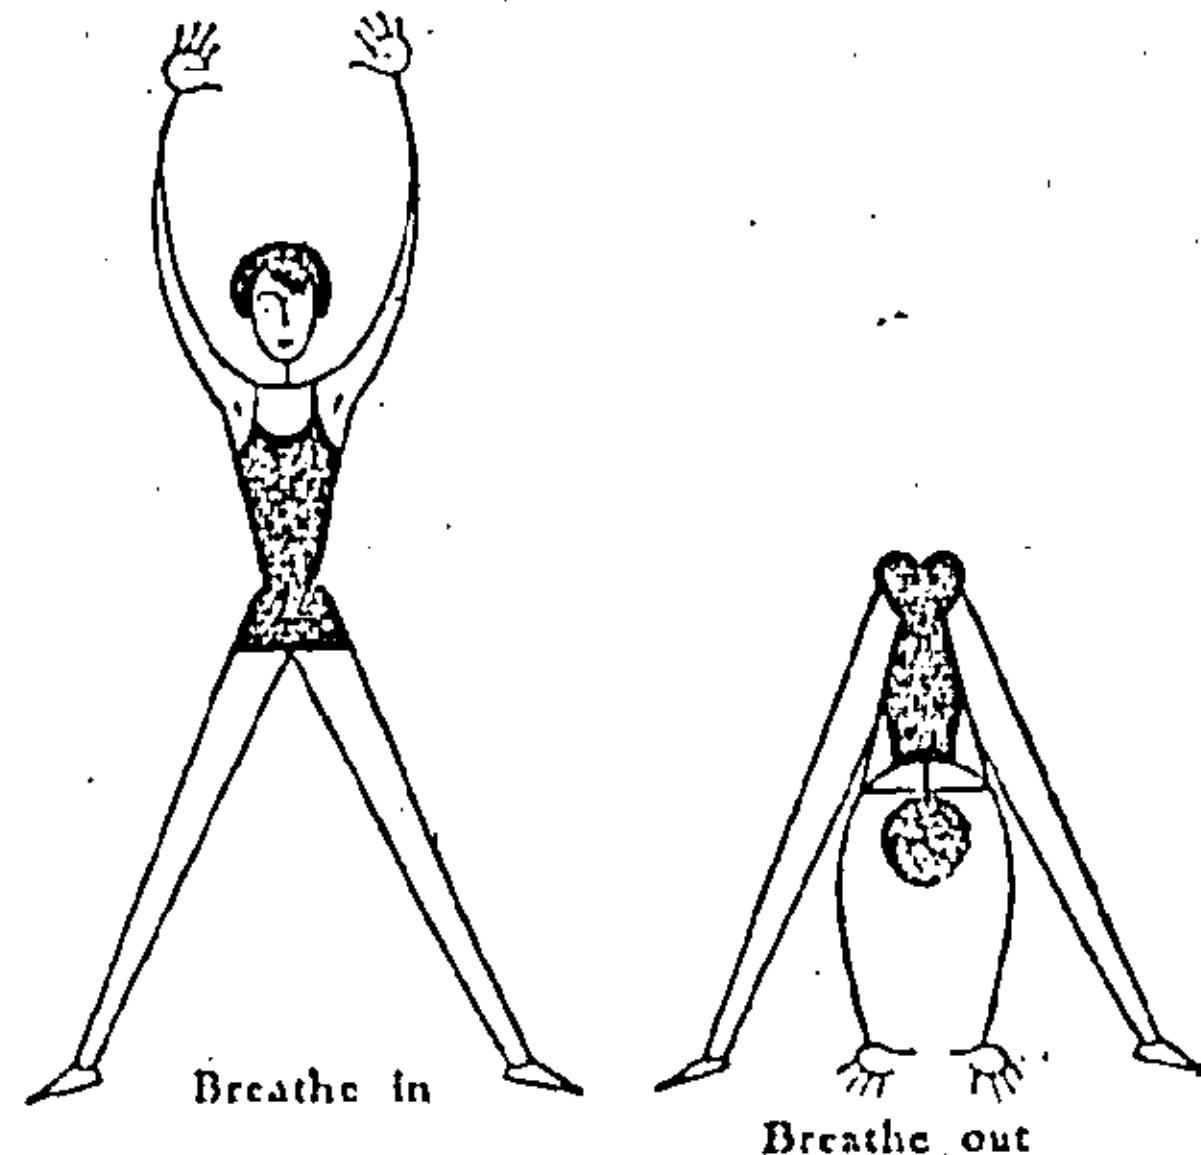

Do them in front of an open window, however cold it is. Use all the energy you have; the exercise is doing you good when it makes you feel a bit tired.

Breathe in through your nose, out through your mouth, and take four or five deep breaths before you start every day.

Do each exercise 10 times (six or eight for the first days) and not so fast that you get out of breath.

You'll only begin to feel the benefit of them when you've been doing them regularly for a bit.

The three exercises stretch your back and thigh muscles to their fullest limit. They will make your legs, body, and particularly the small of your back supple and strong.

- 1 Stand with your feet apart, your arms straight out above your head, and touch the ground with the palms of your hands without bending your knees.
- 2 Feet apart, arms stretched straight out to the side, touch in turn your right foot with your left hand and your left foot with your right hand. Don't bend your knees, stretch your body as much as possible.
- 3 Feet apart, and arms stretched straight up, touch each foot in turn with both hands. Don't bend your knees—stretch your back.

Brighten up your home with fish

—it's not nearly so silly
as it sounds

THEY died young, those poor fish of our nursery days—anaemic gold fellows making sad, fishy faces while they gorged on ants' eggs and served a life sentence in narrow glass bowls.

But fish farming to-day, once you know a thing or two, is no trouble at all. In a properly kept aquarium even the water does not need changing. The fish and the plants and the light all maintain a friendly balance of life on their own.

Remember that fish prefer the shady side of life. Place your aquarium so that they see light but not the sun. A window facing north is the very thing. Their food comes in tins all ready for serving, costs from 6d. to 9d.

Though all fish are cold-blooded, those from the tropics need an electric heater thermostatically controlled. This involves extra expense, but you can have a more cosmopolitan gathering—Guppy, Paradise fish, Sailfins, and Zebra fish.

Cold-water fish, on the other hand, should have at least a gallon of water to every inch of fish. Four goldfish, therefore, measuring one and a half inches (this is not a problem sum) would need six gallons of water.

There are many aquariums to choose from. You can have a modest glass affair ranging, according to size, from a few cents to a few dollars.

Then there are elegant apartments with fittings of stainless steel, chromium, burnished copper, bronze or enamel to harmonise with your own particular colour scheme. For these you can pay anything up to $50.

Fishes are smart for furnishing in America. They'll be decorative wherever you put them here, too.

Before fishes move into their glass house it should be properly furnished and planted out for several days. First comes a layer of aquarium compost for the base of the tank. A five-pound bag costs a few cents! Over this goes coarse aquarium sand, specially sterilised and filtered.

Plants should be firmly planted. Ludwigia, Sagittaria, Vallisneria and Elodea Crispa are a few suggestions and are probably procurable in Hongkong. Realistic, colourful rocks supply the local colour. You can pick them up for next to nothing at a big store.

And now for the fish themselves. Why not start off with goldfish, primrose fish and golden orfe, and perhaps the more expensive baby fan-tails, shubunkins, peacock-eyed bass and diamond bass, all under half a crown each?

Dumplings Are Delicious

Corn Meal Dumplings

THESE come from America. The measures are breakfastfuls. Mix half a cupful of Indian Corn Meal with a cupful and a half of boiling water, adding a tablespoonful of finely chopped onion and a teaspoonful of salt.

Steam for a couple of hours in a double saucepan, then cool and add two slightly beaten eggs and a tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley.

Shape into small balls, roll them in flour and cook them for ten minutes in boiling soup.

Sweet Dumplings

I AM told these are Chinese. Cream two tablespoonfuls of lard with a breakfastful of sugar, add half a pound of freshly grated coconut and a quarter of a pound of chopped almonds. Now mix in half a pound of finely mashed potato and a pound of flour, and make the mixture into small balls and fry them brown in hot fat.

DON'T BELIEVE IT!

—says the Doctor.

HEARSAY, not knowledge, is the basis of many everyday "facts," says Dr. August A. Thomsen, lecturer in medicine at New York University. To-day he demolishes the popular fallacies.

That it is sensible to expose children to so-called children's diseases (measles, whooping-cough, chicken-pox, and so on), on the assumption that they will get them anyway.

The notion is wholly fallacious, because (1) a mild case may give rise to a serious one; (2) it is not quite true that all should have these ailments at some period of their existence; (3) the seriousness of such ailments is greater, the younger the child; (4) one attack does not necessarily afford protection from a second; and (5) the liability to attack lessens with age.

It should be kept in mind that even when children survive the attacks of these diseases there is always the great danger that some permanent defect may remain, for example, impaired kidneys, or chronic heart disease.

As a result of an attack of scarlet fever at the age of 19 months, Helen Keller was deprived of her senses of sight, hearing and smell.

That reading light must, to be most effective, come from over the left shoulder.

It has been shown by experiment that it does not matter from where the light comes, provided that no shadows are cast upon the page, and that the rays from the light do not enter the eye. The light should be at least 20 degrees away from the direct line of sight, and should be so placed to avoid direct reflections from glossy pages.

The best reading light is that termed "indirect," in which the source of light is hidden, and the rays thrown on to the ceiling. This is similar in effect to daylight.

Research in England has determined a ruling that the weakest light suitable for reading or other close work is eight foot-candles. This means the amount of light that would fall upon a page one foot away from eight standard candles closely grouped.

This is equivalent to the amount of light obtained from a 100-watt unshaded electric lamp, placed two feet from the page. Even more light would still be beneficial, but less light invariably results in a strain of the seeing apparatus, producing a tired feeling of the eyes and sleepiness.

That only so-called weak-willed people can be hypnotised, and that the hypnotist uses great powers of mind and will.

Hypnotism is popularly considered to be a mysterious psychological process by which certain persons possess marvellous powers over the minds and wills of others. It is also incorrectly thought that a new source of energy is transferred to the hypnotised subject from the strong personality of the operator, and that this new strength of mind and body enables him to overcome obstacles ordinarily insurmountable.

Another popular notion is that one can be cured of a habit by being hypnotised and given opposing suggestions. And there are many others.

As a matter of fact, there is nothing mysterious about hypnotism. It is merely a form of artificial sleep. Anyone could hypnotise if he learned a few simple principles. And anyone can be hypnotised provided he knows how to co-operate with the hypnotist.

Dr. James J. Walsh, the eminent psychologist, tells us that hypnotism is "merely a state of mental absorption in which all distracting thoughts are for the moment warded off, and only such thoughts as are suggested by the hypnotist reach the consciousness of the patient."

"12 DAYS AGO WE'D 120 MEN—NOW 37"

Winston Churchill's Nephew Sends Graphic War Message

'WE SHALL WIN —BUT WHAT A VICTORY'

Albacete, Dec. 28.

ESMOND ROMILLY, 18-year-old nephew of Mr. Winston Churchill, and a member of one of Britain's oldest families, is winning laurels for his gallantry under fire while serving in the International Brigade, which is fighting for the Spanish Government in defence of Madrid.

Here, in his own words, is a vivid description of life in the front line.

Ordeal Under Fire

WE'VE just returned after 12 days on the Madrid front. Experiences to date:—

Air bombing of our positions;
Crossing open-ploughed fields under machine-gun and rifle fire;

Shelling from our own tanks;
Too much death about everywhere.

Our company started 12 days ago with 120 men. Present strength 37.

This Conversation Piece sums up the way the war is being fought:—

"Can you give me a light for my hand grenade?"

"Sorry, old man, no matches."

This is the land of manure. Sometimes one goes to the wrong front and back again. Madrid, of course, does not look too bright—with continual air raids and heavy bombardment.

Three of our people have been killed by dum-dum bullets.

Yesterday in Madrid we saw a British Parliamentary delegation. They seemed amazingly out of place.

—Tories and Liberals inquiring about the hot coffee.

The action we're in is German. Some of them are desperately brave. Their idea is to walk in front of the tanks like men with red flags in front of trains in 1810.

Worst experience so far—digging in behind trees in a ploughed field under machine-gun fire.

No Surrender

"Then we had the order to duck back to cover. Slipped in a shell hole, and fell—then a shattering roar which nearly blew my ear columns to pieces."

Most of the people here have now given up the idea that they will ever return to Britain. The figures in our own company tell why.

Naturally we take prisoners, but everyone on our side would shoot himself rather than be taken prisoner.

When we came here I thought we should be in trenches, but there are none at all in our sector.

Whatever the position elsewhere, in our place in the last action we had definitely advanced more than a kilometre during the whole time.

The Government aeroplanes seem to be better now, and chase the enemy bombers away when they appear. Food comes through well.

The militia is officially no more, and I am now, therefore, a member of the Spanish Republican Army.

I am sure we shall win, however. But what a victory it will be.

"Heartbeat Control" in Trance

The claim of Indian mystics to have gained control of their heartbeats by prolonged spiritual exercises has been substantiated, according to two French doctors, C. Labry and T. Brosse.

The doctors made a special visit to India to take records of the pulse and breathing of Yogis during their meditation, says the British Medical Journal.

An electric record of the heartbeats during the trance showed that the manner in which the heart acted was completely altered. Then, when the Yogi quietly announced he had won control of the heart, the record suddenly became normal. At times the pulse of the wrists varied.

After taking a deep breath the Yogi could remain for five minutes without drawing another.

TWICE AS MANY GERMAN U-BOATS AS IN 1914

EARLY this year Germany will have a submarine fleet twice as large as she had at the outbreak of the war in 1914.

The Naval Year Book for 1937 just published says the fleet will include twenty-four U Boats of 250 tons, ten of 500 tons, and two of 712 tons each.

HOW LORD PEEL ESCAPED KIDNAP

Jerusalem, Jan. 10.

IT was established to-day that a plot to kidnap Earl Peel, chairman of the royal commission on the Palestine revolt, lay behind the hold-up by Arabs on the Jericho road last night.

Lord Peel escaped by less than half an hour.

Three Arabs, armed with modern revolvers, carried out the hold-up among the Judean hills just outside Jerusalem.

Lord Peel was returning from Jericho.

The brigands piled up large rocks in the road under the limestone cliffs. Five cars were held up, all containing British residents.

An Australian ex-officer employed by the Palestine Government was in one car.

When he swore at a brigand who wanted to take his gun away the ralders made him take off his coat, waistcoat, and shirt, and stand shivering in the mountain air with a revolver pointed at him.

An English eye-witness of the hold-up said: "Just as we came round the bend we saw the road blocked with boulders."

"The Arabs asked, 'Are you Jews?' We said 'No.' Had we been Jews they would have shot us."

"I believe they knew that Lord Peel was returning this way."

WOMAN ACCUSED OF ARMS PLOT

French Foreign Office Arrest

Paris, Jan. 10.

A SENSATION was caused in French diplomatic circles to-day by the arrest of Mlle. Suzanne Linder, one of the most trusted secretaries at the French Foreign Office, on a charge of forging documents to facilitate the export of arms to the Spanish Reds.

Michael Rosenfeld, known to be her friend—a wealthy resident of one of the most fashionable parts of Paris—has also been arrested for alleged complicity.

I understand that after the arrest of Rosenfeld an agent of the Spanish Red Government, carrying with him full powers for the purchase of war material, was found in his office in the Avenue Carnot, in the Etoile district, says a Correspondent.

SHIPLOAD OF ARMS

The formal charges against the arrested persons are:

Rosenfeld.—Usage of false passports and failure to comply with an expulsion order.

Mlle. Linder.—Forgery of public documents and imitation of important signatures.

It is alleged that the proposed plot was to permit the departure from a French port for Mexico of a large shipload of arms destined later for Spain.

A steamer which was at anchor in Marseilles was at first unable to leave.

Then suddenly permission arrived from Paris.

HYPONOTIC EYES

Mlle. Linder, a blonde, who is described as having pale blue "hypnotic" eyes, is a niece of the late M. Philippe Berthelot, former Secretary-General to the French Foreign Ministry and the power behind M. Briand during his long tenure of the Foreign Ministry.

A close friend of Mlle. Linder to-night told me some details of her early life.

Joining the staff as a girl, she has been a secretary in vital departments of the French Foreign Office for nearly a quarter of a century.

GOLDEN HAIR

"Many diplomats of 20 years ago will remember vividly the slim, meticulously dressed girl with the long golden hair," I was told.

"Of striking appearance and always perfectly dressed, Mlle. Linder quickly made influential friends, and within a few years was a sort of power in French diplomacy, and became a well-known figure in diplomatic and political circles."

Some years ago at an inquiry in connection with certain documents at the Foreign Office she was asked some pointed questions, but was cleared.

Rosenfeld is a man of 35 who has described himself to his friends as "the modern Sir Basil Zaharoff."

Good looking and always well dressed, he had a suite at a famous hotel in the centre of Paris.

Officer To Pay His Wife Maintenance

Melbourne, Jan. 10.

Mrs. Dewar, wife of Lieutenant Dewar, an Australian Army officer, has been awarded a maintenance allowance of 50s. a week against her husband.

Lieutenant Dewar was the officer who travelled to Australia from India in the same ship as Mrs. M. M. Freer, whose admission to Australia was banned.

Mrs. Freer's exclusion caused controversy, but the ban was maintained and she went to New Zealand.

Chinese Rail Order Goes To Germany

Berlin, Jan. 10.

Germany has obtained a £2,333,000 railway order from China. The order is on a credit basis. Germany will grant China a loan bearing six per cent. interest and repayable between 1942 and 1946.

The German firms sharing in the contract include Krupps, Stahlunion, Otto Wolff and Ferrostaal. They will build the Peking-Hankow line, and lay a railway between Chuchow (Hunan Province) and Kwelyang (Kweichow Province).

PRINCESS ELIZABETH MAY GO TO INDIA

THERE is every likelihood that the King and Queen will spend Christmas next year in India.

Plans are being made to hold the Coronation Durbar at Delhi next December. There is a suggestion that Princess Elizabeth may accompany her parents and so, see part of the Empire over which she may one day reign, but nothing definite has been decided.

Details arranged for Edward VIII's visit have had to be drastically revised, and it will be some time before the preliminary arrangements have been completed.

In the absence of the King and Queen in India a Council of State consisting of Queen Mary, the Duke of Gloucester, and the Duke of Kent will be set up.

BETTER NATIONAL ANTHEM

Coronation Provides Chance To "Purge The Blots"

A Manchester correspondent of the Observer writes:—

The Coronation festivities, now so close at hand, are likely to be on a greater scale than ever in the history of our Empire, and our National Anthem will be called for at numberless gatherings, not only of people of our own blood, but of our fellow-citizens of every race, creed, and colour throughout the King's Dominions, and I write to suggest that now, at the crowning of our new King, is the time to make at least some slight improvement in the wording of the Anthem, and to purge it of some of its great blots.

Consider that verse which runs:—

Oh! Lord our God arise,
Scatter his enemies!

And make them fall!
Confound their politics,
Frustrate their knavish tricks,

and remember at the same time that this is supposed to be a solemn prayer to God for the preservation of our King.

Is such language worthy of this great nation and of that high tradition for good taste with which the whole world so recently has honoured us? To me it seems gross, vulgar, and should be expunged immediately from our national anthology.

I do not think the nation wants an entirely new Anthem. The present one, slightly but fittingly altered, would be accepted gladly, and a couple of verses would be enough.

Will no one, amongst the thousands so well qualified to do so, take up the task? I am only an ordinary unknown man and have no wish whatever to press my ideas upon my fellows, but I give here a short amended version, hoping that it may induce some able writer to suggest a thoroughly satisfactory National Anthem suitable for people of all races, religions, and classes in the Empire.

God save our chosen King!
God bless our lawful King!

God save the King!
Crown him victorious,
Gracious and glorious,
Wise to reign over us,
God save the King!

Thy richest gifts in store
On him be pleased to pour,
Oh! bless his reign!

May he our laws defend,
And to his journey's end,
Lend with Thy grace attend
And bless our King.

Father Shoots Faithless Lover

Belgrade, Jan. 10.

BEAUTIFUL Milla Dimitrijevic, just 21, member of one of the highest families of Belgrade, shot herself because her lover jilted her.

To-day, while giving evidence at the inquest, her father whipped out a revolver, fired twice at the lover, Zvezdar Stojanovich, aged 30, seriously wounding him, then turned the weapon on himself.

All Belgrade is to-night discussing Milla's love drama and its sensational sequel.

It was six days ago that Milla killed herself on the pavement outside her parents' home.

Stojanovich, rich son of a former assistant Finance Minister, told the police: "She was infatuated with me and she killed me."

Milla's father, infuriated by the fact that, although a high Government official himself, he had not the money to provide his daughter with the dowry necessary for marriage according to Jugoslav custom—indeed that these words should seal Stojanovich's death-warrant.

Wife Hears M.P. Quoted In Church, Walks Out

Glasgow, Jan. 10.

MRS. JOHN MCGOVERN, wife of the M.P. for Shettleston, rose in St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, Parkhead, to-day, with her eight-year-old son, walked to the door while the priest in the pulpit stopped his address and a packed congregation sat silent, and before going out turned and said:—

"You go to church to hear the word of God, and you hear nothing but political and Fascist propaganda."

Mrs. McGovern said, "My son and I were kneeling at the front. After reading the Gospel, the priest laid down his prayer-book, which had passed on it a newspaper cutting. He began to read it."

"The words were: 'Since I was eighteen years of age I have fought against clerical domination.'"

"I recognised them as having been uttered by my husband at a meeting last Sunday. I did not want my son to hear what the priest was saying about my husband, and rose and walked out."

Mr. McGovern said, "Scores of people have told me that anti-McGovern propaganda has been preached Sunday after Sunday in this church."

RIGHT OF REPLY

"I have no objection to being attacked politically so long as it is done by people to whom I can reply. I resent its being done in the hearing of an audience that I might never have an opportunity of addressing."

Told Monsigneur Daly, vicar-general of the archdiocese, that if these pulpit attacks on me continued I should be bound to take the issue to the public. I will show them how the Catholic workers are being dominated by the Church."

Natural Causes, Mr. J. H. Soady, deputy Coroner, said.

"This poor man was just as much a war victim, and just as much a hero, as the men who died in those days, although he lived all these years afterwards."

What Mr. McGovern Said

Mr. McGovern, who is a member of St. Michael's Church, and one of the four I.L.P. members of Parliament, speaking in Glasgow on December 13, said:—

"Domination by the Church has never been so complete as it has been in Spain."

"Even if it means the end of me politically, I shall still take the same stand. I say to Catholics that I am prepared to accept the clergy when they confine themselves to spiritual and moral teaching. When they step into the arena of politics they have got to take the same knocks as I take."

"Just As Much A War Victim And A Hero"

Wounded in the head while serving in H.M.S. Vindictive in 1918, Thomas Pepper, aged 38, died recently from a seizure at his home at Tonbridge.

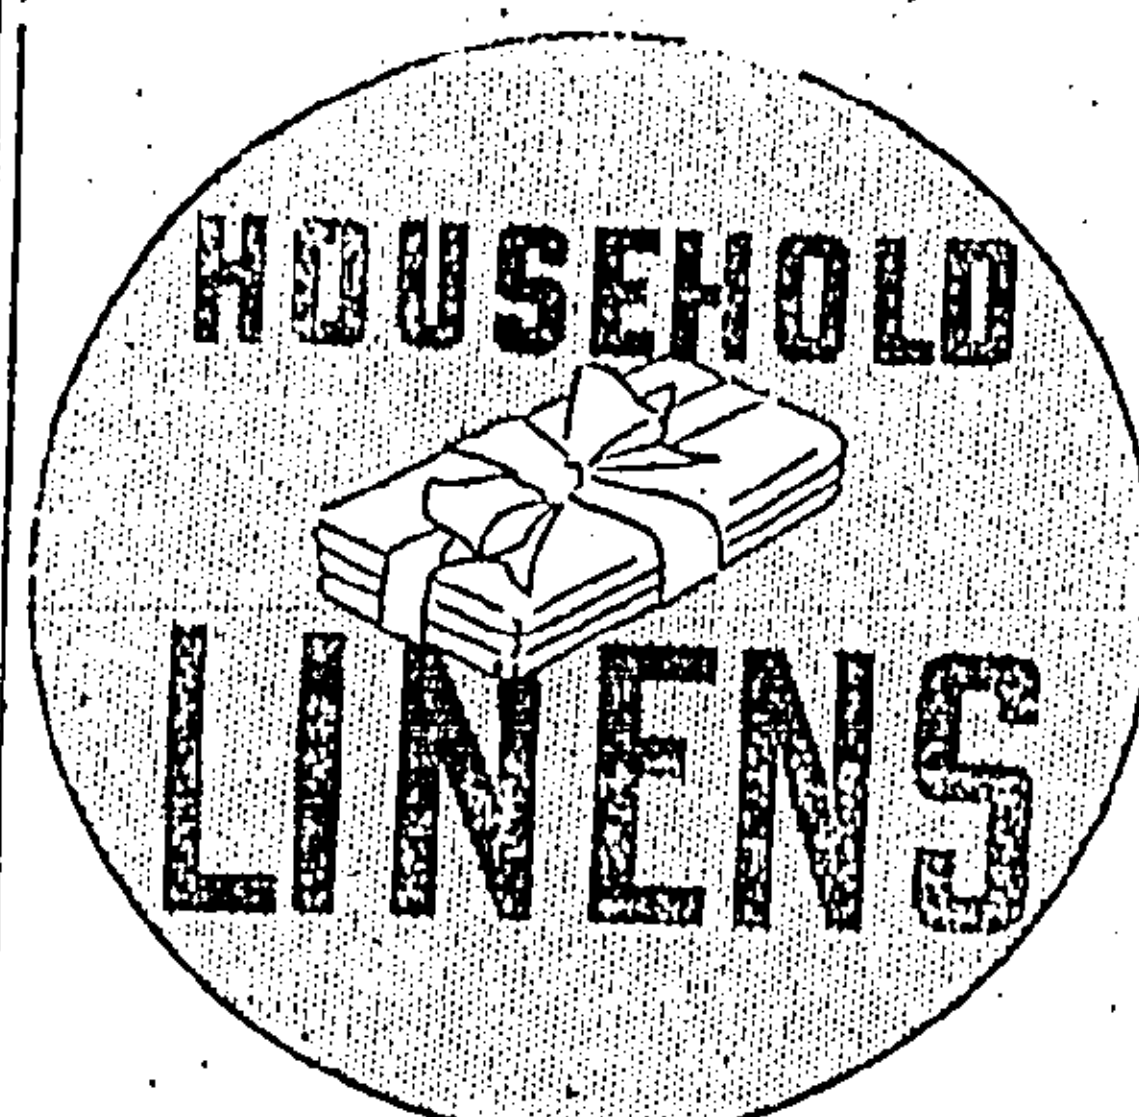

At the inquest it was stated that Pepper received a compound comminuted fracture of the skull and laceration of the brain.

Medical evidence showed that death was due to a rupture of a cyst beneath a shrapnel scar.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET HIGHER YESTERDAY

New York, Jan. 18. S. C. & F. Dow Jones summary of yesterday's markets: The market to-day was irregular. The automobile strike situation has again unnerved the market, off-setting the rising price of steel and the increased output of coal. Business reports show the best volume for six years and good earnings are forecast. The Bonds Market and the Curb Exchange are both irregular.

S. C. & F. New York office cables: Stocks: The market has developed a mixed trend, but the undertone is firm. Prices of automobile tires have advanced by 6%. The Times Business Index for the week is 105.5 as against 103 last week and 95.0 for the corresponding week of last year.

Cotton: There is a slightly easier basis for low grades. The Trade were steady buyers for March.

Wheat: The Argentine has available for export 140,400,000 bushels, while Canada has 110,000,000 compared with 257,000,000 last year. Murray & Co. estimate farm disappearance from July 1st. to January 1st at 541,000,000 bushels, compared with figures for the same period of last year of 507,000,000 bushels. There has been a visible decrease in U.S. wheat of 2,370,000 bushels. The market is at present quiet.

Corn: About 1,000,000 bushels of Argentine corn has just been purchased for the U.S., while 6,460,000 bushels are afloat on the way here. The present high price is reported to be curbing consumption, but country marketings are light and "cash" is difficult to buy. There has been a visible increase in supplies of 226,000 bushels.

Rubber: Buying interest is probably accumulating, pending a settlement of the automobile strike. The outlook to-day is unfavourable. There has been a decrease in English supplies this week of 1,842 tons. Production of castings for November amounted to 4,332,028 units, while an inventory of stocks shows 10,013,659 units.

Dressed alike and looking reasonably alike in features, Elizabeth Allan and Katharine Hepburn in the new emotional drama "A Woman Rebels" are yet introduced as girls of totally different temperaments. Miss Allan is meek and submissive to a domineering father played by Donald Crisp. Katharine is rebellious all through the story, palms off her own child as that of her sister, and bravely faces the world hiding a secret that causes her to sacrifice the love of Herbert Marshall, co-starred with her. The film, from the novel by Nettie Syrett, is showing on Thursday at the Queen's Theatre.

NOTHING CLEANS TEETH
LIKE AN Antiseptic TOOTH POWDER
...ASK YOUR DENTIST

MANY THINGS will help to keep teeth clean ... but nothing will find its way into hidden margins of the gums and teeth like an antiseptic tooth powder. These lodging-places for food particles and bacteria are just the spots where most tooth decay sets in. Vince the antiseptic tooth powder ... is a real "trouble shooter." Vince goes after the hardest jobs in your mouth ... gets places where a tooth brush cannot reach no matter how you scrub.

HERE'S HOW VINCE WORKS

On your brush Vince looks like any other tooth powder. But in your mouth, in contact with moisture, thousands of tiny bubbles of oxygen are released in a pleasant antiseptic cleansing action which reaches every part of your mouth. Vince penetrates between your teeth and removes clinging food particles. It gets under the margins of the gums and by its alkaline action Vince neutralizes the bacteria that cause most tooth decay. All the while, gently cleaning hidden surfaces, liquefying and removing tooth discoloration. You'll enjoy a new sensation of mouth freshness when you use Vince.

Vince is on sale at all drug stores. Try it.

ECONOMY NOTE: The antiseptic action of Vince makes this same powder an ideal mouth wash and gargle, as well as a tooth powder. Use one package of Vince for all three purposes and save.

NOT THE BEST METHOD

Is disregard of solemn obligations the right or only way of rectifying grievances and inequalities among the nations? This question is raised by the German announcement that the Kiel Canal, which was internationalised under the Treaty of Versailles, is no longer to be open to foreign warships. The move has not caused surprise, as it is regarded as an inevitable consequence of the denunciation of the navigation clauses of the Peace Treaty by Germany in November last. Admitting that the matter is not of first-class importance, apprehension is none the less felt at the tactics once again adopted by Germany in getting rid of irksome restrictions. Such methods definitely strike a blow at the sanctity of treaty obligations, which is not only a fundamental principle of the Covenant of the League of Nations but which must be the basis of any system of international law. Germany's answer would be that the treaty obligations which she is casting aside are unfair and place her in a position of inferiority; that she was ready in the past to press her claims to equality of status in a reasonable and open manner; that all her pleas were ignored; and, therefore, the only road open to her, to secure justice, was to wash her hands of the Disarmament Conference, break away from the League of Nations, denounce her disarmament clauses of the Peace Treaty, re-occupy the demilitarised zone of the Rhineland, and, in general, take all that she wanted by other than diplomatic means. Few would deny that there is, in fact, a substratum of truth in these arguments, since many things have been done since the Great War to try Germany's patience. Nevertheless Germany has also proved, on occasions, an awkward customer in negotiations and has sometimes broken off discussions at the very moment when they seemed likely to bear fruit. In the case of the waterways, Mr. Eden recently pointed out that negotiations for a change in the regime were actually proceeding and had already met with a large measure of success. During the past year, abundant evidence has been provided that

SCIENCE OF
THE STARS

Like all Social Sciences,
Astrology is Based on
Empirical Laws, says
K. B. VAIDYA

IN an article reproduced from a London paper in the Telegraph of January 11 last embodying a review of a book called "You and Your Star" by that World-famous Seer, "Cheiro," the venerable science of Astrology has been treated to a feast of ridicule by the reviewer of the book and is made to appear as if it is one of the hoaxes played on humanity through centuries of its existence.

In doing this, however, the reviewer has not been able to display a sense of critical talent and has betrayed a definite lack of understanding the very basis and scope of the science. And above all what is lacking grievously in the reviewer is the sympathy with his subject which any reviewer must bring to bear on the subject which he presumes to criticise.

In the article referred to less disbelievers maligned the above, the writer has not in science in many ways. But it must not be forgotten that the best brains of all ages and of all countries have devoted themselves to the critical study of the science just in the same manner as the pious occult

Though there is a large amount of correlation between Astrology (Science of the Planets and Stars) and Numerology (Science of Numbers) and although each of the numbers has been assigned to a particular planet, it should be understood that each of the planets or stars has to be expressed through a sign of the Zodiac in which he may be placed in any nativity (horoscope of a person) cast for the exact time of birth, while each of the numbers has to be interpreted in relation to the month and the year concerned with each person.

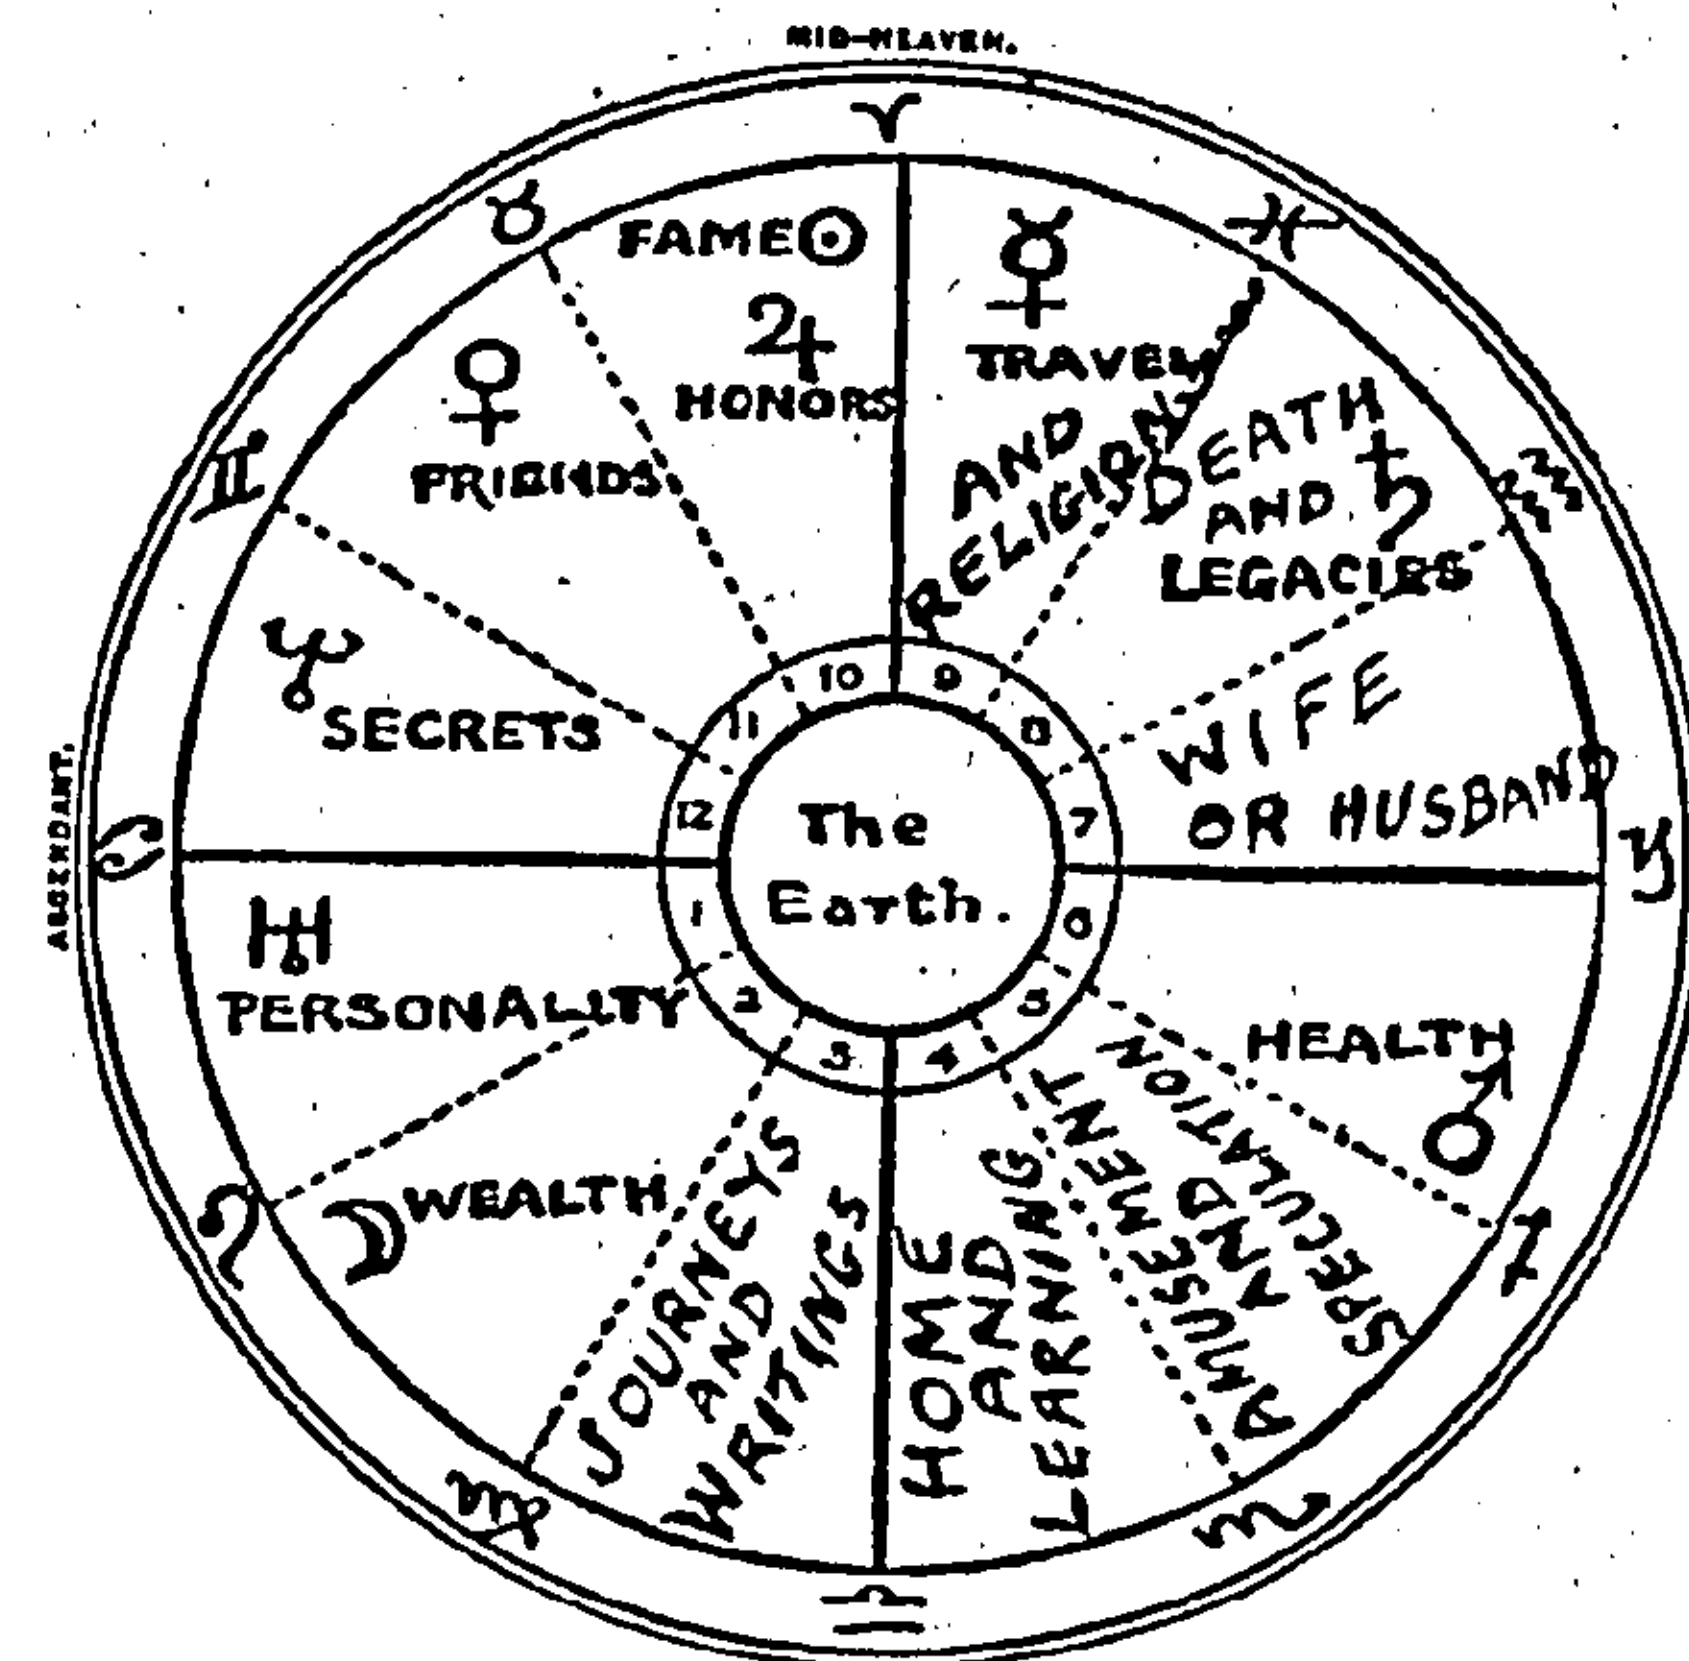

Consequently when the final interpretation of their effects on human beings is to be considered, there are different methods and different rules usually applied in the case of the two sciences.

But the reviewer has not even touched the fringe of Astrology and has concentrated his light-hearted criticism to Numerology on the false impression that Numerology is Astrology itself. This is obviously as ridiculous as to say that a room of a house is the house itself. (Incidentally, the writer of that article has not neglected to take whatever credit there is for himself of the delineation given for persons born in April.)

In the same way, Astrology is not Palmistry with which it is so often wrongly mixed up, as Palmistry concerns itself with the study of the lines and mounts on man's palms and of the formation of man's hands and their fingers.

THE article in question, however, shows how attempts are made to discredit the science even in the present times of enlightenment. And just as a few quacks have done the science incalculable harm, so have reck-social sciences it can never be considered as perfect. In Metaphysics, in Logic, in Psychology and even in Sociology and Economics, we find the same basis and method of procedure as in Astrology, and if these other sciences deserve man's attention, we do not see why Astrology which follows the same method should not.

"peaceful change" can be achieved by friendly negotiation. Turkey behaved in a perfectly correct way in asking for the revision of the Straits Convention, with the result that a satisfactory agreement was reached at Montreux. Great Britain and Egypt were able to settle their longstanding differences by similar methods. Blunderbuss diplomacy is not the only way to settle international disputes. It is, in fact, the least satisfactory way, since it inevitably stirs up friction, suspicion and hostility.

In Astrology, besides, there is the comingling of the different bodies—those of men on this earth and of the astral beings in the ether—and the influences of these bodies on human mind and body should in reality form the basis of an interesting study.

The ancient people who were the children of Nature applied themselves to this interesting study and have, by long observations and experiences, arrived at their conclusions which form the basis of further continuous study. Thus if the science of Astronomy has to be relied upon, then the science of Astrology also makes a strong claim for man's acceptance. And just as the Sun's rising and setting, or the appearance or disappearance of Halley's Comet has been explained by centuries of observation that is due to the rotation of the earth both on its axis and round the sun, so are the observations of the students of Astrology accepted about the effect of the astral beings on men on this earth.

Nothing in the Universe is without purpose, and therefore do people think that the stars and planets exist in the sky without any purpose? Even up to the time of Galileo and Copernicus it was not accepted in Astronomy that the earth is revolving or that it is round and that it has magnetic power to attract bodies thrown away from it, and Galileo had to suffer as a heretic. But now we accept these as undeniable truths. So is the case with Astrological laws.

If any tangible proofs about the effects of the stars and planets on the physical world and human beings are to be given, it is to be noted that the tides of the sea are caused by the rise and setting of the moon; that at the time of high and low tide, the blood from a wound good is shown. And the fact that the sun-world have devoted their time and energies to the study and practice of the science of Astrology, apart from the professional ones who make a living out of it, shows that it is not merely a mad search or a burlesque of superstition.

Centuries of intensive and extensive study has raised Astrology to a high level in non-generalisations thus arrived at the sum-total of the proofs are necessary, it may be mentioned that the very existence of the animal and vegetable parts of the world, has able kingdoms is due to the sun's rays without which there evolution, but like all other will be no life.

If, therefore, the sun's rays have so much power on human existence the planets which are the parts of the body of the sun must be exerting similar influence although in a lesser degree. And if this influence is to act on the blood, will it not act on the mental working and physical capacity of men?

As to the influence of the planets on men's destinies, the same methods of observation must have been adopted by the original founders of the science as in the other case, and guidance laid down by them must have been tested by subsequent experiences of the searchers after truth.

It is these observations which have thus laid the foundation of the science which has long survived the state of superstition. In fact the word "superstition" is applied to it by those who knew nothing about it. But in the East no man, however "reformed" he may be according to modern standard, has grown sceptical about the science and ever calls it a superstition because he has known the truth about it.

AT the same time, however, no great claims should be made in favour of the science. The best way is to take Astrology as comprising of tendencies which serve as guidance to mankind in its endeavours to solve the riddles of their fortunes in the future.

Astrology does indicate good or bad periods of life and indicates the possibility of events. And the fact that so many learned astrologers have built up their reputations on the correct prognostications of such periods and events and maintained same for a long time, will go to prove the efficacy of this statement.

Given correct time of birth and place, fairly correct predictions may be made by duly qualified and experienced astrologers and an indication of the character and capacity of different men can be ascertained.

But man has got also his will-power to exercise to some extent and it is for him to take the caution when evil is indicated and to take the full speed ahead when good is shown. And the fact that the hundreds of thousands of people in all parts of the world have devoted their time and energies to the study and practice of the science of Astrology, apart from the professional ones who make a living out of it, shows that it is not merely a mad search or a burlesque of superstition. Centuries of intensive and extensive study has raised Astrology to a high level in non-generalisations thus arrived at the sum-total of the proofs are necessary, it may be mentioned that the very existence of the animal and vegetable parts of the world, has able kingdoms is due to the sun's rays without which there evolution, but like all other will be no life.

NEW AIR SQUADRONS FOR EAST

Essential For Defence Of Singapore & Hongkong
EXPANSION PLANS READY TO BE PUT INTO EFFECT

Three Major Difficulties Now Removed

THE addition of several new squadrons to the Far East Command of the Royal Air Force will be announced officially in the near future, a London source discloses.

Although the Far East Command is geographically the largest in the Empire its present strength is limited to the four squadrons based on Seletar.

Experts have expressed the view that at least 12 squadrons are urgently needed to provide an adequate aerial defence of Singapore and Hongkong, and to protect British trade routes in the Far East.

Present plans, it is believed, provide for the establishment this year of at least one squadron at each of the following centres:

Tengah (Singapore Island)
Penang.
Nicobar Islands (Bay of Bengal)
Kai Tak (Hongkong)
Pat Heng (Hongkong).

Later, more squadrons will be based at Sembawang (Singapore Island), at various strategic centres in Malaya, and possibly in Borneo and Burma.

IMPORTANCE OF BORNEO

ALTHOUGH this expansion has been under consideration for some time past, and the early establishment of R.A.F. stations at Penang and the Nicobars has already been semi-officially announced, the Air Ministry was unable to expedite its Far East programme to any extent until 1937.

Three main factors were responsible for the delay—

(1) The Washington Treaty, under the terms of which any increase of Pacific fortifications east of Singapore was prohibited.

(2) The lack of suitable landing-grounds, aerodromes, and repair shops in the Far East.

(3) The prior necessity of strengthening the Home Squadsrons, preceded by the Mediterranean crisis and the announcement of Germany's vast expansion programme.

All three difficulties have been removed either partially or in whole. The Washington Treaty expired with the end of last year.

Two aerodromes, complete with the latest military equipment, are nearing completion at Hongkong. Landing grounds have been laid down in British North Borneo and Sarawak. The aerodromes at Penang and Kuala Lumpur have been reconstructed so that heavy torpedo-bombers can land and take-off. Aerodrome sites in other parts of Malaya have been secretly surveyed.

Aero-factories in Great Britain, working day and night, have reached a stage of production that will enable the R.A.F. Home expansion programme to be fulfilled in a few months, and already a degree of "security" has been obtained which was undreamt of two years ago.

HOME DEFENCE

Although about 80 new squadrons are nominally allotted to Home Defence in the official expansion programme, the actual progress of expansion is considerably larger than appears on the surface.

In various squadrons the number of planes comprising the squadrons has been increased by as much as 50 per cent. Many fighting squadrons have been increased to 14 machines, bombing squadrons to 12 machines, and the average strength of naval air squadrons has been raised from four to six machines.

It is estimated that the number of front line planes in Great Britain will shortly be raised to 1,650, while the number of naval planes will be doubled and brought up to 440.

SELETAR STRENGTH

To what degree the Overseas commands are benefitting by this new method of organisation is not divulged. The nominal strength of the two torpedo-bomber squadrons at Seletar is nine machines each, and that of the two flying-boat squadrons five machines each.

The personnel at Seletar, totaling more than 700, are suggested however that the nominal strength of the squadrons could be expanded in an emergency.

New squadrons which are to be added to the Far East Command are likely to be either of the flying-boat or heavy torpedo-bomber class, equipped for reconnaissance and operations against a hostile fleet of warships.

The development of flying-boat anchorages and landing grounds in Borneo is being watched with particular interest in view of their strategic command of the sea approaches to Singapore, and of the present vulnerability of the Miri oilfields.

PANTHER MAULS ZOO OFFICIALS

*Wharfside Drama
After Journey
From Singapore*

A MALAYAN black panther sent from Singapore to the Taronga Park Zoo at Sydney recently attacked two men on its first day in Australia. It was one of a consignment of animals taken to New South Wales by the K.P.M. vessel Nieuw Zeeland.

Nervous and frightened after their long sojourn in the confined spaces between decks, the animals provided zoo keepers and officials with a strenuous day when they reached Sydney.

While the black panther was being unloaded the wooden screen covering the bars of its cage fell off. Unaware of the danger, a wharf labourer moved to replace it.

The Taronga Park Overseer, Mr. Charlie Camp, flung the man aside as the panther struck with the speed of lightning.

Although he saved the wharf labourer, Mr. Camp himself was slashed on the back of the hand by the razor-like claws.

Warning keepers to stand clear while the covers were being removed at Taronga Park, the Curator, Mr. Le Souef, advanced toward the box. As he reached it the panther struck again and gashed Mr. Le Souef's thumb from tip to base.

"The panther was one of the most savage animals in the consignment," said the Zoo secretary, Mr. Brown, who took the animals from Singapore to Sydney.

Ten men pushed and pulled for a quarter of an hour before they succeeded in inducing the baby elephant to walk down the plank to a waiting float. In the Zoo yards the elephant took fright and bolted, trumpeting loudly. It raced down the yard, with a keeper, Joe Morsello, hanging to a hobbie chain fastened round one of the elephant's legs. He succeeded in stopping the animal, which was soon taken to his new home.

The sea trip apparently did not agree with Jumbo, for when he was in Singapore he was extremely docile. He was taken from Ponggol Zoo to the West Wharf in a motor-lorry and walked up a special gangway on to the steamer without any fuss or bother at all.

WITH THE HEAD- HUNTERS IN FORMOSA

IT IS FATAL TO RUN
Fleeing Enemy Followed By Poisoned Dart

WHAT is the correct procedure to be adopted when one is making a leisurely walking tour in the mountains of Formosa, and happens to come across a head-hunter coming in the opposite direction, and seemingly all set for lopping off the first head which comes into view?

A way out of this awkward predicament was suggested by Professor Clarence Griffin when he lectured on the Aborigines of Formosa before members of the Royal Asiatic Society.

Professor Griffin said that in a situation like this it would be fatal to run. The head-hunter would then fetch out his blow-pipe and send after his fleeing enemy a poisonous dart. It would be equally foolish to move forward.

The only thing to be done was to stoop and pick a bluebell off the ground, and then to move towards the head-hunter in a friendly manner. He would then be pacified, as this served as a gesture of friendship.

Formosa, said Professor Griffin, in addition to a population of 5,000,000 descendants from the Chinese, had 150,000 aborigines who inhabit the mountains. The western part of the island descended to paddy-fields, and the mountains were situated on the east coast.

Eight distinct dying nations had chosen the island of Formosa as their last resting place, and their remnants were still to be found among the aborigines of the mountains.

JAPANESE LAW

Head-hunting among these tribes had now been practically stopped by Japanese law, but it was a custom that was very hard to wipe out altogether, as it had been in practice for centuries.

Four of the "nations" represented among the aborigines still practised the custom. At the tender age of 17, youths from these tribes were compelled to go forth and bring back the head of an enemy, unless they wished to be branded as cowards.

On his return from such an expedition, the youth was welcomed home by his whole tribe, and if the expedition had been successful he was branded with two marks under the chin to show that he was a man.

PUT TO DEATH

If, however, he was so cowardly as to bring back the head of a woman, he himself was put to death by the members of his tribe.

In spite of this somewhat barbarous custom, these aborigines were a very fine people, possessing a high code of morals. They were never known to steal.

Japan, in the opinion of Professor Griffin, would stand more chance of wiping out the practice of head-hunting if she were to go about it in a more peaceable manner.

HE PEERS
THE STARS

The first man to peer beyond the stellar system into the vast unknown spaces of the universe and look upon its inhabitants—the nebulae—is in London.

He is Dr. Edwin Hubble, premier astronomer of America, and his "eye" is the great 100-inch reflector at Mount Wilson Observatory, California, biggest telescope in the world.

He described to me how a "sample" of outer space has been surveyed as thoroughly as a plot of building ground.

This mere sample contained 100,000,000 nebulae—a nebula is a stellar system like our own system of the Milky Way—and was 1,000,000,000 "light years" in diameter. A light year can be calculated from the fact that in one second light travels 186,000 miles.

STILL BIGGER "EYE"

An even larger telescope, a 200in. reflector, is to be set up in the next five years for the Californian Institute of Technology.

At present it is rotating night and day on a specially-made grinding machine in a specially-built house in which the temperature can be controlled to balance exactly between summer and winter.

Bit by bit two tons of glass are being ground off its 30-ton mass.

Then day and night for months it will be polished with beeswax and rouge. This new "eye" will penetrate about twice as far into space as any other telescope.

ED. WYNN BLAMES HIS WIFE

New York, Jan. 10.

ED. WYNN, the Broadway comedian, has filed an affidavit replying to his wife's suit for a separation order. "The product of a distorted mind," is his answer to the allegation that he is too friendly with the stage beauty, Frida Mierse.

The comedian says that all his marital troubles are due to his wife's drinking, which, he says, has cost him $50,000 for medical attention for her. He says that between 1921 and 1929 he left her 20 times owing to the intolerable conditions under which they lived. He adds that she once drank 32 cocktails at a single sitting.

He puts his wireless earnings at $1,500 a week and admits he would not be worth $1,000,000 but for his wife's "unfortunate condition."

LAST NIGHT'S REMARKABLE BADMINTON MATCH

St. Andrew's, Down 4-5, Should Have Won Easily

GAMES LITERALLY THROWN AWAY

University Players Make Brilliant Recoveries

(By "Veritas")

Some remarkable badminton was seen at St. Andrew's Church Hall last evening when University "B" upset general predictions by beating St. Andrew's "A" five games to four.

Twice the Saints had the points in their pockets and they should have won by at least 6-3. But astounding recoveries were made. In two games by K. L. Hui and T. F. Yung, while in the deciding encounter, S. K. Lim and A. K. Phang beat S. A. Gray and F. A. Broadbridge after the home pair had secured a lead at 18-17.

The most extraordinary contest of the evening was that between Hui and Yung and Gray and Broadbridge. The latter, playing fast and accurate badminton led 17-6, then 20-10, but from that stage failed to score another point. Four times they had both hands in on service, but could not obtain the one point required for the game, and after the University pair had levelled up to "set" the game, they secured the three points off the reel. In other words they scored 13 aces in succession.

The same players repeated the performance against Wong and Madar. The St. Andrew's couple led 10-6, but were pulled back and made to "set" the game. They managed to add two more aces after the visitors had reached game point, but that was the finish.

With Fincher and Kew winning all three games, the teams were level at four-all when the last match was put into court. Gray and Broadbridge started shakily against Lim and Phang and were trailing 11-17 at one stage. Then they recovered briskly and actually took the lead 18-17. But having lost the service they could not sustain the pressure and the Varsity pair went to their points on the second hand.

The University players gave a splendid show of fighting badminton but St. Andrew's should never have lost. This is the third match this season St. Andrew's have lost against the run of play, though in each case they had themselves to blame.

Owing to several of their players suffering injuries from week-end hockey, Recreio "B" could not turn out a team against University "A" and conceded the points.

Though at full strength, Chinese Recreation Club failed to make the slightest impression on Recreio "A" and were routed by eight games to one.

Lim and Kwok obtained the Recreation Club's consolation point, beating the homesters' third pair. But throughout the Portuguese were right on top and won at will.

Only one second division match was played, St. John's visiting Sailors and Soldiers Home and winning all nine sets.

The detailed scores and revised league tables are appended.

"A" DIVISION

ST. ANDREW'S "A" v. UNIVERSITY "B"

S. A. Gray and F. A. Broadbridge (St. Andrew's) lost to Yung and Tye 16-21; lost to Hui and Yung 20-23; lost to Lim and Phang 18-21.

F. V. Wong and T. A. Madar (St. Andrew's) lost to Yung and Tye 14-21; lost to Hui and Yung 21-24; beat Lim and Phang 21-15.

RECREIO "A" v. C.R.C.

At King's Park last night, Recreio "A" beat the Chinese Recreation Club by 8 games to 1 in the "A" Division: M. A. Oliveira and J. J. Remedios (Recreio "A") beat C. Y. Yung and H. W. Ho 21-4; beat W. C. Choy and P. C. Leung 21-5; beat F. H. Kwok and S. W. Liang 21-6.

L. A. Carvalho and A. M. Silva (Recreio "A") beat Yung and Ho 21-7; beat Choy and Leung 21-10; beat Kwok and Liang 24-23.

E. da Sousa and H. A. Alves (Recreio "A") beat Yung and Ho 21-12; beat Choy and Leung 21-15; lost to Kwok and Liang 21-24.

"B" DIVISION

S. AND S. HOME v. ST. JOHN'S

At Wanchai last night, St. John's beat the Sailors' and Soldiers' Home by 9 games to nil in the "B" Division: A. J. Bennett and David Kwok (St. John's) beat Jago and Yang Chen (Continued on Page 9.)

WHY REYNOLDSTOWN WILL NOT RUN IN THE GRAND NATIONAL

London, Jan. 4. Major Furlong, the owner of Reynoldstown, is not entering him for the Grand National this year. His reasons are, firstly, that there is such a thing as taking the pitcher to the well too often, and secondly, that the altered conditions are unfair and the best horses may easily be beaten by selling platers in receipt of a lot of weight.

After the decision Reynoldstown won the platter for the first time since last year's Grand National.—Reuter.

WASEDA WERE CALLANT LOSERS AND GREAT SPORTSMEN

THEIR RECORD OF HOCKEY TOUR

(By "The Pilgrim")

The Waseda University hockey team may not have blazed a trail of glorious victories during their stay in Hongkong, but the visit, which comes to an end to-night has been instructive, and has indicated that hockey among the Japanese students is on the upward grade.

Their final appearance in Hongkong will be at a complimentary dinner this evening at the Peninsula Hotel. This will start at eight o'clock and immediately afterwards the players will go on board ready to depart early on Wednesday morning.

Though the team has not been so successful as anticipated, the Japanese have given rattling good accounts of themselves in most matches. Only against the Navy to whom they lost 7-1 did they fall very much below Colony standard. And this was not so much due to the Navy's normal superiority as to the fact that the Japanese were tired after their two previous strenuous games.

They have taken all their flakings with a grin, and they have demonstrated sportsmanship in the truest sense of that word. Special mention is deserving of their splendid display against the Civilians on Sunday following an intensive programme during the previous seven days, and of their worthy performance against Macao yesterday.

Their captain, T. Yumura, who they have all thoroughly enjoyed their stay in Hongkong and are looking forward to a return visit, the date for which is at the present somewhat indefinite.

Here is the complete record of their matches played in the South:

Combined Services	4	Waseda	2
Colony	3	Waseda	2
Navy	7	Waseda	1
Army	4	Waseda	1
Argonauts	3	Waseda	1
University	0	Waseda	2
Civilians	5	Waseda	1
Macao	5	Waseda	2
Total	31	Waseda	13

Goalkeepers:—Masamura 3, Kawai 3, Kollima 2, Sugawara 2, Shimoda 3. The Hongkong Hockey Association hopes that all players who took part in the matches against Waseda will endeavour to attend the dinner this evening, as it will be their only chance of bidding farewell and bon voyage to the Japanese players.

Waseda's Plucky Display Against Macao

DEFEATED 5-3, BUT IMPRESS

(By Our Own Correspondent)

Despite the threatening state of the weather, unusually large crowds of spectators turned out this afternoon to witness the eagerly-awaited hockey match between the Waseda University, captained by T. Yamada, and the Macao Hockey Club, captained by Laertes de Costa. Great was the excitement at the end of the game when the scores stood at five goals to three in favour of Macao.

Play was extremely fast from the outset and exchanges even. The home forwards pressed the attack vigorously and almost scored within the first five minutes.

Taking advantage of a pass, Aloosa, right inside, opened the score for Macao from close range. Waseda equalized three minutes later when Shimoda, right wing, netted following a general melee close to their opponents' goal mouth.

As play proceeded, the visitors' defence was seen to advantage. Oshihara at right back being particularly prominent in destroying several intensive raids. However, before the interval, the opposing forwards broke through and Macao regained the lead when Aloosa registered his second goal after a quick pass by Lammert, left back.

Upon resumption Macao combined tactical distribution with fine individual stickwork, but erratic shooting at crucial moments, plus the opposition's counter manoeuvres prevented a score during the first fifteen minutes.

Eventually the local team managed to break through, and a third goal was scored by Alex Aloosa, centre half. Despite the reverse, Waseda remained undiscouraged, and a neat bout of passing by the forwards was rewarded with a goal by Shimoda five minutes later.

Macao's position was further consolidated shortly after when another two goals were scored in quick succession by P. Angelo centre forward, and A. Angelo, left wing.

Before the close of play, a brilliant goal was registered by Kawai, right inside, for the Waseda. It was directed from a sharp angle and the smashing shot landed high into the net.

For Waseda, Shimoda at centre half. Despite the reverse, Waseda remained undiscouraged, and a neat bout of passing by the forwards was rewarded with a goal by Shimoda five minutes later.

Macao's play was well worth watching but the team was definitely not at its best. On the whole the forwards were more aggressive than

Shanghai Women's Hockey Interport Difficulties

CAN HONGKONG HELP? A SUGGESTION

THERE appears to be a considerable amount of dithering existent in the realm of Shanghai hockey. The question is whether the northerners can send a women's hockey Interport team to Hongkong next month.

If it was purely a matter of getting together a team there would be no problem. Money is the factor creating doubts as to whether or not there will be a women's Interport this season. There is, apparently, a number of contributing factors to this position. The Shanghai Ladies Hockey Association, newly constituted and therefore by no means richly endowed with dollars and cents, suffered a big disappointment financially over Hongkong's visit last year. Bad weather kept down the attendances at the various matches, while the profit anticipated from the Interport dinner could not be realised as circumstances caused the abandonment of that function. Thus, at the end of the Interport, Shanghai found themselves out of pocket, rather than enjoying the fruits of the event which should have been a satisfactory lining for a comfortable bank balance.

other hand this gesture may be interpreted to justly claim that money, or no money, Shanghai will send a team.

Can Colony Help?

ONE wonders whether in a problem of this nature, Hongkong could not make some helpful gesture. Could it not, for example, offer ten per cent. of gate receipts from the matches to be played here during Chinese New Year, if it was found that Shanghai cannot realise its $1,000 appeal? I presume there will be admission charges to the Interport and other matches, for this seems to be the only method by which the Hongkong Ladies Hockey Association can recoup any of its outlay on the Colony's visit to Shanghai a year ago. That being so there seems to be no very valid reason why Hongkong, as a gesture of goodwill, and in an effort to keep alive the highly desirable contests between the two ports, should not offer to share in proportion, the monies received from the Interport series here next month. It would not be a question of making Shanghai's visit here conditional upon such an arrangement, but simply an unsolicited and sporting offer to assist the northerners should they be unable to raise all the funds necessary to make the trip. I don't doubt there are several reasonable objections to such a procedure, and this is merely a suggestion thrown out with the idea that it may help to alleviate a contretemps which threatens the immediate continuation of the women's hockey Interport series between Shanghai and Hongkong.

Opinions Divided

ACCORDING to the Shanghai Times, hockey circles up there have divided into two sharply defined camps. One insists that the Interport will take place next month whether or not money is forthcoming to finance the players' travelling expenses; the other is just as emphatic that unless the appeal for $1,000 is raised, it will be impossible to send a team down here. I rather think the second alternative is the correct estimation of the Shanghai Ladies Hockey Association's intention. The appeal for $1,000 is still being fervently lunched, and it is encouraging to observe that it has met with some response, $160 having, up to Saturday last, been subscribed by various sports bodies. But there will have to be a more concentrated drive for the money if it is to be raised in time. Only three weeks is left before now and the Interport and a much more quickened response to the appeal is therefore necessary. Shanghai are apparently confident that the money will be forthcoming inasmuch that a team has been chosen to make the trip. On the

Vines And Perry

THE telephone call I received yesterday afternoon did not surprise me. I had been more or less waiting for it. I knew that when it did come it would be rather amusing, and the amusement would largely be of my expense. So unlike Cedric Belfrage, who found the telephone so distracting that he vanished to the other end of the world to write a book on Esopology, and other eminent men of letters who have found it necessary to de-subscribe themselves from the telephone service because of its terrifying influence upon their lives, I waited with a sense of keen anticipation for the call, which, when it did come gleefully enquired "And now what are you going to write about Perry and Vines?" As a matter of fact I didn't intend to write anything, because for one thing it is possible to have too much of a good thing, and again there are certain obvious features about the Perry-Vines tennis engagements which scarcely call for comment. The most obvious is that with two such well-matched players alternate victories

A TYPICAL STORY!

"When I arrived Home on leave I bought a second-hand car. It looked fine, but after 6 weeks I became so 'fed up' with all the trouble and expense I was having with it, I sold it and bought a NEW FORD and brought it back with me. Never had the least trouble with the new car and the rest of my leave was the most enjoyable I've ever had."

THIS STORY IS NOT ONLY TYPICAL IT'S TRUE. WE COULD GIVE THE NAMES OF MANY PEOPLE IN THE COLONY WHO HAVE HAD JUST SUCH AN EXPERIENCE.

Waseda's Plucky Display Against Macao

DEFEATED 5-3, BUT IMPRESS

(By Our Own Correspondent)

Despite the threatening state of the weather, unusually large crowds of spectators turned out this afternoon to witness the eagerly-awaited hockey match between the Waseda University, captained by T. Yamada, and the Macao Hockey Club, captained by Laertes de Costa. Great was the excitement at the end of the game when the scores stood at five goals to three in favour of Macao.

Play was extremely fast from the outset and exchanges even. The home forwards pressed the attack vigorously and almost scored within the first five minutes.

Taking advantage of a pass, Aloosa, right inside, opened the score for Macao from close range. Waseda equalized three minutes later when Shimoda, right wing, netted following a general melee close to their opponents' goal mouth.

As play proceeded, the visitors' defence was seen to advantage. Oshihara at right back being particularly prominent in destroying several intensive raids. However, before the interval, the opposing forwards broke through and Macao regained the lead when Aloosa registered his second goal after a quick pass by Lammert, left back.

Upon resumption Macao combined tactical distribution with fine individual stickwork, but erratic shooting at crucial moments, plus the opposition's counter manoeuvres prevented a score during the first fifteen minutes.

Eventually the local team managed to break through, and a third goal was scored by Alex Aloosa, centre half. Despite the reverse, Waseda remained undiscouraged, and a neat bout of passing by the forwards was rewarded with a goal by Shimoda five minutes later.

Macao's position was further consolidated shortly after when another two goals were scored in quick succession by P. Angelo centre forward, and A. Angelo, left wing.

Before the close of play, a brilliant goal was registered by Kawai, right inside, for the Waseda. It was directed from a sharp angle and the smashing shot landed high into the net.

For Waseda, Shimoda at centre half. Despite the reverse, Waseda remained undiscouraged, and a neat bout of passing by the forwards was rewarded with a goal by Shimoda five minutes later.

Macao's play was well worth watching but the team was definitely not at its best. On the whole the forwards were more aggressive than

HONGKONG FOOTBALLERS ARE SUSPENDED

Rifleman Gets Two Months Sentence

Two footballers who were sent off the field in league matches on January 10 appeared before the Emergency Committee last evening. Both cases were found to be proved and suspensions were imposed.

In the case of R. (38) Wilson, of the Royal Rifles, who was dismissed from the field during the second division game between the Rifles and South China, he was suspended for two months as from January 10.

C. A. Figuerido, of Club de Recreo, who was sent off in the third division game against Chinese Police on the same day, was suspended for one month as from January 10.

CHANGE OF VENUE

It is officially announced that tomorrow's Junior Shield match between the Royal Engineers and Police, originally scheduled for Chatham Road, will now be played on the Kowloon Football Club ground, at 4 o'clock.

The England captain, G. O. Allen, gives the impression of flying through the air as he bowls to McCabe in the third Test match against Australia at Melbourne. The other batsman is Fingleton.

the opposition. Rosario, right back, gave a superb display of defence tactics and on one occasion actually robbed an opposing forward of the ball as he was about to shoot. Almost in the centre half, he was the opposition at bay and cleared in the style.

Teams consisted as follows: Waseda: Onizuka, Oshihara, Kawashima, Yamada, Tomita, Shigawara, Kawai, Kojima, Masumura, Shimada.

Macao: Almada, R. Rosario, Lammer, J. Nolasco, A. Afonso, Costa, F. Nolasco, Albert Afonso, P. Angelo, H. Rosario, A. Angelo.

VISITORS FETED

The visit of the Waseda team to Macao included a tour of the Colony and an inspection of the Macao Lyceum.

The visitors were the guests of the Macao Hockey Club at dinner in the Hotel Riviera this evening. Toasting the health of the guests, Lieut. F. O'Costa, the "father" of Macao hockey, expressed his pleasure at the meeting and the greater number of teams secured the greater number of goals. As a souvenir of the occasion he took the opportunity of presenting on behalf of his team a hockey stick autographed by each member of the Club who had participated in the day's play.

Replying appropriately, S. Kajima, coach of the visiting team, said that it was a great pleasure to see the fine sporting spirit existing in the Macao Hockey Club and he hoped that an opportunity would be afforded for the teams to meet again next year. He sincerely trusted Macao would be represented in the 1940 Olympiad to be held in Japan. The dinner was followed by a series of Japanese folk dances by the members of the Waseda team.

In the second half, however, he staged a splendid recovery and, aided by Yvanovich's lapse, not only reduced the deficit but eventually gained the lead. During this period, he registered breaks of 52, 49, 51, and half a dozen in the thirties. Yvanovich scored breaks of 33, 31, and several twenties.

and defeats can be the only outcome of a series of matches. This doesn't imply hole-in-the-corner "arrangements," and it is idiotic for any such suggestion being made. The fact is that only day of the week Vines is liable to best Perry, and vice versa. Perry got away to a flying start, but that did not prove once and for all his complete dominance of Vines. I still believe that in the long run he will enjoy a slight edge over the Californian, and that at the present, anyhow, he is the world's best player. But to confess astonishment because Perry, after winning thrice in succession, loses the next two matches to Vines, is to confess to a complete lack of a sense of values.

It is announced that Miss Catherine Bantrice Pegg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Pegg, will marry Mr. Francis Joseph Soden at St. Joseph's Church on Friday, February 5, at 3.30 p.m. Following the ceremony, a reception is to take place at 8, The Peak.

INSPECTION OF PRISON

STANLEY INSTITUTION

His Excellency the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, yesterday inspected the new gaol at Stanley, where the huge white building threw open hospitable doors probably for the only time during the existence it now commences.

During a thorough round of the wards, workshops and quarters, the huge throng of visitors found much to interest them, and there were the usual jocular remarks, supported on this occasion by several incidents.

His Excellency had the misfortune to scold slightly his right hand near the wrist, and was treated by Dr. G. J. Shaw, Medical Officer of Victoria Gaol. The Governor's A.D.C., Capt. W. J. R. Craig, found himself temporarily locked in Cell No. 3, and Mr. G. P. de Martin was in a similar plight in Cell 82, through the automatic device on the doors.

The inspection was timed for 4 p.m., and when the Governor drove up, he was greeted by the Superintendent, Mr. J. W. Franks, and the Assistant Superintendent, Mr. F. A. Hopkins. The European and Indian Warders formed a Guard of Honour, and some were then detailed to escort parties round the buildings and explain the routine.

His Excellency the G.O.C., Major General A. W. Bartholomew, was among the visitors, who included Legislative Councillors and their ladies and a body of other residents of all nationalities, who were interested in the modern gaol.

Mr. S. C. Feltham, the architect who designed the buildings, was introduced to the Governor, and accompanied the party with keys to extricate unfortunates who got themselves into difficulties.

The gallows and grimmer aspects of prison life were not open for inspection, but nearly two hours was occupied in the workshops, cells and kitchens, and it was there that Sir Andrew scolded his hand while examining a tea boller which was in operation.

Tea was served in the grounds at 6 p.m., after which the visitors took their departure.

Photographs of the building published here, give a good idea of its dimensions.

Modern Gaol Building
Embodying many of the latest ideas in penitentiary construction, Hongkong's new prison on Stanley Peninsula will eliminate the overcrowding existing in the old Victoria Gaol and will provide hygienic accommodation for many convicts for many years to come. Only a few finishing touches yet remain to be made to complete the construction, but as most of the cell blocks are finished, it is expected that the transfer of prisoners will begin almost immediately.

Visitors to the new gaol cannot but be impressed with the advanced and humane treatment for evil-doers as compared with the few decades ago. Gone are the gloomy cells and grey damp corners of old prisons, and in their place are light coloured stuccoed walls, airy exercise yards and well ventilated cells and work rooms. At the same time there is not a complete absence of bars and high walls, and it is obvious that discipline and necessities have not been overlooked.

In area the new prison occupies nearly a square mile, the entire buildings being surrounded by a wall about 18 feet high. It is ideally situated, and the lay-out of the building is such that the inmates of the cell blocks will be able to derive full benefit in summer from the sea breezes which cross the peninsula.

Big Washroom
The entrance, through massive doors into a quadrangle, flanked by the cells, the block, store rooms and visiting rooms.

The convict, on arrival, is taken into the reception block, where particulars and fingerprints are taken and he is medically examined. From there he enters a vast washroom where his clothes are taken from him and he passes through a row of hot showers, dries himself and is then issued with prison garb. His own clothes are passed through a modern fumigator and neatly stored to await his release. Any valuables that he may have are stored in a specially built fire-proof safe.

In the reception block are the visiting rooms where convicts may converse with their friends on visiting days. This is a long room separated by a narrow gridded passage along which a guard walks while conversations are in progress.

The administrative block, on the southern side of the quadrangle, is composed entirely of offices, and leads the way into the prison proper through heavy iron-barred gates, which are unlocked only when vehicles are to pass into the prison. On other occasions a wicket gate is used.

The prison yard houses the six cell blocks on the eastern side, separated by plots of ground, and the workshops on the western side. The workshops are spacious and airy, and have been designed to afford the convicts the utmost comfort, and at the same time, to enable the guards to keep the men under observation with a minimum of difficulty.

Modern Printing Shop

The principal workshop, the printing works, is of two floors. Skilled mechanics, who are not inmates, and operate the linotypes and other delicate machines, are housed in the lower floor free of supervision, but the convict book-binders and others are on the second floor under the eye of a guard who patrols an iron-barred cage running practically the whole length of the block. This guard is locked in the cage so as to make it impossible for him to be overpowered.

In the next block are housed the paintshop, bootmakers, tailors, tin-smiths, carpenters and mat-makers in spacious workrooms. The six cell block are all of the same pattern. They comprise three

CORONATION PLANS

HONGKONG CHINESE AND THE CELEBRATIONS

At a meeting held yesterday at the Secretariat of Chinese Affairs, presided over by the Hon. Mr. R. A. C. North, a preliminary discussion took place amongst the 52 members of the Chinese Committee regarding arrangements for the Coronation celebrations in May. A special sub-committee was elected for the purpose of working out the arrangements, and it will meet to-day at the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce rooms to work out the full details.

The Special Sub-Committee comprises the following: Messrs. Ho Kom-long (Chairman), Ip Lan-chuen and Tse Ka-po (Vice-Chairman), Li Cho-sun, Li Sing-ku, Luk Oi-wan, Ng Wai, Ng Sing-ku, Tung Shu-kin, J. M. Wong, Lo Yui-tong, Tung Chung-wai, Ho Wan-sang, Lai Yuet-chun, and Tam Woon-long.

Mr. Clarence Griffin, known as the "Blue Bird Man of Formosa," who has been spending a holiday in Hongkong and has given two lectures on Formosa, left the Colony last Saturday on the s.s. Haruna Maru. Mr. Griffin is returning to Taihoku, the capital of Formosa.

floors with 82 cells on each floor, so that the prison can accommodate over 2,000 prisoners in separate cells. Each cell has a window on two sides, permitting adequate ventilation, and is equipped with a Chinese style bed and table. There is also a press-button connected with a bell and a light over the cell door, by which means a prisoner can summon guard at night in case of emergency.

Separate Kitchens
In the centre of the cell blocks is the cookhouse, a big building of store houses and kitchens where all the meals are prepared. Here will be installed the latest ideas in mass-cooking, including special heating trays where the meals can be kept hot. There are separate kitchens for Chinese, Mohammedans, Hindus and Europeans.

The last block in the prison includes a well-equipped laundry, an assembly hall for church services and other gatherings, and the European convicts' cells, which are similar to the cells for Chinese. There is accommodation for 24 European prisoners.

At the extreme south end of the prison yard there is a large block of grounds which will in time become the prison garden, and from where it is expected most of the vegetables used for cooking will come.

Plain architecture has been observed in all the buildings, but while tiling has been used extensively in the washrooms and elsewhere, and the cell walls have been covered with cream stucco.

The design of the prison is such that it is practically impossible for a convict to escape. There is only one exit, and the walls cannot be scaled without ladders. An additional precaution is that patrol towers, fitted with searchlights, have been built on the four corners of the outside walls.

CINEMA NOTES

Topping even his sensational success "Blossom Time" the world-famous tenor Richard Tauber scores another outstanding triumph in his latest B.I.P. production, "Heart's Desire," which opens at the Queen's Theatre to-day. Not only is the picture a musical treat from beginning to end, but it carries a fine, modern and human story, picturesque backgrounds, delightful comedy interludes and splendid acting performances from Tauber himself and the cast in his support is composed of many British favourites in their own right. Opening in Vienna, the story reveals the simple happiness of a tenor in a beer-garden, popular with all, particularly his sweetheart, whom he has become infatuated, loves another, only to find his former surroundings, brings the picture to a delightful, musical and romantic close. As the singer, Tauber proves himself a splendid actor as well, but it is his singing that holds the audience spellbound throughout. He runs the gamut of music, singing lulling melodies including "Vienna, City of My Dreams," Viennese folk songs and glorious operatic arias, all with the same magnificent ease and in breath-taking style. Leonora Corbett is excellent as his leading lady, and other fine performances are offered by George Graves, Kathleen Kelly, Paul Graciz, Diana Napier and Carl Har-

"Old Hutch"
Wallace Beery, seen to great advantage in "Old Hutch," now showing at the King's Theatre. He gives one of his best character studies in the role of the town's lazy man who discovers a hidden fortune. He is ably supported by a strong cast including Cecilia Parker and Eric Linden. There is plenty of natural humor in the film, which moves along smoothly and provides first-class entertainment.

"Crash Donovan"
Do you crave excitement when you see a movie? Does the hope of adventure ride with you on your way to the theatre? Does the expectation of thrills make your spine tingle when an action scene begins on the screen? Does the possibility of romance give a film added interest for you? Then you want to see Jack Holt in Universal Picture "Crash Donovan" showing at the Oriental Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday. In this offering Jack Holt is starred as a hard-riding motor-cycle officer of the California Highway Patrol, who turns a roving pursuit of speeding motorists to engage in a hair-raising battle of wits with a band of smugglers. Pursuing the fleeing criminals at 80 miles an hour, the officers finally trap them in a country house and the climax vibrates with thrilling action. Never before has Holt appeared in a screenplay filled with such exciting dramatic incidents. The stars supporting cast includes Nan Gray, John King, Douglas Fowley, Edward Acuff and Hugh Buckner.

"Last of the Mohicans"
The men who made "The Count of Monte Cristo" have done it again. This time, Harry M. Goetz and Edward Small, the producers of Romance Pictures, have chosen to bring to the screen, with a magnificent cast, "The Last of the Mohicans." James Fenimore Cooper's immortal classic of the hand-to-hand struggle for a nation yet unborn, and have turned out another unforgettable picture which is top-notch entertainment as well as a film of truly epic proportions. The film is now at the Majestic Theatre. As depicted by one of the greatest casts in the memory of this reviewer, Cooper's colourful characters come to a warm and pulsating life on the screen. Brilliant performances are turned in by Randolph Scott as Hawkeye, the primitive man of the forest, whom Cooper made his hero; lovely Blinnie Barnes, who is ideally cast as Alice Munro the British Colonel's daughter, who loves him; Henry Wilcoxon, who plays the gallant Major Duncan Heyward, Hawkeye's rival for the heart of Alice; Bruce Cabot, who, with shaved scalp and a scar, makes a perfect Magua, the renegade Indian spy; pretty Heather Angel as Cora the sister of Alice, whose death leap from the heights of Lovers' Cliff is one of the big thrills of the picture; and Philip Reed as Uncas, the last of the Mohicans. Others who are outstanding are Robert Barrat as Chingachgook, the Mohican Chief; Hugh Buckner, as Colonel Munro, and Willard Robertson as the Colonial Captain Winthrop.

NANKING'S ARMY READY TO ATTACK

Foreigners of Sianfu Have Reached Safety

Nanking, Jan. 19.

The military drive against the Shensi rebels was due to begin to-day, following the announcement that the Government had decided to terminate the armistice at midnight.

This decision came after the presentation of a series of demands by Yang Hu-chen, although he had raised hopes of a peaceful settlement, by pledging his loyalty to Nanking on Saturday night. These hopes were rudely shattered when the nature of the demands, wholly unacceptable to the Government, was made known.

It is understood they are essentially the same as those indicated yesterday. The rebels demand that Communists be given garrison duty in Shensi and Kansu; that Chang Hsueh-liang be appointed Pacification Commissioner of this area; that Chang's and Yang's troops shall be solely responsible to their commanders; and that Nanking is to supply military equipment and cover expenses regularly.

Government troops, it is stated, have completed their concentrations and are now awaiting the order to swing into action against Yang. It is hoped that as soon as hostilities begin, Chang's troops in Shensi will break away from Yang and transfer their allegiance to the Government, leaving only Yang's 30,000 men and his Communist allies to be dealt with by Nanking. Chang's troops would probably be transferred to Anhwei.

The Government has concluded arrangements with Yu Hsueh-chung, who is still officially described as the Governor of Kansu, to take over Chang's troops in that province.—Reuter.

Foreigners Safe

Nanking, Jan. 19.

It was announced to-day that 75 foreigners have been evacuated from Sianfu by motor bus and have arrived at Tungkuang, on the Shensi-Honan border.

The Eurasia transport plane, which flew north from here yesterday to assist in evacuating the foreign residents of the war-threatened area, is expected to bring the five remaining refugees in the danger zone, three English and two Asians, to Loyang to-day.

Reuter's Peiping correspondent cables that the party of foreigners which arrived at Tungkuang yesterday, consisted of "all those desiring to leave Sianfu" according to an official message announcing their arrival.

Presumably the remaining five persons, mentioned above, had intended to remain at their posts.

Attaches Active

It is learned that Lieut.-Col. Lovat Fraser, British military attaché, and Capt. David Barrett, American assistant military attaché, flew to Sianfu from Loyang, by a Eurasia plane this morning, and persuaded the five who had intended to remain behind, to change their minds.

Capt. Ronald Scott, British assistant military attaché, accompanied the motor bus party from Sianfu to Tungkuang, and then returned to Sianfu, presumably to assist Lieut.-Col. Fraser.—Reuter.

STOP PRESS

H. K. To Seek Retention Of Governor

Regret was expressed at the Rotary Club meeting to-day at the impending departure from the Colony of H.E. Sir Andrew Caldecott.

The President, Mr. W. N. Thomas, said he understood that a number of public bodies proposed to make the strongest representations to the Secretary of State for Sir Andrew's retention as Governor of Hongkong. He added that the Rotary Club would join others in such representations.

NEW GOVERNOR FOR HONGKONG NAMED SIR ANDREW CALDECOTT TO TAKE POST IN CEYLON

The Colony will learn with surprise of the appointment of His Excellency Sir Andrew Caldecott, Kt., C.M.G., C.B.E., Governor of Hongkong, as Governor of Ceylon, in succession to Sir Edward Stubbs, G.C.M.G., who himself was a former Governor of Hongkong.

It is further announced that Sir Geoffrey Alexander Stafford Northcote, K.C.M.G., Governor of British Guiana, is to become the new Governor of Hongkong.

It is announced from Government House that His Excellency Sir Andrew and Lady Caldecott, who will return to England for a period of furlough before proceeding to Ceylon, will leave Hongkong on April 16 in the Empress of Japan. His Excellency will arrive in Ceylon about mid-October to assume the Governorship there.

The news was contained in Reuter and United Press messages from London this morning, it being intimated that Sir Edward Stubbs is retiring from the Governorship of Ceylon next September.

Sir Andrew Caldecott has been Governor of Hongkong for little more than a year, having arrived here to take up his post on December 12, 1935. During his Governorship, Sir Andrew has won immense popularity amongst all sections of the community, both by reason of his marked administrative ability and also because of his charm of personality. Hongkong will deeply regret his transfer, whilst at the same time congratulating him on his promotion. The Governorship of Ceylon, to which he has been appointed, is considered the "plum" of the Colonial Governorships. It carries a salary of £3,000 per annum, compared with £7,000 for the Governorship of Hongkong. Not only will Hongkong deplore the pending departure of Sir Andrew, but there will also be widespread regret felt at saying good-bye to Lady Caldecott, who has taken the deepest interest in Colony affairs during her residence in the Colony.

New Governor

Hongkong's new Governor, Sir Geoffrey Alexander Stafford Northcote, who is 56 years of age, has been Governor of British Guiana since 1934. He is a son of the Rev. Canon Hon. Arthur Francis Northcote, fourth son of the 1st Earl of Iddesleigh. He is married, his wife being formerly Miss Edith Juliet Mary Adams. There are three sons by the marriage. Sir Geoffrey was educated at Blundell's School and Balliol College, Oxford, where he secured his B.A. degree with honours and was Newton and Hulsh Exhibitioner. His Colonial service began in May, 1904, when he was appointed Assistant Collector, East African Protectorate. From 1904 to 1906, he was acting Collector and acting District Commissioner, South Kivu, whilst in the latter year he also served as Political Officer, Kisumu. He was a member of the Sleeping Sickness Commission during 1909-10, and in the latter year was again District Commissioner.

Other Posts

He was in charge of Kikuyu Province in 1911, and acting Provincial Commissioner from May to October, 1919. From then until July, 1920, he was acting Assistant Colonial Secretary, becoming Assistant Colonial Secretary in 1921, during which year and for several periods until 1923 he was acting Colonial Secretary. During July and August, 1923, Sir Geoffrey was Governor's Deputy, being a member of the Legislative Council and was again acting Colonial Secretary in 1925 and 1926. In February, 1927, he was appointed Chief Secretary of Rhodesia, with a seat on the Executive and Legislative Councils, and in 1930 was appointed Colonial Secretary of the Gold Coast, being acting Governor on several occasions until 1932. He remained at the Gold Coast until appointed Governor of British Guiana in 1934.

Sir Andrew's Career

Sir Andrew Caldecott, who was born in October, 1884, is a son of the late Rev. Andrew Caldecott, whose death occurred recently. He was educated at Uppingham and at Exeter College, Oxford, and was appointed a Cadet in the Federated Malay States in 1907. The whole of his Colonial career has been spent in the Malayan Civil Service, in which he has held numerous posts.

After serving as District Officer at Jelapang, he was appointed Controller of Labour in 1913, and in 1916 became Second Assistant Secretary to the Federal Secretary. Whilst on leave in England, he was seconded for special duty as Malayan Commissioner to the British Empire Exhibition in 1924-25. He became Town Planning Administrator, and State Valuer in 1926, and in the same year was appointed Chairman of the Housing and P.W.D. Enquiry Committee. He was again (Continued on Page 5.)

SLAYER'S IDENTITY SECURED FINGER-PRINTS GIVE CLUE

Los Angeles, Jan. 18.

It was established by a comparison of finger-prints found at Tacoma, Washington, and near the scene of the crime, according to officials.

STRIKE RIOTS IN MICHIGAN Roosevelt Attempting Quiet Intervention

Rioting is reported to have broken out at the General Motors Corporation plant in Flint, Michigan, late last night.—Reuter.

CONTINUED DEADLOCK

Detroit, Jan. 18.
The General Motors Corporation has issued the following statement on the strike crisis:

"There can be no bargaining until the factories are evacuated. The agreement made by the union to evacuate the plants on Monday has not been kept, as the strikers have not left the plant in Flint." Mr. Homer Martin, strikers' representative, told the press that plans for a conference between leaders of both sides were "off." No further conferences are scheduled either with the G.M.C. or Governor Frank Murphy.—Reuter.

PRESIDENT'S INTERVENTION

Washington, Jan. 18.
Sources closely connected with official circles here express the belief that President Roosevelt is quietly pouring oil on the troubled labour waters despite the official insistence on non-intervention.

They point out the following noteworthy developments: (1) Following a telephone conversation with the President, Governor Murphy induced the G.M.C. executive and the United Automobile Workers Association's representatives to confer on Monday. (This conference has now been cancelled.)

(2) Following a conference with President Roosevelt, Mr. G. L. Berry, representative of the labour section of the N.R.A., prepared to start for New York, "to see some G.M.C. officials." (3) Following a visit to the White House, Mr. Myron C. Taylor, the Chairman of U.S. Steel Corporation, made a public request for better co-operation between the management and labour.

(4) Following a conference with the President, Mr. E. F. McGrady, the Assistant Secretary of Labour, warned the Pacific Coast Shipowners (Continued on Page 5.)

Murder At Banquet In New York

New York, Jan. 19.

Police are questioning ten persons, still in their evening clothes, in an effort to identify the slayer of Frank Cicero, 33, official of a garment transportation company of Stamford, Conn., who was stabbed in a melee at a banquet attended by 67 guests last night.

Cicero was talking loudly during Mr. Grover Whalen's speech and, resenting shouted commands to "hush," threw a pitcher.

It started a riot, in which furniture and dishes were smashed, food upset, women knocked down. The fight ended when Cicero fell dead of a knife wound. The weapon was not found.—United Press.

REBELS AT MALAGA

Del Lano Continues Victorious March

ENORMOUS CASUALTIES SUFFERED IN SPAIN

Gibraltar, Jan. 19.

General Del Lano, leading the rebels on a victorious thrust towards Malaga, claims to have repulsed a Loyalist counter-attack at Marabella with heavy loss. On the Malaga front, he said, insurgents in recent days had slain 700 of their enemies.

"I can take Malaga whenever I desire and repair my boots with the skin of Malaga's chief leader," this fire-eating veteran asserted.

Rebel troops have entrenched themselves at Fuengirola, within sight of Malaga.—United Press.

Leftists Attack

Hendaye, Jan. 19.
Uncensored despatches state that Leftists are delivering a smashing offensive and have penetrated the outskirts of Teruel, 72 miles north-west of Valencia.

An uncensored message from Cadix says two battalions of Moorish troops, believed to comprise 1,800 men, have embarked in four steamers for Algiers.—United Press.

Barcelona Shelled

Barcelona, Jan. 19.
A Rightist warship, thought to be the Canarias, bombarded Barcelona, dropping 25 high explosive shells at the naval scaplane base to-day.

One shell struck the deck of a gasoline tanker, injuring an engineer. Shore batteries drove off the raider.—United Press.

Suffering Heavily

Madrid, Jan. 19.
Military experts estimate that Rightist losses for the past 24 hours are 1,200 men. Leftists have rushed liquid fire to all sections of the front and desperate fighting is continuing in the Clinico region.—United Press.

Rebels Progress

London, Jan. 18.
The smashing advance of the Rightist army under General Del Lano, in the south, which has covered approximately 25 miles towards Malaga in the past four days, constitutes the rebels' most important success in recent months.

But although he has passed Marbella and his troops have laid a mass in its main square, General Del Lano has still miles to advance before he comes to the outskirts of Malaga. While Government resistance thus far has been unusually ineffective, it will be no easy task to conquer the support at which he aims if the loyal lines stiffen.

Meanwhile, General Francisco Franco's statements indicate the probable slackening of attempts to capture Madrid by means of a frontal assault. Instead, he will likely make an effort to extend his lines around the capital. The investment of the city will be a lengthy process, it is thought.

Berlin and Rome continue to delay their replies to the Franco-British appeal for a decision respecting non-intervention, and the hundreds of foreign volunteers continue to pour into Spain. It is reliably stated that during the past few days at least 4,000 have landed to join the insurgents and 2,000 have crossed the French frontier to assist the Leftists.

Enormous Casualties

Neutral observers in Paris estimate that the first six months of the Spanish war have cost the republic at least 250,000 casualties, plus half the national wealth. It is estimated the lost national income from labour, commerce and farming averages about 1,000,000,000 pesetas weekly. At least 1,200 Frenchmen, and the same number of Russians, Germans and Italians are estimated to have perished on the battlefield.

At the end of 25 weeks of fighting the insurgents claim full or partial control of 32 provinces, plus Spanish Morocco, the Balearic and Canary Islands.

Winter is the time when you most need to keep fit. Try these

EXERCISES

a specially-
designed course:
these are the first three

MOST difficult part of physical exercises is doing them every day. It's easier in winter; they give you a good start to a cold day by getting all your circulation going.

Here are the first three of a series of 15 exercises extremely easy to do, which are good for you in every way.

If you're strong-minded enough, to do them every day without fail this is what they'll do for you. Give you a good carriage, a clear complexion, a bright outlook and a love of life—in other words, you'll feel and look well and happy.

Do them in front of an open window, however cold it is. Use all the energy you have; the exercise is doing you good when it makes you feel a bit tired.

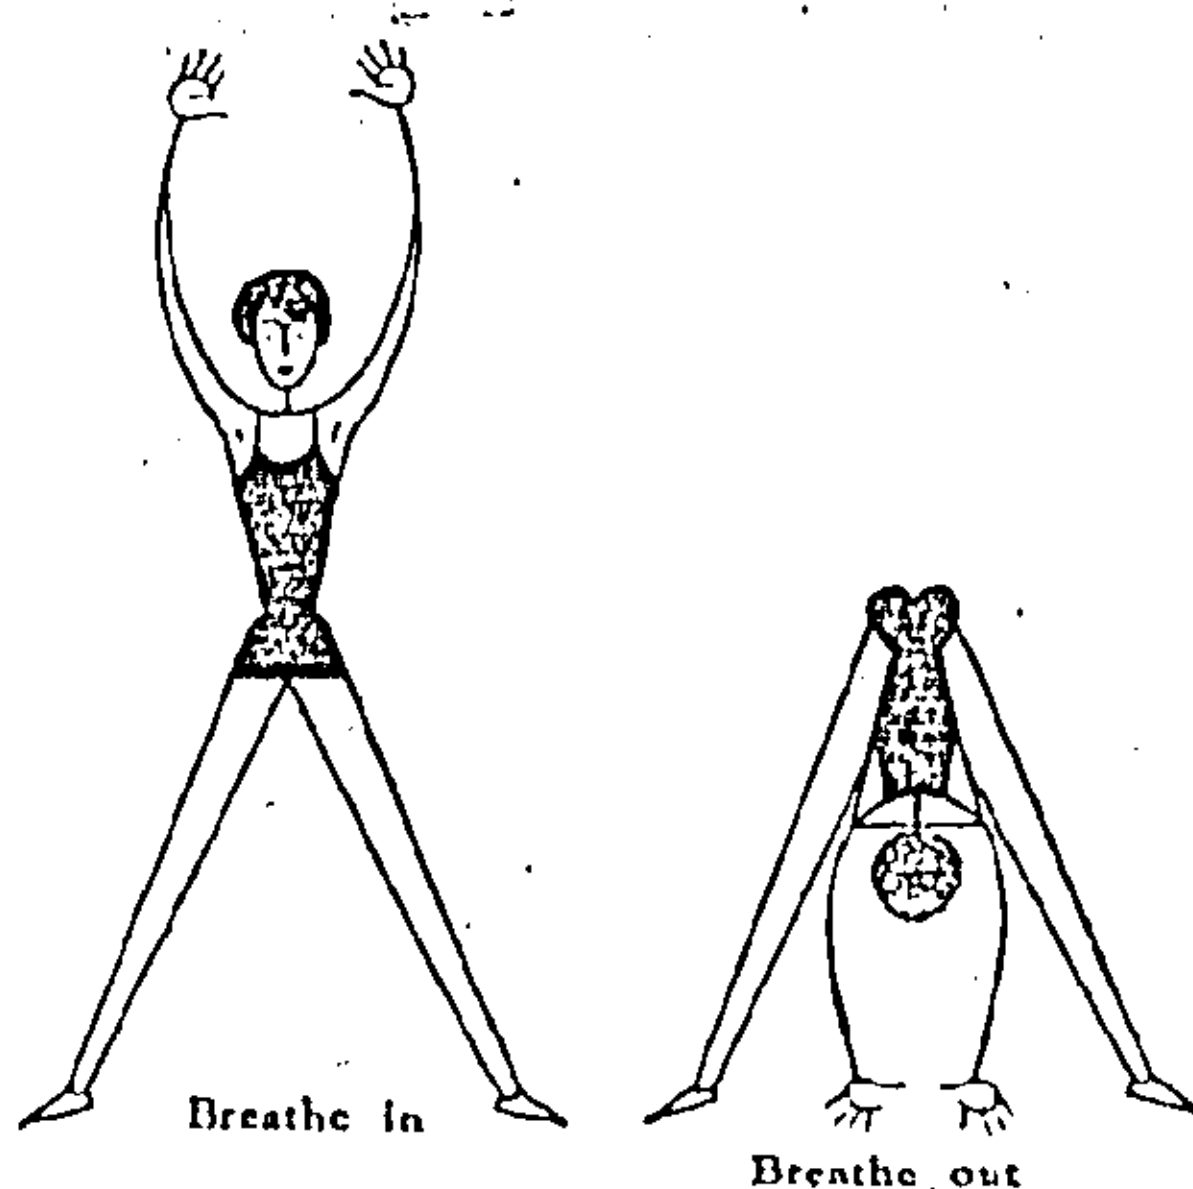

Breathe in through your nose, out through your mouth, and take four or five deep breaths before you start every day.

Do each exercise 10 times (six or eight for the first days) and not so fast that you get out of breath.

You'll only begin to feel the benefit of them when you've been doing them regularly for a bit.

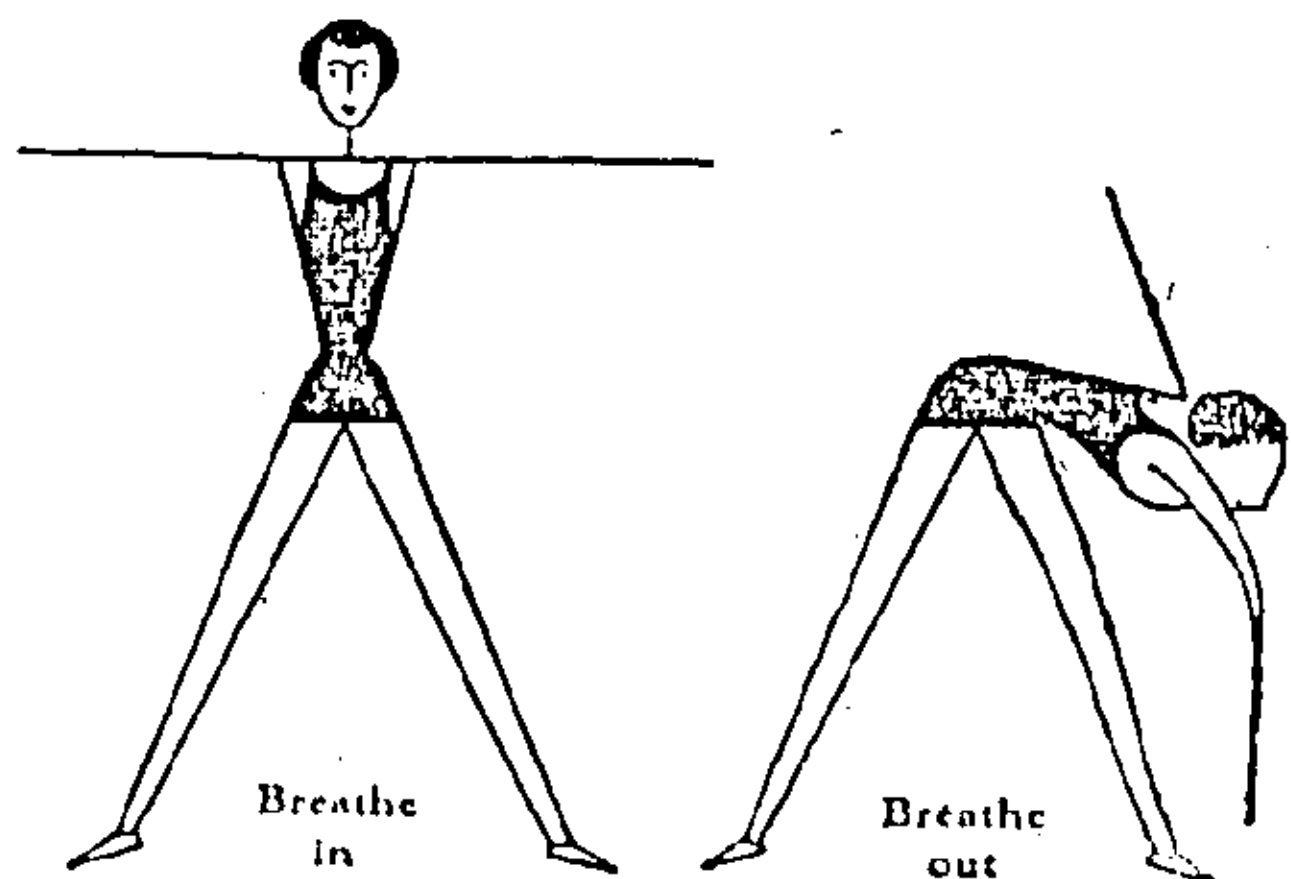

The three exercises stretch your back and thigh muscles to their fullest limit. They will make your legs, body, and particularly the small of your back supple and strong.

- 1 Stand with your feet apart, your arms straight out above your head, and touch the ground with the palms of your hands without bending your knees.
- 2 Feet apart, arms stretched straight out to the side, touch in turn your right foot with your left hand and your left foot with your right hand. Don't bend your knees; stretch your body as much as possible.

Brighten up your home with fish

—it's not nearly so silly
as it sounds

THEY died young, those poor fish of our nursery days—anaemic gold fellows making sad, fishy faces while they gorged on ants' eggs and served a life sentence in narrow glass bowls.

But fish farming to-day, once you know a thing or two, is no trouble at all. In a properly kept aquarium even the water does not need changing. The fish and the plants and the light all maintain a friendly balance of life on their own.

Remember that fish prefer the shady side of life. Place your aquarium so that they see light but not the sun. A window facing north is the very thing. Their food comes in tins all ready for serving, costs from 6d. to 9d.

Though all fish are cold-blooded, those from the tropics need an electric heater thermostatically controlled. This involves extra expense, but you can have a more cosmopolitan gathering—Guppy, Paradise fish, Sailfins, and Zebra fish.

Cold-water fish, on the other hand, should have at least a gallon of water to every inch of fish. Four goldfish, therefore, measuring one and a half inches (this is not a problem sum) would need six gallons of water.

There are many aquariums to choose from. You can have a modest glass affair ranging, according to size, from a few cents to a few dollars.

Then there are elegant apartments with fittings of stainless steel, chromium, burnished copper, bronze or enamel to harmonise with your own particular colour scheme. For these you can pay anything up to $50.

Fishes are smart for furnishing in America. They'll be decorative wherever you put them here, too.

Before fishes move into their glass house it should be properly furnished and planted out for several days. First comes a layer of aquarium compost for the base of the tank. A five-pound bag costs a few cents. Over this goes coarse aquarium sand, specially sterilised and filtered.

Plants should be firmly planted. Ludwigia, Sagittaria, Vallisneria and Elodea Crispata are a few suggestions and are probably procurable in Hongkong. Realistic, colourful rocks supply the local colour. You can pick them up for next to nothing at a big store.

And now for the fish themselves. Why not start off with goldfish, primrose fish and golden orfe, and perhaps the more expensive baby fantails, shubunkins, peacock-eyed bass and diamond bass, all under half a crown each?

Dumplings Are Delicious Corn Meal Dumplings

THESE come from America. The measures are break-fastcupfuls. Mix half a cupful of Indian Corn Meal with a cupful and a half of boiling water, adding a tablespoonful of finely chopped onion and a teaspoonful of salt.

Steam for a couple of hours in a double saucepan, then cool and add two slightly beaten eggs and a tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley.

Shape into small balls, roll them in flour and cook them for ten minutes in boiling soup.

Sweet Dumplings

I AM told these are Chinese. Cream two tablespoonfuls of lard with a breakfastcupful of sugar, add half a pound of freshly grated coconut and a quarter of a pound of chopped almonds. Now mix in half a pound of finely mashed potato and a pound of flour, and make the mixture into small balls and fry them brown in hot fat.

DON'T BELIEVE IT!

—says the Doctor.

HEARSAY, not knowledge, is the basis of many everyday "facts," says Dr. August A. Thomsen, lecturer in medicine at New York University. To-day he demolishes the popular fallacies.

That it is sensible to expose children to so-called children's diseases (measles, whooping-cough, chicken-pox, and so on), on the assumption that they will get them anyway.

The notion is wholly fallacious, because (1) a mild case may give rise to a serious one; (2) it is not quite true that all should have these ailments at some period of their existence; (3) the seriousness of such ailments is greater, the younger the child; (4) one attack does not necessarily afford protection from a second; and (5) the liability to attack lessens with age.

It should be kept in mind that even when children survive the attacks of these diseases there is always the great danger that some permanent defect may remain, for example, impaired kidneys, or chronic heart disease.

As a result of an attack of scarlet fever at the age of 10 months, Helen Keller was deprived of her senses of sight, hearing and smell.

That reading light must, to be most effective, come from over the left shoulder.

It has been shown by experiment that it does not matter from where the light comes, provided that no shadows are cast upon the page, and that the rays from the light do not enter the eye. The light should be at least 20 degrees away from the direct line of sight, and should be so placed to avoid direct reflections from glossy pages.

The best reading light is that termed "indirect," in which the source of light is hidden, and the rays thrown on to the ceiling. This is similar in effect to daylight.

Research in England has determined a ruling that the weakest light suitable for reading or other close work is eight foot-candles. This means the amount of light that would fall upon a page one foot away from eight standard candles closely grouped.

This is equivalent to the amount of light obtained from a 100-watt unshaded electric lamp, placed two feet from the page. Even more light would still be beneficial, but less light invariably results in a strain of the seeing apparatus, producing a tired feeling of the eyes and sleepiness.

That only so-called weak-willed people can be hypnotised, and that the hypnotist uses great powers of mind and will.

Hypnotism is popularly considered to be a mysterious psychological process by which certain persons possess marvellous powers over the minds and wills of others. It is also incorrectly thought that a new source of energy is transferred to the hypnotised subject from the strong personality of the operator, and that this new strength of mind and body enables him to overcome obstacles ordinarily insurmountable.

Another popular notion is that one can be cured of a habit by being hypnotised and given opposing suggestions. And there are many others.

As a matter of fact, there is nothing mysterious about hypnotism. It is merely a form of artificial sleep. Anyone could hypnotise if he learned a few simple principles. And anyone can be hypnotised provided he knows how to co-operate with the hypnotist.

Dr. James J. Walsh, the eminent psychologist, tells us that hypnotism is "merely a state of mental absorption in which all distracting thoughts are for the moment warded off, and only such thoughts as are suggested by the hypnotist reach the consciousness of the patient."

"12 DAYS AGO WE'D 120 MEN—NOW 37"

Winston Churchill's Nephew Sends Graphic War Message

'WE SHALL WIN —BUT WHAT A VICTORY'

Albacete, Dec. 28.

ESMOND ROMILLY, 18-year-old nephew of Mr. Winston Churchill, and a member of one of Britain's oldest families, is winning laurels for his gallantry under fire while serving in the International Brigade, which is fighting for the Spanish Government in defence of Madrid.

Here, in his own words, is a vivid description of life in the front line.

Ordeal Under Fire

WE'VE just returned after 12 days on the Madrid front. Experiences to date:—

Air bombing of our positions;
Crossing open-ploughed fields under machine-gun and rifle fire;

Shelling from our own tanks;
Too much death about everywhere. . . .

Our company started 12 days ago with 120 men. Present strength 37.

This Conversation Piece sums up the way the war is being fought:—

"Can you give me a light for my hand grenade?"

"Sorry, old man, no matches. . . ."

This is the land of manna. Sometimes one goes to the wrong front and back again. Madrid, of course, does not look too bright—with continual air raids and heavy bombardment.

Three of our people have been killed by dum-bum bullets.

Yesterday in Madrid we saw a British Parliamentary delegation. They seemed amazingly out of place.

—Forces and Liberals inquiring about the hot coffee.

The section we're in is German. Some of them are desperately brave. Their idea is to walk in front of the tanks like men with red flags in front of trains in 1840.

Worst experience so far—digging in behind trees in a ploughed field under machine-gun fire.

No Surrender

Then we had the order to duck back to cover. Slipped in a shell hole, and fell—then a shattering roar which nearly blew my ear columns to pieces. It was one of our own tanks firing from five yards behind me.

Most of the people here have now given up the idea that they will ever return to Britain. The figures in our own company tell why.

Naturally we take prisoners, but everyone on our side would shoot himself rather than be taken prisoner.

When we came here I thought we should be in trenches, but there are none at all in our sector.

Whatever the position elsewhere, in our place in the last action we had definitely advanced more than a kilometre during the whole time.

The Government aeroplanes seem to be better now, and chase the enemy bombers away when they appear. Food comes through well.

The militia is officially no more, and I am now, therefore, a member of the Spanish Republican Army. I am sure we shall win, however. . . . But what a victory it will be.

"Heartbeat Control" in Trance

The claim of Indian mystics to have gained control of their heart-beats by prolonged spiritual exercises has been substantiated, according to two French doctors, C. Laubry and T. Brosse.

The doctors made a special visit to India to take records of the pulse and breathing of Yogis during their meditation, says the British Medical Journal.

An electric record of the heartbeats during the trance showed that the manner in which the heart acted was completely altered. Then, when the Yogi quietly announced he had won control of the heart, the record suddenly became normal. At times the pulse of the wrist vanished.

After taking a deep breath the Yogi could remain for five minutes without drawing another.

TWICE AS MANY GERMAN U-BOATS AS IN 1914

EARLY this year Germany will have a submarine fleet twice as large as she had at the outbreak of the war in 1914.

The Naval Year Book for 1937 just published, says, the fleet will include twenty-four U-boats of 250 tons, ten of 500 tons, and two of 712 tons each.

HOW LORD PEEL ESCAPED KIDNAP

Jerusalem, Jan. 10.

IT was established to-day that a plot to kidnap Earl Peel, chairman of the royal commission on the Palestine revolt, lay behind the hold-up by Arabs on the Jericho road last night.

Lord Peel escaped by less than half an hour.

Three Arabs, armed with modern revolvers, carried out the hold-up among the Judean hills just outside Jerusalem.

Lord Peel was returning from Jericho.

The brigands piled up large rocks in the road under the limestone cliffs. Five cars were held up, all containing British residents.

An Australian ex-officer employed by the Palestine Government was in one car.

When he swore at a brigand who wanted to take his gun away the raiders made him take off his coat, waistcoat and shirt, and stand shivering in the mountain air with a revolver pointed at him.

An English "eye-witness" of the hold-up said: "Just as we came round the bend we saw the road blocked with boulders."

"The Arabs asked, 'Are you Jews?' We said 'No.' Had been Jews they would have shot us."

"I believe they knew that Lord Peel was returning this way."

WOMAN ACCUSED OF ARMS PLOT

French Foreign Office Arrest

Paris, Jan. 10.

A SENSATION was caused in French diplomatic circles to-day by the arrest of Mlle. Suzanne Linder, one of the most trusted secretaries at the French Foreign Office, on a charge of forging documents to facilitate the export of arms to the Spanish Reds.

Michael Rosenfeld, known to be her friend—a wealthy resident of one of the most fashionable parts of Paris—has also been arrested for alleged complicity.

I understand that after the arrest of Rosenfeld an agent of the Spanish Red Government, carrying with him full powers for the purchase of war material, was found in his office in the Avenue Carnot, in the Etoile district, says a Correspondent.

SHIPLOAD OF ARMS

The formal charges against the arrested persons are:

Rosenfeld—Usage of false passports and failure to comply with an expulsion order.

Mlle. Linder—Forgery of public documents and imitation of important signatures.

It is alleged that the proposed plot was to permit the departure from a French port for Mexico of a large shipload of arms destined later for Spain.

A steamer which was at anchor in Marseilles was at first unable to leave. Then suddenly permission arrived from Paris.

HYPNOTIC EYES

Mlle. Linder, a blonde, who is described as having pale blue "hypnotic" eyes, is a niece of the late M. Philippe Berthelot, former Secretary-General to the French Foreign Ministry and the power behind Mr. Briand during his long tenure of the Foreign Ministry.

A close friend of Mlle. Linder to-night told me some details of her early life.

Joining the staff as a girl, she has been a secretary in vital departments of the French Foreign Office for nearly a quarter of a century.

GOLDEN HAIR

"Many diplomats of 20 years ago will remember vividly the slim, meticulously dressed girl with the long golden hair," I was told.

"Of striking appearance, and always perfectly dressed, Mlle. Linder quickly made influential friends, and within a few years was a sort of power in French diplomacy, and became a well-known figure in diplomatic and political circles."

Some years ago at an inquiry in connection with certain documents at the Foreign Office she was asked some pointed questions, but was cleared.

Rosenfeld is a man of 35 who has described himself to his friends as "the modern Sir Basil Zaharoff." Good looking and always well dressed, he had a suite at a famous hotel in the centre of Paris.

Officer To Pay His Wife Maintenance

Melbourne, Jan. 10.

Mrs. Dewar, wife of Lieutenant Dewar, an Australian Army officer, has been awarded a maintenance allowance of 50s. a week against her husband.

Lieutenant Dewar was the officer who travelled to Australia from India in the same ship as Mrs. M. M. Freer, whose admission to Australia was banned.

Mrs. Freer's exclusion caused controversy, but the ban was maintained and she went to New Zealand.

Chinese Rail Order Goes To Germany

Berlin, Jan. 10.

Germany has obtained a £2,333,000 railway order from China. The order is on a credit basis. Germany will grant China a loan bearing six per cent. interest and repayable between 1942 and 1946.

The German firms sharing in the contract include Krupp, Schunk, Otto Wolf and Feroch. They will rebuild the Peking-Hankow line, and lay a railway between Chuchow (Hunan Province) and Kweliang (Kweichow Province).

PRINCESS ELIZABETH MAY GO TO INDIA

THERE is every likelihood that the King and Queen will spend Christmas next year in India.

Plans are being made to hold the Coronation Durbar at Delhi next December. There is a suggestion that Princess Elizabeth may accompany her parents and so see part of the Empire over which she may one day reign, but nothing definite has been decided.

Details arranged for Edward VIII's visit have had to be drastically revised, and it will be some time before the preliminary arrangements have been completed.

In the absence of the King and Queen in India a Council of State consisting of Queen Mary, the Duke of Gloucester, and the Duke of Kent will be set up.

BETTER NATIONAL ANTHEM

Coronation Provides Chance
To "Purge The Blots"

A Manchester correspondent of the Observer writes:—

The Coronation festivities, now so close at hand, are likely to be on a greater scale than ever in the history of our Empire, and our National Anthem will be called for in numerous gatherings, not only of people of our own blood, but of our fellow-citizens of every race, creed, and colour throughout the King's Dominions, and I write to suggest that now, at the crowning of our new King, is the time to make at least some slight improvement in the wording of the Anthem, and to purge it of some of its great blots.

Consider that very which runs:—
O! Lord our God arise,
Scatter his enemies
And make them fall!
Confound their politics,
Frustrate their knavish tricks,

and remember at the same time that this is supposed to be a solemn prayer to God for the preservation of our King.

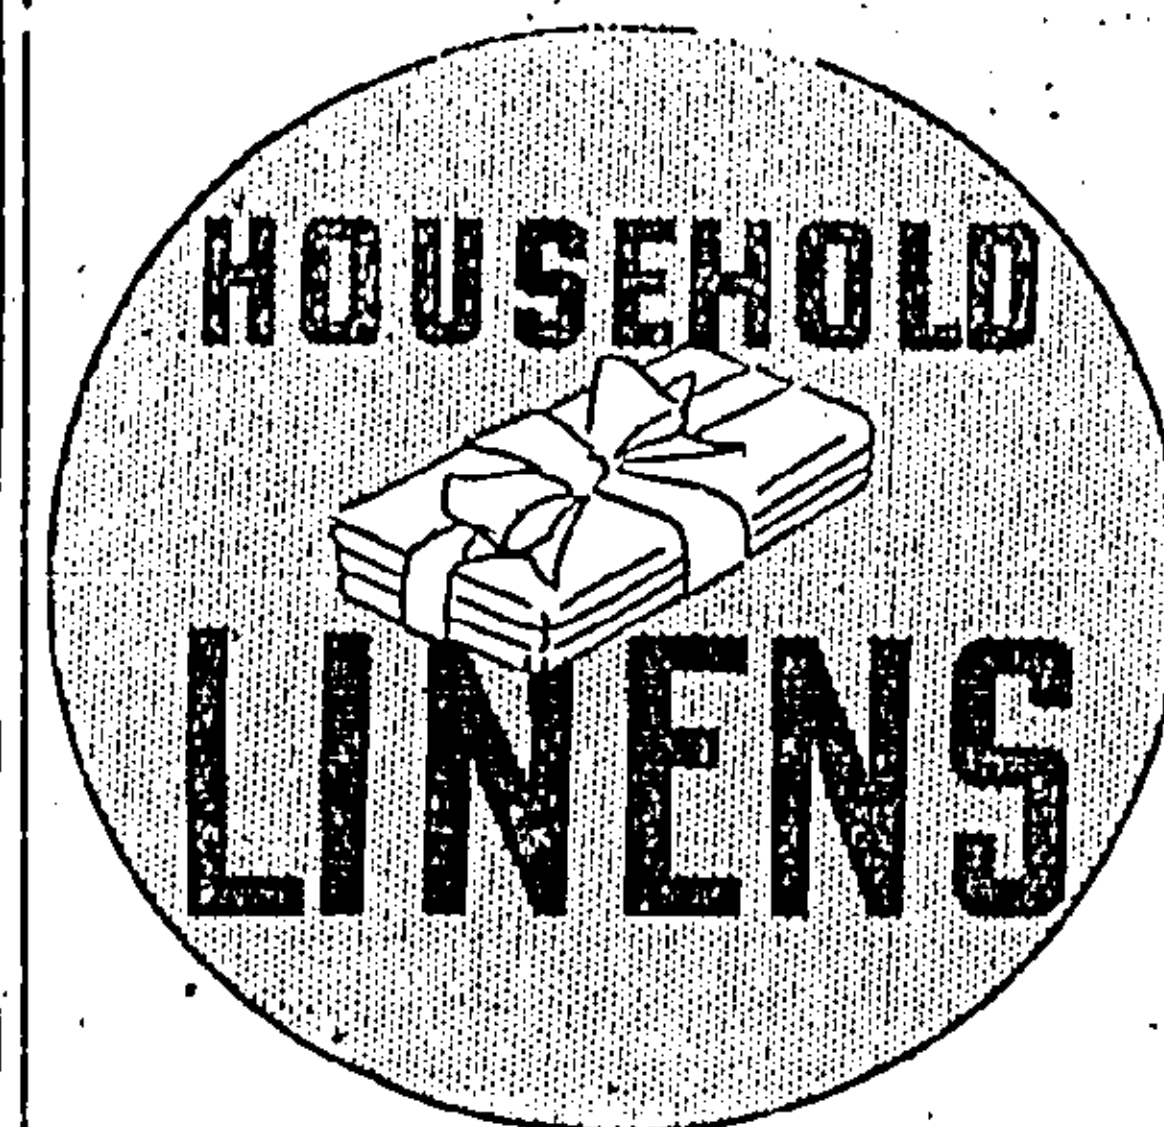

Is such language worthy of this great nation and of that high tradition for good taste with which the whole world so recently has honoured us? To me it seems gross vulgarity, and should be expelled immediately from our national anthology.

I do not think the nation wants an entirely new Anthem. The present one, slightly but fittingly altered, would be accepted gladly, and a couple of verses would be enough.

Will no one, amongst the thousands so well qualified to do so, take up the task? I am only an ordinary unknown man and have no wish whatever to press my ideas upon my fellows, but I give here a short amended version, hoping that it may induce some able writer to suggest a thoroughly satisfactory National Anthem suitable for people of all races, religions, and classes in the Empire.

God save our chosen King!
God bless our lawful King!
God save the King!
Crown him victorious,
Gracious and glorious,
Wise to reign over us,
God save the King!
Thy richest gifts in store
On him be pleased to pour,
Oh! bless his reign!
May he our laws defend,
And, to his journey's end,
Lord, with Thy grace attend
And bless our King.

WILL SERVE IN NEW GAOL

YEAR'S SENTENCE FOR ASSAULT

Found guilty by the jury on a charge of assault with intent to rob, Wong Chau, 25, street cooler, was at the Criminal Sessions this morning, sentenced to 12 months' hard labour by the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor.

Accused was also charged with common assault. He pleaded guilty to this count and was sentenced to three months' hard labour, concurrent.

Mr. E. H. Williams, Assistant Attorney-General, appeared for the prosecution. The following comprised the jury: Messrs. G. Anderson (foreman), W. S. Hillier, A. L. S. Reid, D. Mackenzie, Wong Tat-ping, W. F. Ford and Wong Oi-kut.

Mr. Williams said the complainant, Ngai Kwai-hing was 24 years of age and was the son of an owner of a vegetable stall in Waterloo Road. He was a student in Canton and had come down about three weeks before the day of the incident, December 18, to assist his father in collecting accounts.

About 4 p.m. on the day in question he went out to collect various sums from stall-holders who owed his father money, carrying with him a canvas bag. After he had collected $10.20, he returned to his father's stall, but on turning round the corner of Arrian Street, he was set upon by a man who came up from behind.

At the same time another man, the accused, came up from his left side and attempted to snatch the canvas bag from him. Ngai struggled with his assailants, and accused struck him on the left arm, apparently with the intention of forcing him to let go his hold on the bag.

Finding that they could not snatch the bag, the men attempted to run away. Accused was chased by complainant and after running a short distance, he was arrested by a Chinese constable.

When formally charged, accused said he assaulted complainant on the instructions of a man named Lam Shi who promised him $2 for doing so. He denied he had intended to rob complainant.

Complainant gave evidence, corroborating what counsel had said, after which Ngai Kwai-hing, the father, testified that he had never seen accused before.

After formal evidence had been given by Liu Sing, Constable C38, who arrested accused, Inspector A. H. Elston, and Leung Kin-wing, Police interpreter, prisoner made a statement from the dock, reiterating what he had said at the Police Station.

Without retiring, the jury found prisoner guilty, and in passing sentence, His Lordship said: You will spend the next twelve months in the new prison at Stanley with hard labour.

Accused admitted two previous convictions for larceny.

DIED IN HOUSE OF DETENTION

NATURAL CAUSES VERDICT

A month and a half after he had been committed to the House of Detention for being a destitute, an Indian named Lall Singh, aged 35, died. At the Central Magistracy this morning, Mr. K. Keen sitting as Coroner conducted an inquiry into the man's death.

The Chief Warder of Victoria Gaol, Mr. H. Barrett, stated that deceased was committed to the House of Detention on December 1 and died in the Gaol Hospital on January 17.

Dr. G. I. Shaw, medical officer of the Gaol, said he first examined deceased on December 2 last and found that the man was suffering from a chronic form of enteritis. His condition was very poor. The man was admitted to the Gaol Hospital on the same day and died at 3.50 a.m. on January 17. A post mortem was performed and cause of death was found to be tuberculous enteritis.

A verdict of death from natural causes, was returned by a jury comprising Messrs. Harold Seth (foreman), Chan Yau-ko, and Kwan Shau-lung.

TAILOR SENT TO PRISON

PICKED POCKET OF PEDESTRIAN

Lam Chi, aged 33, a tailor, was charged before Mr. J. A. Fraser at the Central Magistracy this morning with the larceny of $100 in Hong-kong currency from Yung Yim-sum, aged 37, a shop-keeper, in Queen's Street near Des Voeux Road West on Monday.

Inspector M. H. Hourihan, prosecuting, said that about 2 p.m. yesterday, Yung was walking along the street when defendant brushed past him. He felt a slight touch at his pocket, and on putting his hand in, found the $100 to have disappeared. Defendant was then walking away in front, and Yung suspected him and caught him.

Lam threw the notes to the ground, broke free from the complainant, commenced to run away. Yung gave chase after picking up his money, and with the help of detective C315, arrested defendant. Inspector Hourihan handed up defendant's police record, which showed that he was a time-expired banished.

Defendant pleaded for leniency, and said he had taken the money on the spur of the moment.

Sentence of six weeks' hard labour was imposed.

Said the I.L.A.:—"In the event of your notifying us that this plan is acceptable to you, the plan will be submitted in referendum to the executive board for their favourable recommendation."

Another Estimate

London, Jan. 18.

Over 40,000 foreigners are at present fighting for the Spanish Government and roughly 32,000 for General Franco, according to the latest estimates compiled here.

It is believed Russians in Spain do not exceed 1,000 and that almost all of them are technicians. The precise number of French volunteers is unknown, but it is reported to be as high as 20,000. The remainder of foreigners on the Government side are of various European nationalities, including dissident Germans, Italians and probably 1,000 British.

The bulk of the Government's foreign volunteers are without military training, but General Franco's foreign contingent, allegedly 12,000 Germans and 20,000 Italians, are mostly trained.—Reuter.

NOTHING CLEANS TEETH

LIKE AN Antiseptic TOOTH POWDER

...ASK YOUR DENTIST

MANY THINGS will help to keep teeth clean ... but nothing will find its way into hidden margins of the gums and teeth like an antiseptic tooth powder. These lodging-places for food particles and bacteria are just the spots where most tooth decay sets in. Vince ... the antiseptic tooth powder ... is a real "trouble shooter." Vince goes after the hardest jobs in your mouth ... gets places where a tooth brush cannot reach no matter how you scrub.

HERE'S HOW VINCE WORKS

On your brush Vince looks like any other tooth powder. But in your mouth, in contact with moisture, thousands of tiny bubbles of oxygen are released in a pleasant antiseptic cleansing action which reaches every part of your mouth. Vince penetrates between your teeth and removes clinging food particles. It gets under the margins of the gums and by its alkaline action Vince neutralizes the bacteria that cause most tooth decay. All the while, gently cleaning hidden surfaces, liquefying and removing tooth discoloration. You'll enjoy a new sensation of mouth freshness when you use Vince.

Vince is on sale at all drug stores. Try it.

ECONOMY NOTE: The antiseptic action of Vince makes this same powder an ideal mouth wash and gargle, as well as a tooth powder. Use one package of Vince for all three purposes and save.

NOT THE BEST METHOD

Is disregard of solemn obligations the right or only way of rectifying grievances and inequalities among the nations? This question is raised by the German announcement that the Kiel Canal, which was internationalised under the Treaty of Versailles, is no longer to be open to foreign warships. The move has not caused surprise, as it is regarded as an inevitable consequence of the denunciation of the navigation clauses of the Peace Treaty by Germany in November last. Admitting that the matter is not of first-class importance, apprehension is none the less felt at the tactics once again adopted by Germany in getting rid of irksome restrictions. Such methods definitely strike a blow at the sanctity of treaty obligations, which is not only a fundamental principle of the Covenant of the League of Nations but which must be the basis of any system of international law. Germany's answer would be that the treaty obligations which she is casting aside are unfair and place her in a position of inferiority; that she was ready in the past to press her claims to equality of status in a reasonable and open manner; that all her pleas were ignored; and, therefore, the only road open to her, to secure justice, was to wash her hands of the Disarmament Conference, break away from the League of Nations, denounce her disarmament clauses of the Peace Treaty, re-occupy the demilitarised zone of the Rhineland, and, in general, take all that she wanted by other than diplomatic means. Few would deny that there is, in fact, a substratum of truth in these arguments, since many things have been done since the Great War to try Germany's patience. Nevertheless, Germany has also proved, on occasions, an awkward customer in negotiations and has sometimes broken off discussions at the very moment when they seemed likely to bear fruit. In the case of the waterways, Mr. Eden recently pointed out that negotiations for a change in the regime were actually proceeding and had already met with a large measure of success. During the past year, abundant evidence has been provided that

SCIENCE OF
THE STARS

Like all Social Sciences,
Astrology is Based on
Empirical Laws, says
K. B. VAIDYA

IN an article reproduced from a London paper in the Telegraph of January 11 last embodying a review of a book called "You and Your Star" by that World-famous Seer, "Cheiro," the venerable science of Astrology has been treated to a feast of ridicule by the reviewer of the book and is made to appear as if it is one of the hoaxes played on humanity through centuries of its existence.

In doing this, however, the reviewer has not been able to display a sense of critical talent and has betrayed a definite lack of understanding the very basis and scope of the science. And above all what is lacking grievously in the reviewer is the sympathy with his subject which any reviewer must bring to bear on the subject which he presumes to criticise.

In the article referred to above, the writer has not in the first place understood his subject at all and landed himself in a ridiculous position of hopelessly mixing together Astrology and Numerology in his treatment.

Though there is a large amount of correlation between Astrology (Science of the Planets and Stars) and Numerology (Science of Numbers) and although each of the numbers has been assigned to a particular planet, it should be understood that each of the planets or stars has to be expressed through a sign of the Zodiac in which he may be placed in any nativity (horoscope of a person) cast for the exact time of birth, while each of the numbers has to be interpreted in relation to the month and the year concerned with each person.

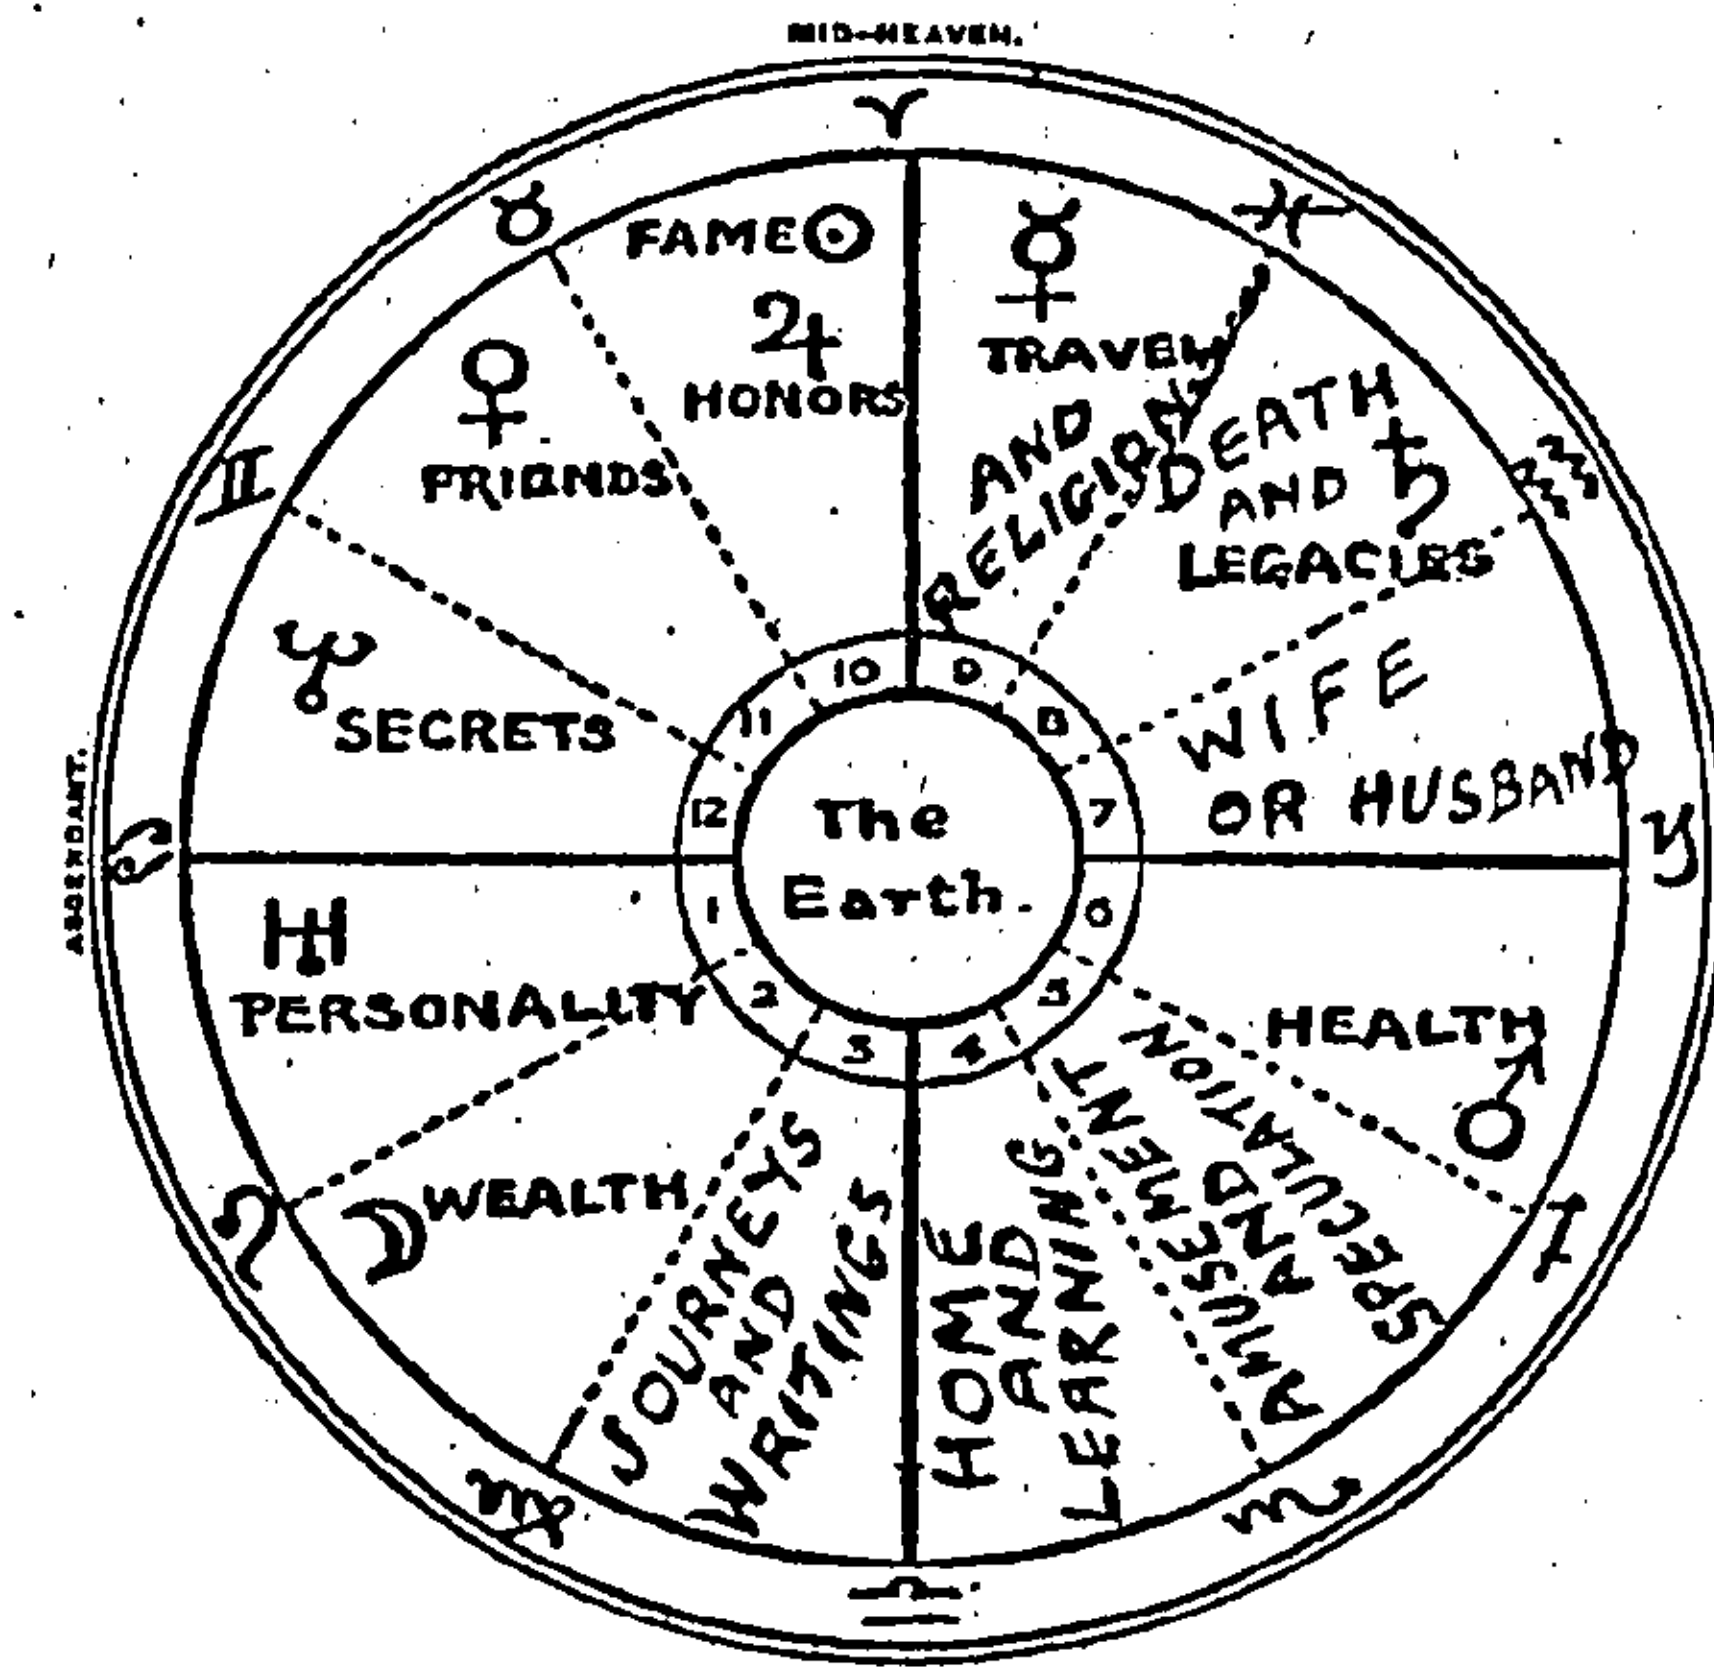

Consequently when the final interpretation of their effects on human beings is to be considered, there are different methods and different rules usually applied in the case of the two sciences.

But the reviewer has not even touched the fringe of Astrology and has concentrated his light-hearted criticism to Numerology on the false impression that Numerology is Astrology itself. This is obviously as ridiculous as to say that a room of a house is the house itself. (Incidentally, the writer of that article has not neglected to take whatever credit there is for himself of the delineation given for persons born in April.)

In the same way, Astrology is not Palmistry with which it is so often wrongly mixed up, as Palmistry concerns itself with the study of the lines and mounts on man's palms and of the formation of man's hands and their fingers.

THE article in question, however, shows how attempts are made to discredit the science even in the present times of enlightenment. And just as a few quacks have done the science incalculable harm, so have reck-social sciences it can never be considered as perfect. If, therefore, the sun's rays have so much power on human

"peaceful change" can be achieved by friendly negotiation. Turkey behaved in a perfectly correct way in asking for the revision of the Straits Convention, with the result that a satisfactory agreement was reached at Montreux. Great Britain and Egypt were able to settle their longstanding differences by similar methods. Blunderbuss diplomacy is not the only way to settle international disputes. It is, in fact, the least satisfactory way, since it inevitably stirs up friction, suspicion and hostility.

In Metaphysics, in Logic, in Psychology and even in Sociology and Economics, we find the same basis and method of procedure as in Astrology, and if these other sciences deserve to be man's attention, we do not see why Astrology which follows the same method should not.

In Astrology, besides, there is the co-mingling of the two different bodies—those of men on this earth and of the astral beings in the ether—and the influences of these bodies on human mind and body should in reality form the basis of an interesting study.

The ancient people who were the children of Nature applied themselves to this interesting study and have, by long observations and experiences, arrived at their conclusions which form the basis of further continuous study. Thus if the science of Astronomy has to be relied upon, then the science of Astrology also makes a strong claim for man's acceptance. And just as the Sun's rising and setting, or the appearance or disappearance of Halley's Comet has been explained by centuries of observation that is due to the rotation of the earth both on its axis and round the sun, so are the observations of the students of Astrology accepted about the effect of the astral beings on men on this earth.

Nothing in the Universe is without purpose, and therefore do people think that the stars and planets exist in the sky without any purpose? Even up to the time of Galileo and Copernicus it was not accepted in Astronomy that the earth is revolving or that it is round and that it has magnetic power to attract bodies thrown away from it, and Galileo had to suffer as a heretic. But now we accept these as undeniable truths. So is the case with Astrological laws.

IF any tangible proofs about the effects of the stars and planets on the physical world are to be given, it is to be noted that the tides of the sea are caused by the rise and setting of the moon; that at the time of high tide, the blood from a wound oozes out on a man's body would ooze out in larger quantities than at the low tide; that the sunflower (sun-lotus) opens up when the sun rises, and closes itself automatically when the sun sets and follows the direction of the sun's course throughout the day; that the moon proceeds on the scientific method of laying down laws the moon; and that the sun's rays are considered as the most powerful source of health and healing. And if any further proofs are necessary, it may be mentioned that the very existence of the animal and vegetable kingdoms is due to the sun's rays without which there will be no life.

THE main fact which should be taken into consideration is that Astrology like all other non-physical and non-exact sciences, is based on experience of ages. It is not an exact science like Chemistry and Physics wherein results can be proved by experiments. Like other social and mental sciences, it proceeds on the scientific method of laying down laws the moon; and that the sun's rays are considered as the most powerful source of health and healing. And if any further proofs are necessary, it may be mentioned that the very existence of the animal and vegetable kingdoms is due to the sun's rays without which there will be no life.

Centuries of intensive and extensive study has raised Astrology to a high level in non-experimental sciences, and if people apply themselves sympathetically to a proper study of it, they will find enough interest therein and enough to benefit humanity in various ways.

NEW AIR SQUADRONS FOR EAST

Essential For Defence Of Singapore & Hongkong EXPANSION PLANS READY TO BE PUT INTO EFFECT

Three Major Difficulties Now Removed

THE addition of several new squadrons to the Far East Command of the Royal Air Force will be announced officially in the near future, a London source discloses.

Although the Far East Command is geographically the largest in the Empire its present strength is limited to the four squadrons based on Seletar.

Experts have expressed the view that at least 12 squadrons are urgently needed to provide an adequate aerial defence of Singapore and Hongkong, and to protect British trade routes in the Far East.

Present plans, it is believed, provide for the establishment this year of at least one squadron at each of the following centres:

Tengah (Singapore Island)
Penang.
Nicobar Islands (Bay of Bengal)
Kai Tak (Hongkong)
Pat Heng (Hongkong).

Later, more squadrons will be based at Sembawang (Singapore Island), at various strategic centres in Malaya, and possibly in Borneo and Burma.

IMPORTANCE OF BORNEO

ALTHOUGH this expansion has been under consideration for some time past, and the early establishment of R.A.F. stations at Penang and the Nicobars has already been semi-officially announced, the Air Ministry was unable to expedite its Far East programme to any extent until 1937.

Three main factors were responsible for the delay—(1) The Washington Treaty, under the terms of which any increase of Pacific fortifications, east of Singapore was prohibited.

(2) The lack of suitable landing-grounds, aerodromes, and repair shops in the Far East.

(3) The prior necessity of strengthening the Home Squadrons, preceded by the Mediterranean crisis and the announcement of Germany's vast expansion programme.

All three difficulties have been removed either partially or in whole. The Washington Treaty expired with the end of last year.

Two aerodromes, complete with the latest military equipment, are nearing completion at Hongkong. Landing grounds have been laid down in British North Borneo and Sarawak. The aerodromes at Penang and Kuala Lumpur have been reconstructed so that heavy torpedo-bombers can land and take-off. Aerodrome sites in other parts of Malaya have been secretly surveyed.

The development of fling-boat anchorages and landing grounds in Borneo is being watched with particular interest in view of their strategic command of the sea approaches to Singapore, and the present vulnerability of the Miri oilfields.

HOME DEFENCE

Although about 50 new squadrons are nominally allotted to Home Defence in the official expansion programme, the actual progress of expansion is considerably larger than appears on the surface.

In various squadrons the number of planes comprising the squadrons has been increased by as much as 50 per cent. Many fighting squadrons have been increased to 12 machines, and the average strength of naval air squadrons has been raised from four to six machines.

It is estimated that the number of front line planes in Great Britain will shortly be raised to 1,650, while the number of naval planes will be doubled and brought up to 440.

SELETAR STRENGTH

To what degree the Overseas commands are benefiting by this new method of organisation is not divulged. The nominal strength of the two torpedo-bomber squadrons at Seletar is nine machines each, and that of the two fling-boat squadrons five machines each.

The personnel at Seletar, totaling more than 700 men, are being retrained to meet the new strength of the squadrons could be expanded in an emergency.

New squadrons which are to be added to the Far East Command are likely to be either of the fling-boat or heavy torpedo-bomber class, or equipped for reconnaissance and operations against a hostile fleet of warships.

ROMANCE
SOON ENDS

£70,000 a year John "Caliban" Barrymore, with his nineteen-year-old bride, Elaine Barrie, whom he made his fourth bride. But the romance is off, and Elaine has now instituted proceedings for divorce.

WITH THE HEAD-HUNTERS IN FORMOSA IT IS FATAL TO RUN Fleeing Enemy Followed By Poisoned Dart

WHAT is the correct procedure to be adopted when one is making a leisurely walking tour in the mountains of Formosa, and happens to come across a head-hunter coming in the opposite direction, and seemingly all set for lopping off the first head which comes into view?

A way out of this awkward predicament was suggested by Professor Clarence Griffin when he lectured on the Aborigines of Formosa before members of the Royal Asiatic Society.

Professor Griffin said that in a situation like this it would be fatal to run. The head-hunter would then fetch out his blow-pipe and send after his fleeing enemy a poisonous dart. It would be equally foolish to move forward.

The only thing to be done was to stoop and pick a bluebell off the ground, and then to move towards the head-hunter in a friendly manner. He would then be pacified, as this served as a gesture of friendship.

Formosa, said Professor Griffin, in addition to a population of 5,000,000 descendants from the Chinese, had 150,000 aborigines who inhabit the mountains. The western part of the island descended to paddy-fields, and the mountains were situated on the east coast.

Eight distinct dying nations had chosen the island of Formosa as their last resting place, and their remnants were still to be found among the aborigines of the mountains.

Head-hunting among these tribes had now been practically stopped by Japanese law, but it was a custom that was very hard to wipe out altogether, as it had been in practice for centuries.

Four of the "nations" represented among the aborigines still practised the custom. At the tender age of 17, youths from these tribes were compelled to go forth and bring back the head of an enemy, unless they wished to be branded as cowards.

On his return from such an expedition, the youth was welcomed home by his whole tribe, and if the expedition had been successful he was branded with two marks under the chin to show that he was a man.

PUT TO DEATH

If, however, he was so cowardly as to bring back the head of a woman, he himself was put to death by the members of his tribe.

In spite of this somewhat barbarous custom, these aborigines were a very fine people, possessing a high code of morals. They were never known to steal.

Japan, in the opinion of Professor Griffin, would stand more chance of wiping out the practice of head-hunting if she were to go about it in a more peaceable manner.

HEROIN TRAFFIC

HEAVY SENTENCES AT SESSIONS

Described by counsel as a man of funny ideas, Wong Ngau, aged 62, unemployed, was charged before the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, at the Criminal Sessions this morning with unlawful possession of 270 ounces of pink paste containing heroin and 6,014 heroin pills at 34 Upper Lascar Row on December 19.

Mr. M. J. Abbott prosecuted, and the following jury was empanelled: Messrs. L. H. Dopsen (foreman), Cheng Sau-tung, Chau Hui-leung, Chen Kin-cho, Ho Lu-nam, Lu Hung-wait and L. C. An Lima.

Asked if he had any objection to the jury, accused repeatedly said the pills were not his.

"It's not the pills, it's the jury," said His Lordship amidst laughter. Mr. Abbott said that on December 19 about 8.30 a.m., Senior Revenue Officer A. W. Grimmit, together with Mr. H. A. Taylor, Assistant Superintendent of the Imports and Exports Department, and a party went to the third floor of 34 Upper Lascar Row. They knocked for admittance, and on receiving no reply, Mr. Grimmit put his hand round the edge of the door to allow one of his men to squeeze in. On the premises were accused, an elderly woman, Lo Ng who had already pleaded guilty to the charge, and another woman not concerned with the case.

The floor was used as a heroin pill factory, and was actually in full blast at the time of the raid. The hands of accused were examined and found to be heavily coated with pink paste. The articles mentioned in the charge were found on the premises, as well as a red piece of paper which contained a formula for the manufacture of the pills.

When formally charged, accused said the woman Lo Ng introduced him to work there, and denied that he knew the pills were dangerous drug.

"FUNNY IDEAS"

At the Police Court, he made a lengthy statement saying that he touched the paste just out of curiosity. On being cross-examined, he stated the house belonged to a friend of his, and added that the reason why he took off his clothing, although it was a cold day, was because it was his habit of doing so when visiting a friend. At the end of his evidence, he admitted he was lying.

"Apparently he is a man of funny ideas," commented Mr. Abbott. After Mr. Grimmit had given evidence of the raid, Mr. Taylor testified that the pink paste found on accused's hands contained caffeine, an ingredient of heroin pills.

From the dock, accused denied that the pills were his. He said he went to the premises to pay a visit to his friend.

The jury found him guilty, and passing sentence of three and a half years' hard labour, His Lordship said he had so often expressed his determination to stop this type of offence that accused must have come to know of it.

Lo Ng, 48, woman, who had pleaded guilty to the charge, received the same punishment.

It is announced that Miss Catherine Beatrice Pegg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Pegg, will marry Mr. Francis Joseph Soden at St. Joseph's Church on Friday, February 5, at 3.30 p.m. Following the ceremony, a reception is to take place at 8, The Peak.

LAST NIGHT'S REMARKABLE BADMINTON MATCH

St. Andrew's, Down 4-5, Should Have Won Easily

GAMES LITERALLY THROWN AWAY University Players Make Brilliant Recoveries

(By "Veritas")

Some remarkable badminton was seen at St. Andrew's Church Hall last evening when University "B" upset general predictions by beating St. Andrew's "A" five games to four.

Twice the Saints had the points in their pockets and they should have won by at least 6-3. But outstanding recoveries were made in two games by K. L. Hui and P. F. Wong, while in the deciding encounter, S. K. Lim and A. K. Phang beat S. A. Gray and F. A. Broadbridge after the home pair had secured a lead at 18-17.

The most extraordinary contest of the evening was that between Hui and Yang and Gray and Broadbridge. The latter playing fast and accurate badminton led 12-6, then 20-10, but from that stage failed to score another point. Four times they had both hands in on service, but could not obtain the one point required for the game, and after the University pair had levelled up to "set" the game, they secured the three points off the reel. In other words they scored 13 aces in succession.

The same players repeated the performance against Wong and Madar. The St. Andrew's couple led 10-10, but were pulled back and made to "set" the game. They managed to add two more aces after the visitors had reached game point, but that was the finish.

With Fitcher and Kew winning all three games, the teams were level at four-all when the last match was put into court. Gray and Broadbridge started shakily against Lim and Phang and were trailing 11-17 at one stage. Then they recovered briskly and actually took the lead 18-17. But having lost the service they could not sustain the pressure and the Varsity pair went to their points on the second hand.

The University players gave a splendid show of fighting badminton but St. Andrew's should never have lost. This is the third match this season St. Andrew's have lost against the run of play, though in each case they had themselves to blame.

Owing to several of their players suffering injuries from week-end hockey, Recreio "B" could not turn out a team against University "A" and conceded the points.

A. J. Bennett and David Kwok (St. John's) beat Jago and Yang Chen (Recreation Club) failed to make the slightest impression on Recreio "A" and were routed by eight games to one.

Lim and Kwok obtained the Recreation Club's consolation point, beating the home team's third pair. But throughout the Portuguese were right on top and won at will.

Only one second division match was played, St. John's visiting Sailors and Soldiers Home and winning all nine sets.

The detailed scores and revised league tables are appended.

S. A. Gray and F. A. Broadbridge (St. Andrew's) lost to Yang and Tye 10-21; lost to Hui and Wong 20-23; lost to Lim and Phang 18-21.

F. V. Wong and T. A. Madar (St. Andrew's) lost to Yang and Tye 14-21; lost to Hui and Wong 21-24; beat Lim and Phang 21-15.

RECREIO "A" v. C.R.C.

At King's Park last night, Recreio "A" beat the Chinese Recreation Club by 8 games to 1 in the "A" Division.

WHY REYNOLDSTOWN WILL NOT RUN IN THE GRAND NATIONAL

London, Jan. 4. Major Furlong, the owner of Reynoldstown, is not entering him for the Grand National this year. His reasons are, firstly, that there is such a thing as taking the pitcher to the well too often; and secondly, that the altered conditions are unfair and the best horses may easily be beaten by selling players in receipt of a lot of weight.

After the decision Reynoldstown won the Mappercley chase at Leicester—his first race since last year's Grand National.—Reuter.

WASEDA WERE GALLANT LOSERS AND GREAT SPORTSMEN

THEIR RECORD OF HOCKEY TOUR

(By "The Pilgrim")

The Waseda University hockey team may not have blazed a trail of glorious victories during their stay in Hongkong, but the visit, which comes to an end to-night, has been instructive, and has indicated that hockey among the Japanese students is on the upward grade.

Their final appearance in Hongkong will be at a banquet and dinner this evening at the Peninsula Hotel. This will start at eight o'clock and immediately afterwards the players will go on board ready to depart early on Wednesday morning.

Though the team has not been so successful as anticipated, the Japanese have given a good account of themselves in most matches. Only against the Navy to whom they lost 7-1 did they fall very much below Colony standard. And this was not so much due to the Navy's normal superiority as to the fact that the Japanese were tired after their two previous strenuous games.

They have taken all their kickings with a grin, and they have demonstrated sportsmanship in the truest sense of that word. Special mention is deserving of their splendid display against the Civilians on Sunday following an intensive programme during the previous seven days, and of their worthy performance against Macao yesterday.

Their captain, T. Yamada, told me they have all thoroughly enjoyed their stay in Hongkong and are looking forward to a return visit, the date for which is at the present somewhat indefinite.

Here is the complete record of their matches played in the South.

Combined Services	Waseda
Colony	3 Waseda 2
Navy	7 Waseda 1
Army	4 Waseda 1
Armed Forces	3 Waseda 1
University	0 Waseda 2
Civilians	5 Waseda 1
Macao	5 Waseda 2
Total—played 8, lost 7, won 1.

Goalkeepers—Masamaru 3, Kawal 3, Kojima 2, Sugawara 2, Shimoda 3. The Hongkong Hockey Association hopes that all players who took part in the matches against Waseda will endeavour to attend the dinner this evening, as it will be their only chance of bidding farewell and bon voyage to the Japanese players.

Shanghai Women's Hockey Interport Difficulties

CAN HONGKONG HELP? A SUGGESTION

THERE appears to be a considerable amount of dithering existent in the realm of Shanghai hockey. The question is whether the northerners can send a women's hockey Interport team to Hongkong next month. If it was purely a matter of getting together a team there would be no problem. Money is the factor creating doubts as to whether or not there will be a women's Interport this season. There is, apparently, a number of contributing factors to this position. The Shanghai Ladies Hockey Association, newly constituted and therefore by no means richly endowed with dollars and cents, suffered a big disappointment financially over Hongkong's visit last year. Bad weather kept down the attendances at the various matches while the profit anticipated from the Interport dinner could not be realised as circumstances caused the abandonment of that function. Thus, at the end of the Interport, Shanghai found themselves out of pocket, rather than enjoying the fruits of the event which should have been a satisfactory lining for a comfortable bank balance.

other hand this gesture may be interpreted to justify the claim that money, or no money, Shanghai will send a team.

Can Colony Help?

ONE wonders whether in a problem of this nature, Hongkong could not make some helpful gesture. Could it not, for example, offer ten per cent. of gate receipts from the matches to be played here during Chinese New Year, if it was found that Shanghai cannot realise its $1,000 appeal? I presume there will be admission charges to the Interport and other matches, for this seems to be the only method by which the Hongkong Ladies Hockey Association can recoup any of its outlay on the Colony's visit to Shanghai a year ago. That being so there seems to be no very valid reason why Hongkong, as a gesture of good will, and in an effort to keep alive the highly desirable contests between the two ports, should not offer to share in proportion, the monies received from the Interport series here next month. It would not be a question of making Shanghai's visit here conditional upon such an arrangement, but simply an unsolicited and sporting offer to assist the northerners should they be unable to raise all the funds necessary to make the trip. I don't doubt there are several reasonable objections to such a procedure, and this is merely a suggestion thrown out with the idea that it may help to alleviate a contretemps which threatens the immediate continuation of the women's hockey Interport series between Shanghai and Hongkong.

Opinions Divided

ACCORDING to the Shanghai Times, hockey circles up there have divided into two sharply defined camps. One insists that the Interport will take place next month whether or not money is forthcoming to finance the players' travelling expenses; the other is just as emphatic that unless the appealed-for $1,000 is raised, it will be impossible to send a team down here. I rather think the second alternative is the correct estimation of the Shanghai Ladies Hockey Association's intention. The appeal for $1,000 is still being fervently launched, and it is encouraging to observe that it has met with some response, $166 having, up to Saturday last, been subscribed by various sports bodies. But there will have to be a more concentrated drive for the money if it is to be raised in time. Only three weeks is left between now and the Interport and a much more quickened response to the appeal is therefore necessary. Shanghai are apparently confident that the money will be forthcoming inasmuch that a team has been chosen to make the trip. On the

Vines And Perry

THE telephone call I received yesterday afternoon did not surprise me. I had been more or less waiting for it. I knew that when it did come it would be rather amusing, and the amusement would largely be at my expense. So unlike Celdric Beltrage, who found the telephone so distracting that he vanished to the other end of the world to write a book on Eschatalogy, and other eminent men of letters who have found it necessary to de-subscribe themselves from the telephone service because of its terrifying influence upon their lives, I waited with a sense of keen anticipation for the call, which, when it did come gleefully enquired "And now what are you going to write about Perry and Vines?" As a matter of fact I didn't intend to write anything, because for one thing it is possible to have too much of a good thing, and again there are certain obvious features about the Perry-Vines tennis engagements which scarcely call for comment. The most obvious is that with two such well-matched players alternate victories (Continued on Page 9.)

Waseda's Plucky Display Against Macao

DEFEATED 5-3, BUT IMPRESS

(By Our Own Correspondent)

Macao, Jan. 18. Despite the threatening state of the weather, unusually large crowds of spectators turned out this afternoon to witness the eagerly-awaited hockey match between the Waseda University, captained by T. Yamada, and the Macao Hockey Club, captained by Laertes de Costa. Great was the excitement at the end of the game when the scores stood at five goals to three in favour of Macao.

Play was extremely fast from the outset and exchanges even. The home forwards pressed the attack vigorously and almost scored within the first five minutes.

Taking advantage of a pass, Airosa, right inside, opened the score for Macao from close range. Waseda equalised three minutes later when Shimoda, right wing, netted following a general melee close to their opponents' goal mouth.

As play proceeded, the visitors' defence was seen to advantage, Oshihara at right back being particularly prominent in destroying several intensive raids. However, before the interval, Macao regained the lead when Airosa, registered his second goal after a quick pass by Lammert, left back.

Upon resumption Macao combined tactical distribution with fine individual stickwork, but erratic shooting at crucial moments, plus the opposition's counter manoeuvres, prevented a score during the first fifteen minutes.

Eventually the local team managed to break through, and a third goal was scored by Alex Airosa, centre half. Despite the reverse, Waseda remained undismayed, and a neat bout of passing by the forwards was rewarded with a goal by Shimoda five minutes later.

Macao's position was further consolidated shortly after when another two goals were scored in quick succession by P. Angelo centre forward, and A. Angelo, left wing.

Before the close of play, a brilliant goal was registered by Kawai, right inside, for the Waseda. It was directed from a sharp angle and the smashing shot landed high into the net.

For Waseda, Shimoda at centre half was extremely impressive. Oshihara, custodian, did full credit to his side stopping certain goals. Oshihara's destructive play at right back was pretty to watch. Though very speedy, the forwards lacked understanding and missed opportunities.

Macao's play was well worth watching but the team was definitely not at its best. On the whole the forwards were more aggressive than (Continued on Page 9.)

What sort of letter do you write?

SMITH writes to ask for a job: "I hope you will not think me presumptuous in addressing you directly, and I can assure you that, knowing how busy you must be, I would not have troubled you if I had not always regarded you as a man who..."

Smith writes a business letter: "Your favour of even date to hand..."

Smith writes to the papers: "My attention has been drawn to your issue of... Little as I like seeing my name in print, I am strongly impelled to..."

Cut it, Smith! Wordiness is one of the worst faults of amateur (and some professional) writers. These unnecessary preliminaries to what has to be said are like an unpractised public speaker's self-conscious throat-clearings; they remind one of the inadequate conversationalists who have to pad their sentences with "Well - I - mean - to say it is sort-of, isn't it?"

If you mean to say a thing, say it without saying that you mean to.

Letters are, for most of the Smiths, the principal form of written expression. The telephone has nearly destroyed letter-writing as an art, but there is no reason why Smith shouldn't still keep a diary; and every Smith is held to have at least one book inside him.

To write well it is not necessary to be well-read. Good prose consists of the best words arranged in the most effective way. You can learn what the "best" words are by learning what kind of word and phrase to avoid. The most effective way of arranging them is a matter of ear as much as eye. That too comes by practice, by the elimination of obvious awkwardness.

But it does help enormously to have running at the back of your mind some former writer's rhythm which you and all other sensible readers of English know is good. This is a good rhythm:

"Or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden clasp be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern."

THIS doesn't mean that we are to imitate such a passage slavishly. No good just copying its rhythm ("To-morrow the biggest film release," is roughly the same as the opening words). But we can learn from it how effective one-syllable words can be; also that the same word should be repeated if the same word is meant.

For some reason, second-rate writers think it not genteel to repeat a word which has just been used for the second and third "broken" in the passage from Ecclesiastes a modern translator would probably have substituted "shattered" and "smashed to bits."

Another, lesser, advantage of having read some "standard" writers is that you are enabled to ponder to a harmless snobbery; you can flatter your readers by assuming that they will recognise an allusion or quotation.

In a review this week a critic writes that an autobiography "is, in fact, a challenge to the iniquity of oblivion."

Highly flattering is the omission of the quotation-marks which might be round the last three words. We

Smith knows what he is writing about are expected to know that they are a quotation from Sir Thomas Browne's "Hydriophila."

It is impossible to mention Browne, renowned seventeenth century stylist, without quoting from him. Read this one sentence aloud, in a ringing tone: "Pyramids, obelisks, were but the irregularities of vain-glory, and wild enormities of ancient magnanimity."

And here is one of his purplest passages (containing, despite his Latin bias, some clanging monosyllables):

"Now since these dead bones have already outlasted the living ones of Methuselah, and in a yard under ground, all the strong and spacious buildings above it; and quietly rested under the drums and trampings of three conquests: what prince can promise such durability unto his relics."

But to subsist in bones, and be but pyramidally extant, is a jallacy in duration."

But to subsist on Browne, and take him for a model, would be a dangerous experiment for a tyro. Far better try to write like this:—

"I had slept well in the night, and was now no more sea-sick but very cheerful, looking with wonder upon the sea that was so rough and terrible the day before."

That's straightforward reporting by Defoe.

DEFOE often wrote colloquially. It is a good thing to write colloquially sometimes; but, just as the most natural-sounding stage dialogue is really not a gramophone record of any everyday conversation but an artful distillation of it, the best colloquial writing only seems to be just like the writer talking.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: An American boy, Cedric Errol, learns suddenly that he is to succeed to the title of the Earl of Dorncourt. He goes to England to live with his gruff old grandfather, the present Earl who separates the child from his mother and seeks to bring him up in a manner befitting his future station. Cedric, or "Little Lord Fauntleroy," however, proves a staunch young Democrat and begins to win over the old man.

CHAPTER FOUR: As the friendship between Cedric and his grandfather grows stronger

Better, first, to try simple narrative, without slang, with as few "colourful" adjectives as possible, even if it seems dull.

The colour should be implied, should grow on the reader without his being aware of the process of growth.

Don't write: "We stopped at such a beautiful, quaint old inn." It's better to write something like "We stopped at an inn. John hit his head on the oak beams. The windows were so small and shaded by ivy that we could hardly see to read."

Give all relevant material details objectively. It takes a more practised writer and profound thinker than most of us Smith to get away with the mere effect on us of what we see.

There is far more negative than positive advice to be given to Smith as he sits down to write. (It had better be writing, too, unless he is an exceptionally clear and quick thinker; those who type or dictate are far more likely to go rambling on, to repeat themselves, to get lost in the middle of long sentences and not bother to go back and start again.)

The chief positive suggestion is that he should say what he has to say as plainly and concisely as possible in the best English he knows; and that "to cudgel one's brains" is not necessarily better English because Shakespeare used that phrase than "to think hard."

THIS brings us to the amateur writer's most common error in trying to write like the pros he instinctively dresses up his sentences in Sunday best—which means bringing out of the attic such creaking old corsets as "forsooth," "inbush," (meaning drunk) tell it not in Gath, durance oile, acid test, exploring every avenue.

The last two of these are "dead metaphors." When some one thought of politicians in conference as avenue explorers, he created a vivid picture. The phrase is appealingly dreary now.

Metaphors are all right to use if they are dead enough. Every English sentence is packed with them, whether one realises it or not (that word "packed" was a metaphor, originally implied "filled as full as a bundle of goods wrapped up together," is now dead long enough not to matter).

Or they are all right if they are striking and original, or not too tarnished by use ("tarnished" is a metaphor that's getting a bit tarnished). Creaking-corselet metaphors three paragraphs back seems alive enough to pass muster (that's an unpleasantly moribund metaphor).

Few of us had better dare to try to bring dead metaphors to life (though M. Polrot does, by mixing and misapplying them).

Few of us are lucky enough actually to be given horses which we mustn't look in the mouth.

JUST as stifling as dead metaphors to any sense of freshness or freedom in a piece of writing are clichés.

A cliché is a stale phrase which may once like a dead metaphor, have been vivid or impressive. Clichés occur chiefly in the works of lazy or hurried writers (for the latter reason sometimes, regrettably, in newspapers).

They also occur often when a timid or shallow writer reaches a subject—such as death—on which he feels it is safer to make no rash experiments. Hence such solemn clichés as all that was mortal of the irony of fate, making the supreme sacrifice.

There is a curious little class of clichés which occur in conversation, and are justifiable there because they intensify a point, but shouldn't be used in writing anything serious.

Two of them have been printed in newspapers in the last week: Mrs. Simpson gave no interviews to kind; some one else finds that business has not suffered "in any shape or form."

Sort or kind? Shape or form?

IN the Book of Common Prayer pairs of words meaning the same thing are often bracketed together: "We have erred and strayed from Thy ways like lost sheep."

In most of these cases one of the two words is of Latin origin, the other Saxon; it is said that the redundant words were deliberately inserted for historical reasons, or may be simply to reproduce so far as possible the liquid cadences of the original Latin service-books.

In any case, the Prayer-book, superb though its prose-rhythms are, should be used sparingly as a palette rather than as a model for copying.

INDEPENDENT of models and influences though Smith should be, he had better equip himself with just one book—perhaps "A Treasury of English Prose" or "Words and Idioms," by one of the most eminent of his family, Logan Pearsall Smith; or, for more practical purposes, H. W. Fowler's classic, humorous, common-sense "Dictionary of Modern English Usage."

If he knows what he's writing about, Fowler will help him through any difficulties he may have with subjunctives, possessives and other details which anybody who ever "did" the usual smattering of grammar at school has forgotten.

And if, when he has done dipping into Fowler, he hasn't been frightened off writing altogether, let him go to it.

Dick accepts gleefully. Meanwhile in England Cedric is going on to new triumphs—over triumphs. Sir Harry and Lady Lorrilaine are invited to Dorncourt. Lady Constantia Lorrilaine, the Earl's sister, has not seen her brother for more than thirty years. News has reached the Lorrilaines of the miraculous changes observed in the Earl of Dorncourt since the arrival of his grandson and they are eager to see for themselves just what has happened to the testy old fellow.

At a grand dinner given by Dorncourt—in reality to provide an occasion for showing off Fauntleroy—his boundless pride in the youngster and his evident love for him cause endless talk. Lady Constantia falls immediately in love with Cedric, who reminds her so much of his father. The Earl confesses to his sister that he is "a fine little fellow."

"There's a risk," he says, "of my becoming rather an old fool about him."

"By the way—the mother," says his sister. "What does she think of you?"

"I don't know," comes the sharp answer. "I haven't asked her. But I am rather indebted to her for giving some of her own beauty to the boy."

A very lovely young lady, Miss Herbert, is introduced to Cedric and makes a great fuss over him. An elderly nobleman observes to a friend of his:

Try this

HERE is a test which can be done as a parlour game:—

Ask somebody to read over to you slowly a list of any twenty disconnected words. By following the instructions below you will find that if any member of the party asks you for any one of them (e.g., "Tell me number nine") you'll be able to give it.

Begin by making and memorising a list similar to this:—

One	Oil	Six	Stick
Two	Tooth	Seven	Severn
Three	Tree	Eight	Egg
Four	Fort	Nine	Novel
Five	File	Ten	Tent

When the disconnected words are said, connect each of them in a clear mental image with the corresponding word in the list: e.g., if 3 is "lamp," think of lots of lumps in a tree; if 8 is "elephant," think of an elephant laying an egg.

Then when you are asked to give 8 you'll get the following mental process. Eight equals egg equals elephant laying egg equals elephant.

The lessons learned from this game are: (1) Though isolated facts or words are not remembered memorising is easy when the new facts fit into an already known sequence or arrangement (idea of association); (2) Learning complicated things is not nearly as difficult as it seems to those who don't know the laws of learning.

Don't Believe It!

—Says the Doctor

SUPERSTITIONS die hard. Seven in these days. Nearly two hundred concerning health and hygiene are explained and corrected by Dr. August A. Thomen, distinguished lecturer in medicine at New York University. A selection of the most interesting is appearing on the Home Page. To-day the doctor explodes the fallacy.

That the hair can turn grey, quite suddenly, from fear or fright.

Although numerous stories are told of the sudden greying of hair from fright, none has ever been scientifically authenticated. Most physicians who have made a special study of the hair and skin doubt the possibility of such a happening.

Our knowledge concerning the structure of the hair and scalp and of the way the hair grows does not lend itself to any satisfactory explanation of the alleged greying "in a night."

In many instances, premature blanching is hereditary, occurring in several members of the same family as early as the twentieth year.

I have had occasion to study several such families, in one of which premature greyness occurred during at least five generations. I was impressed with the fact that frequently the general appearance of greyness evolves quite rapidly.

If one individual in such a family happened to experience a fright at the time this process was about to begin, the above faulty conclusion might readily be drawn.

It is quite probable that the nutrition of the scalp could be influenced by adverse bodily and mental states, so that greying of the hair, while not sudden, may be fairly rapid. Marie Antoinette and Mary Queen of Scots became grey shortly before they were executed.

sham arrives. He is quite evidently excited and tells the Earl when he draws him to one side:

"I was detained by extraordinary news."

"News? What news?" Dorncourt demands.

"Later, my lord, later."

After the gay dinner and the music, Cedric falls asleep. Havisham and Dorncourt are in the library when the guests have departed.

"I have bad news, my lord," says Havisham. "The worst of news. I'm sorry to have to be the bearer of it."

He thereupon informs the Earl that a new claimant has arisen to the title of Lord Fauntleroy, an American woman of evidently ill breeding who claims to have been the wife of the Earl's son. This is indeed a bombshell. Dorncourt, obviously shaken, bends over little Cedric asleep on the sofa.

"And I—object to his mother," he says. "I suppose this is retribution."

Thoroughly aroused, determined to protect the boy he loves, he tells Havisham the other must be an impostor. The solicitor reminds the Earl of the law, which decrees that the progeny of the elder son must succeed to the title. Dorncourt cannot go counter to the law no matter how his preferences may lie.

When the solicitor goes, Dorncourt summons a footman, points to the sleeping Cedric, and orders: "Take Lord Fauntleroy to his room."

The Widow's Choice

1. What is the correct business way to address a married woman—Mary Jones, wife of John Jones?

2. What is the correct business way to address Mary Jones, widow of John Jones?

There have been many differences of opinion on these questions among an office staff of forty men and women, and we should like to know what your own opinion is that she is Mrs. John Jones while married, and Mrs. Mary Jones when she becomes a widow.

In both questions the name is one of choice. A woman who has married, unmarried, or a widow, may call herself whatever she likes. It is customary for her to take her husband's name on marriage, and she may retain it during widowhood if she so wishes.

Stone Walls DO A Prison Make: The New Jail At Stanley

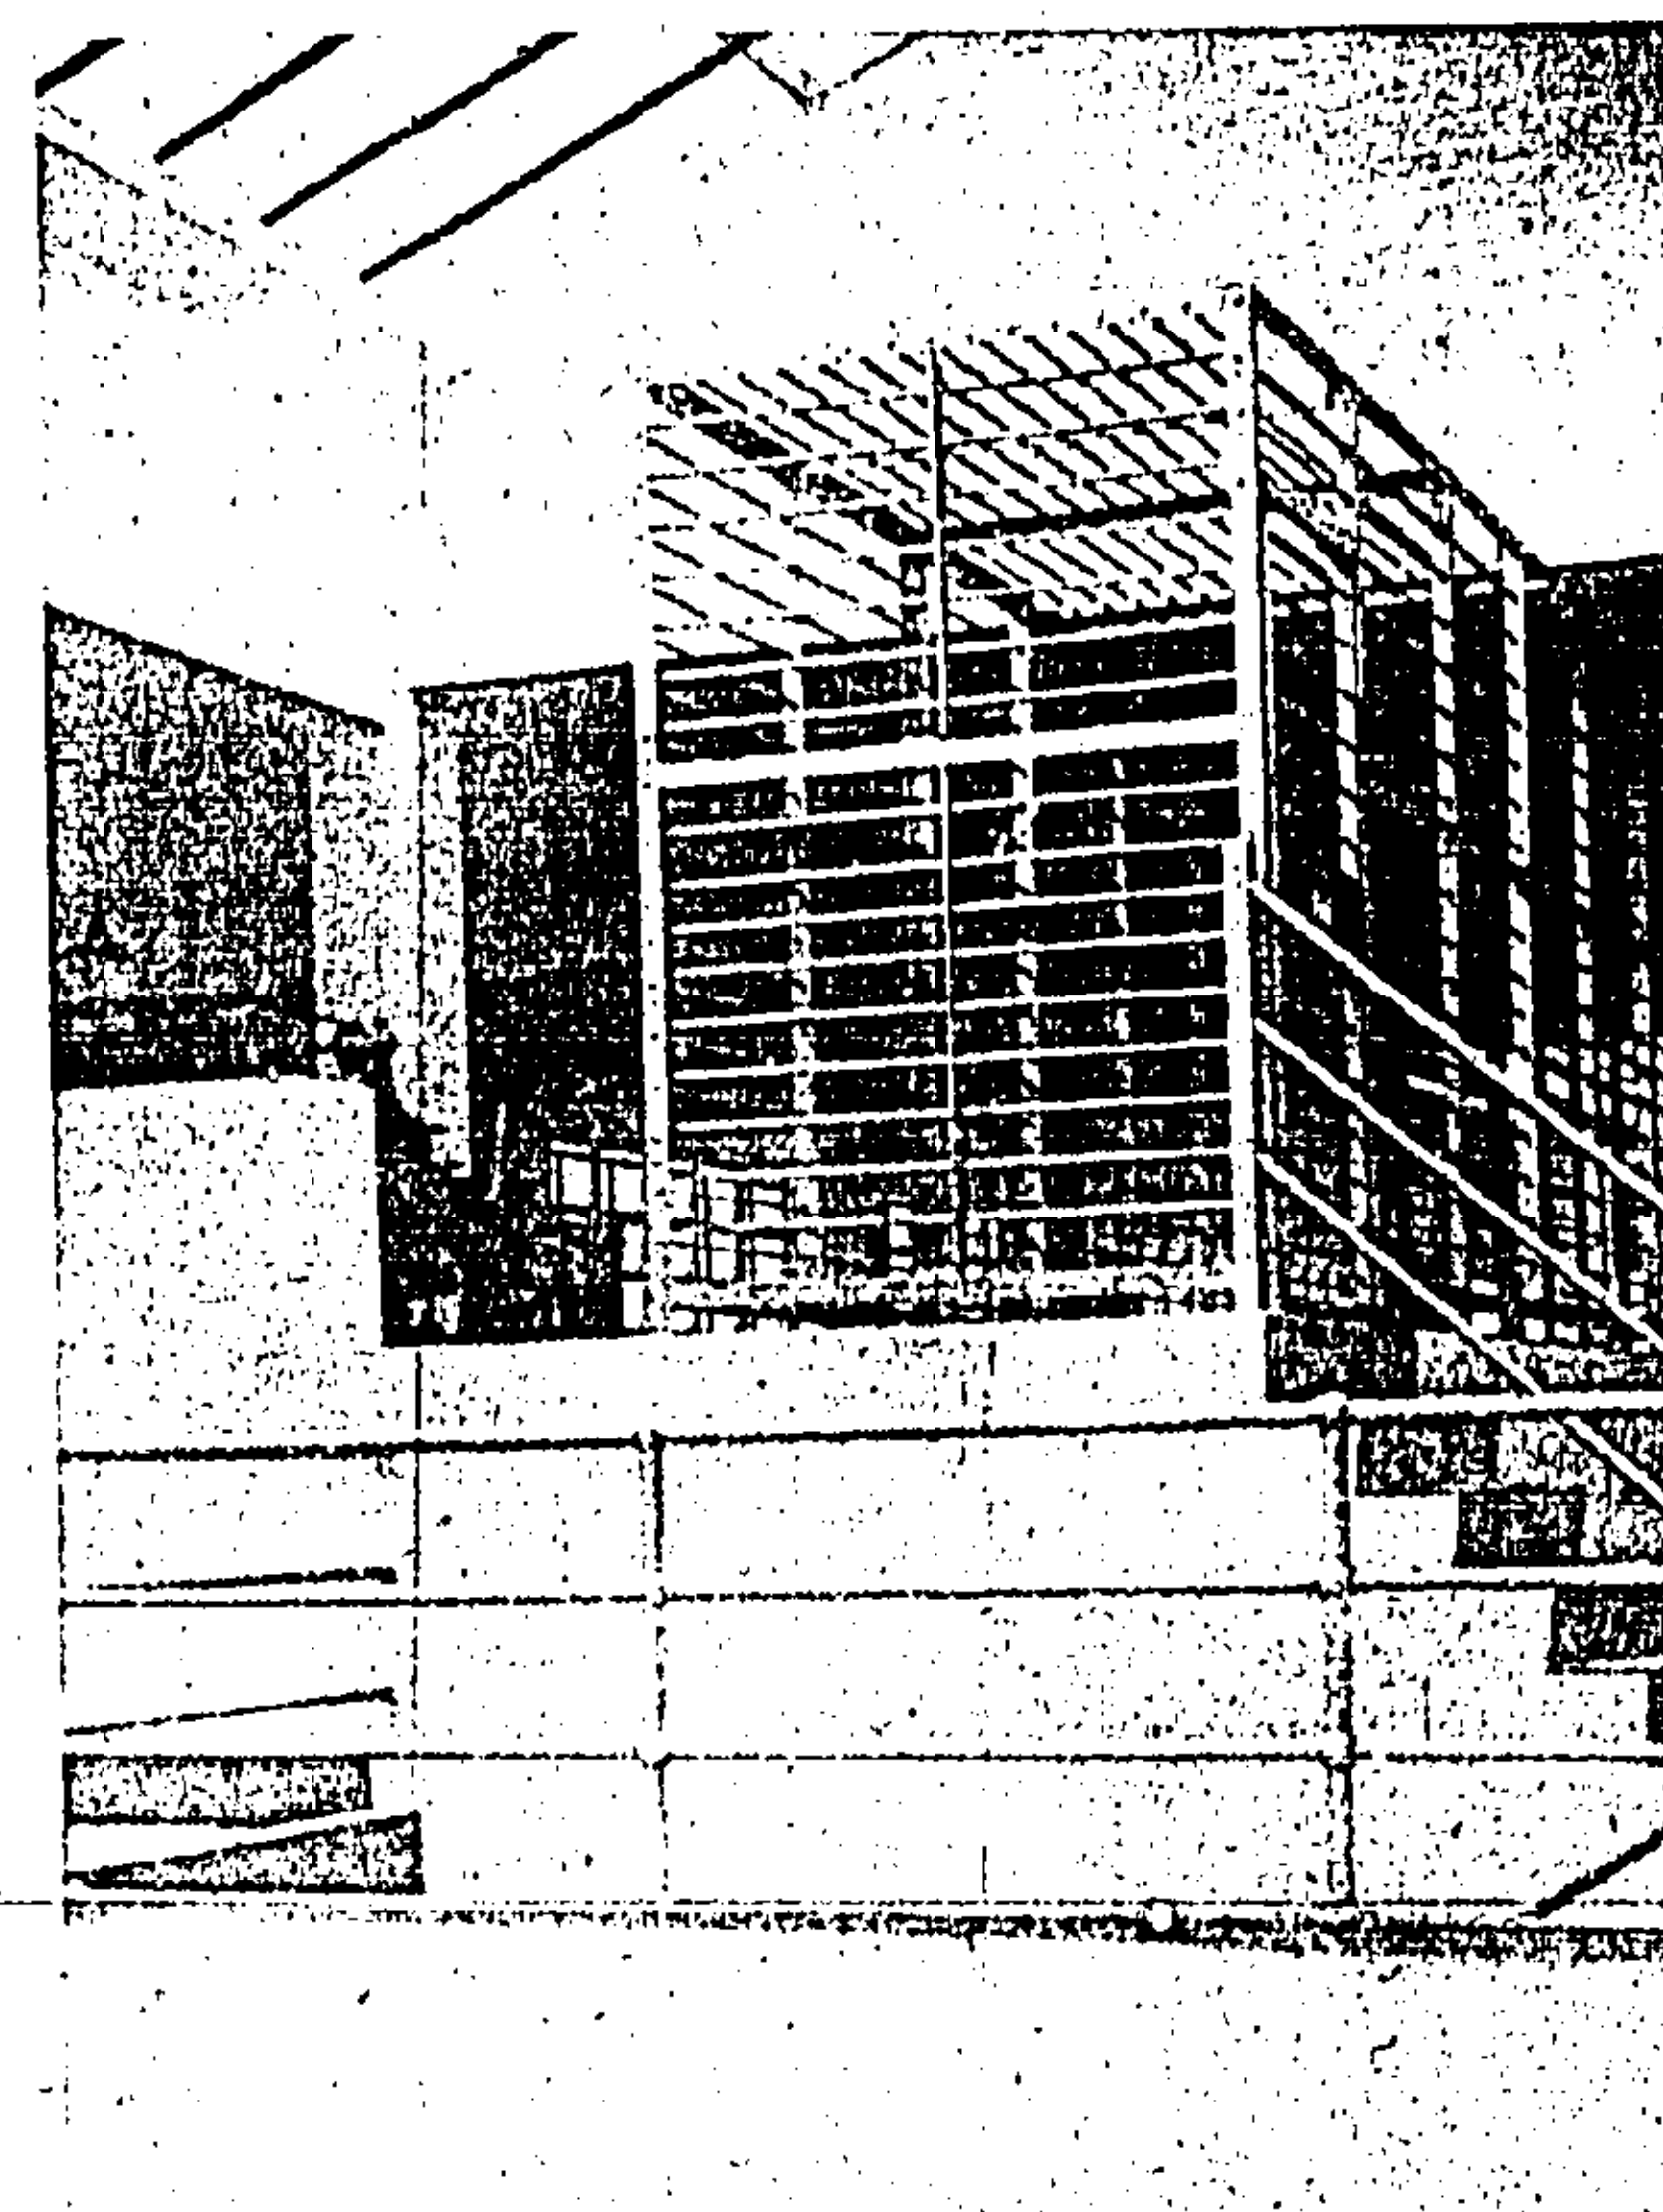

A general view of the new prison at Stanley. The six squat buildings in the right back-ground are the cells, providing accommodation for over 2,000 prisoners. Workshops are in the centre foreground.

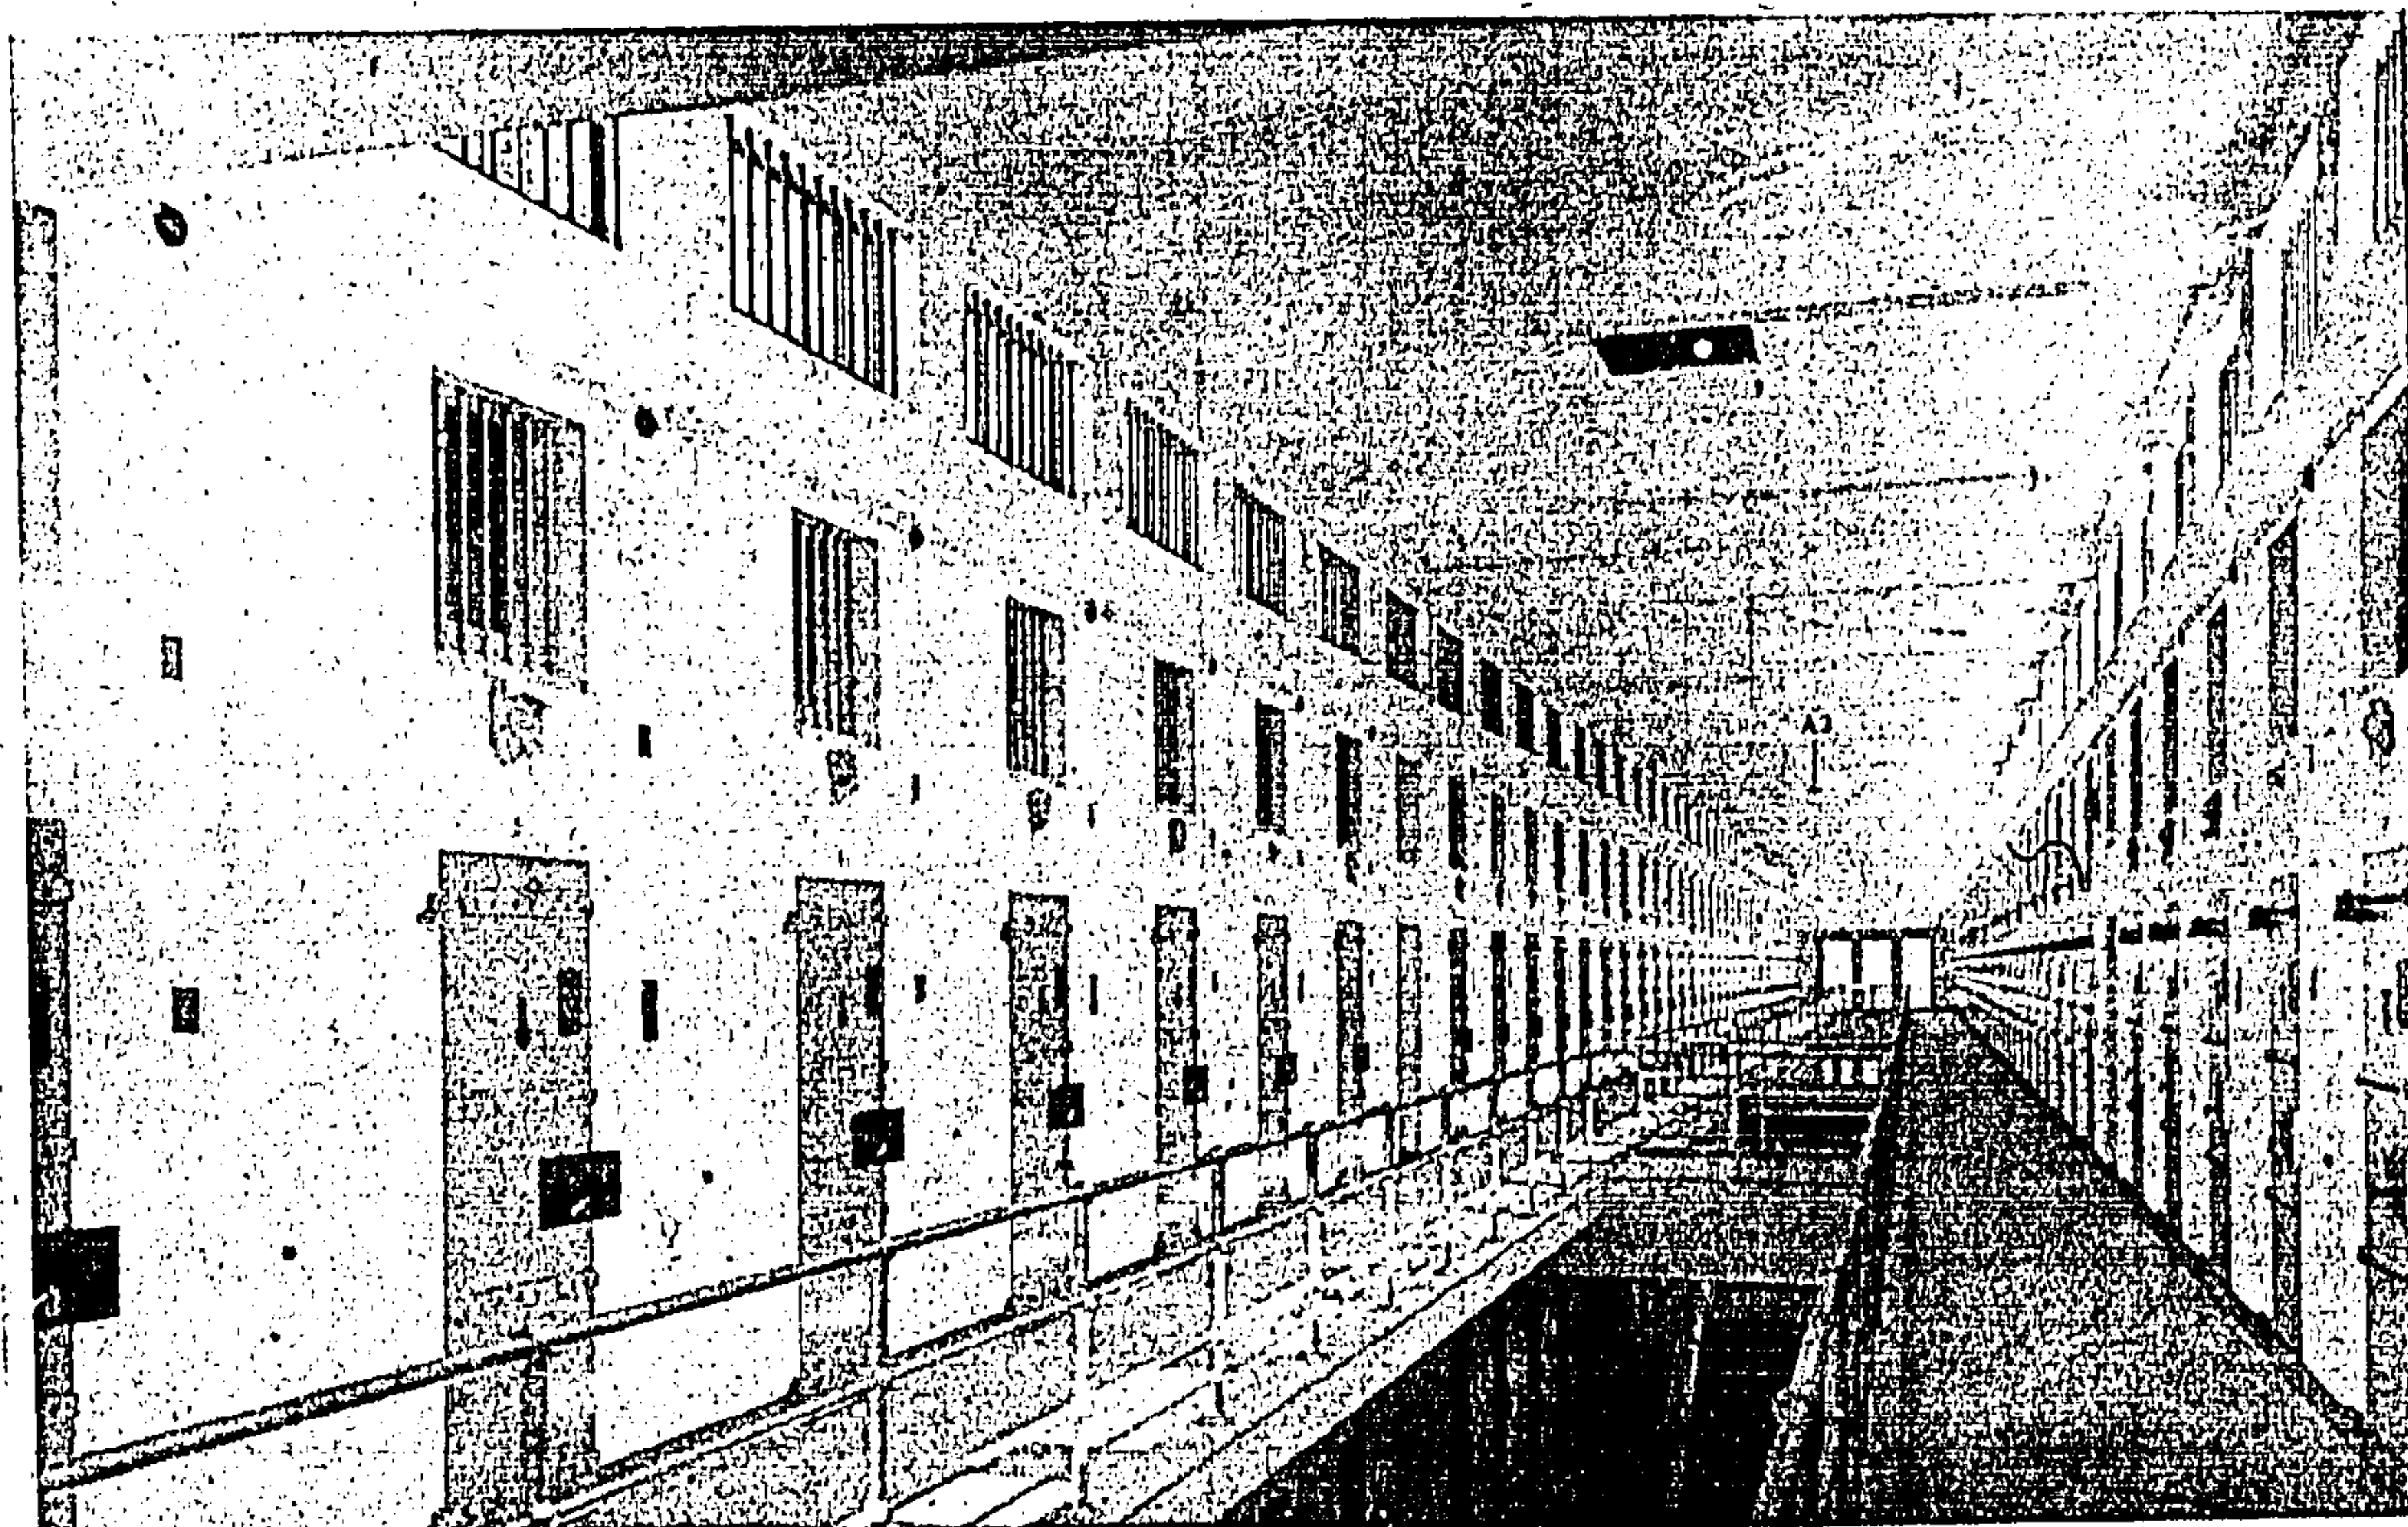

Once locked in their cells, prisoners are entirely cut off from the outside. A tiny peep-hole in the door is the only means of communication.

BELOW. The six cell-houses, wherein the prisoners are housed. They are absolutely escape-proof.

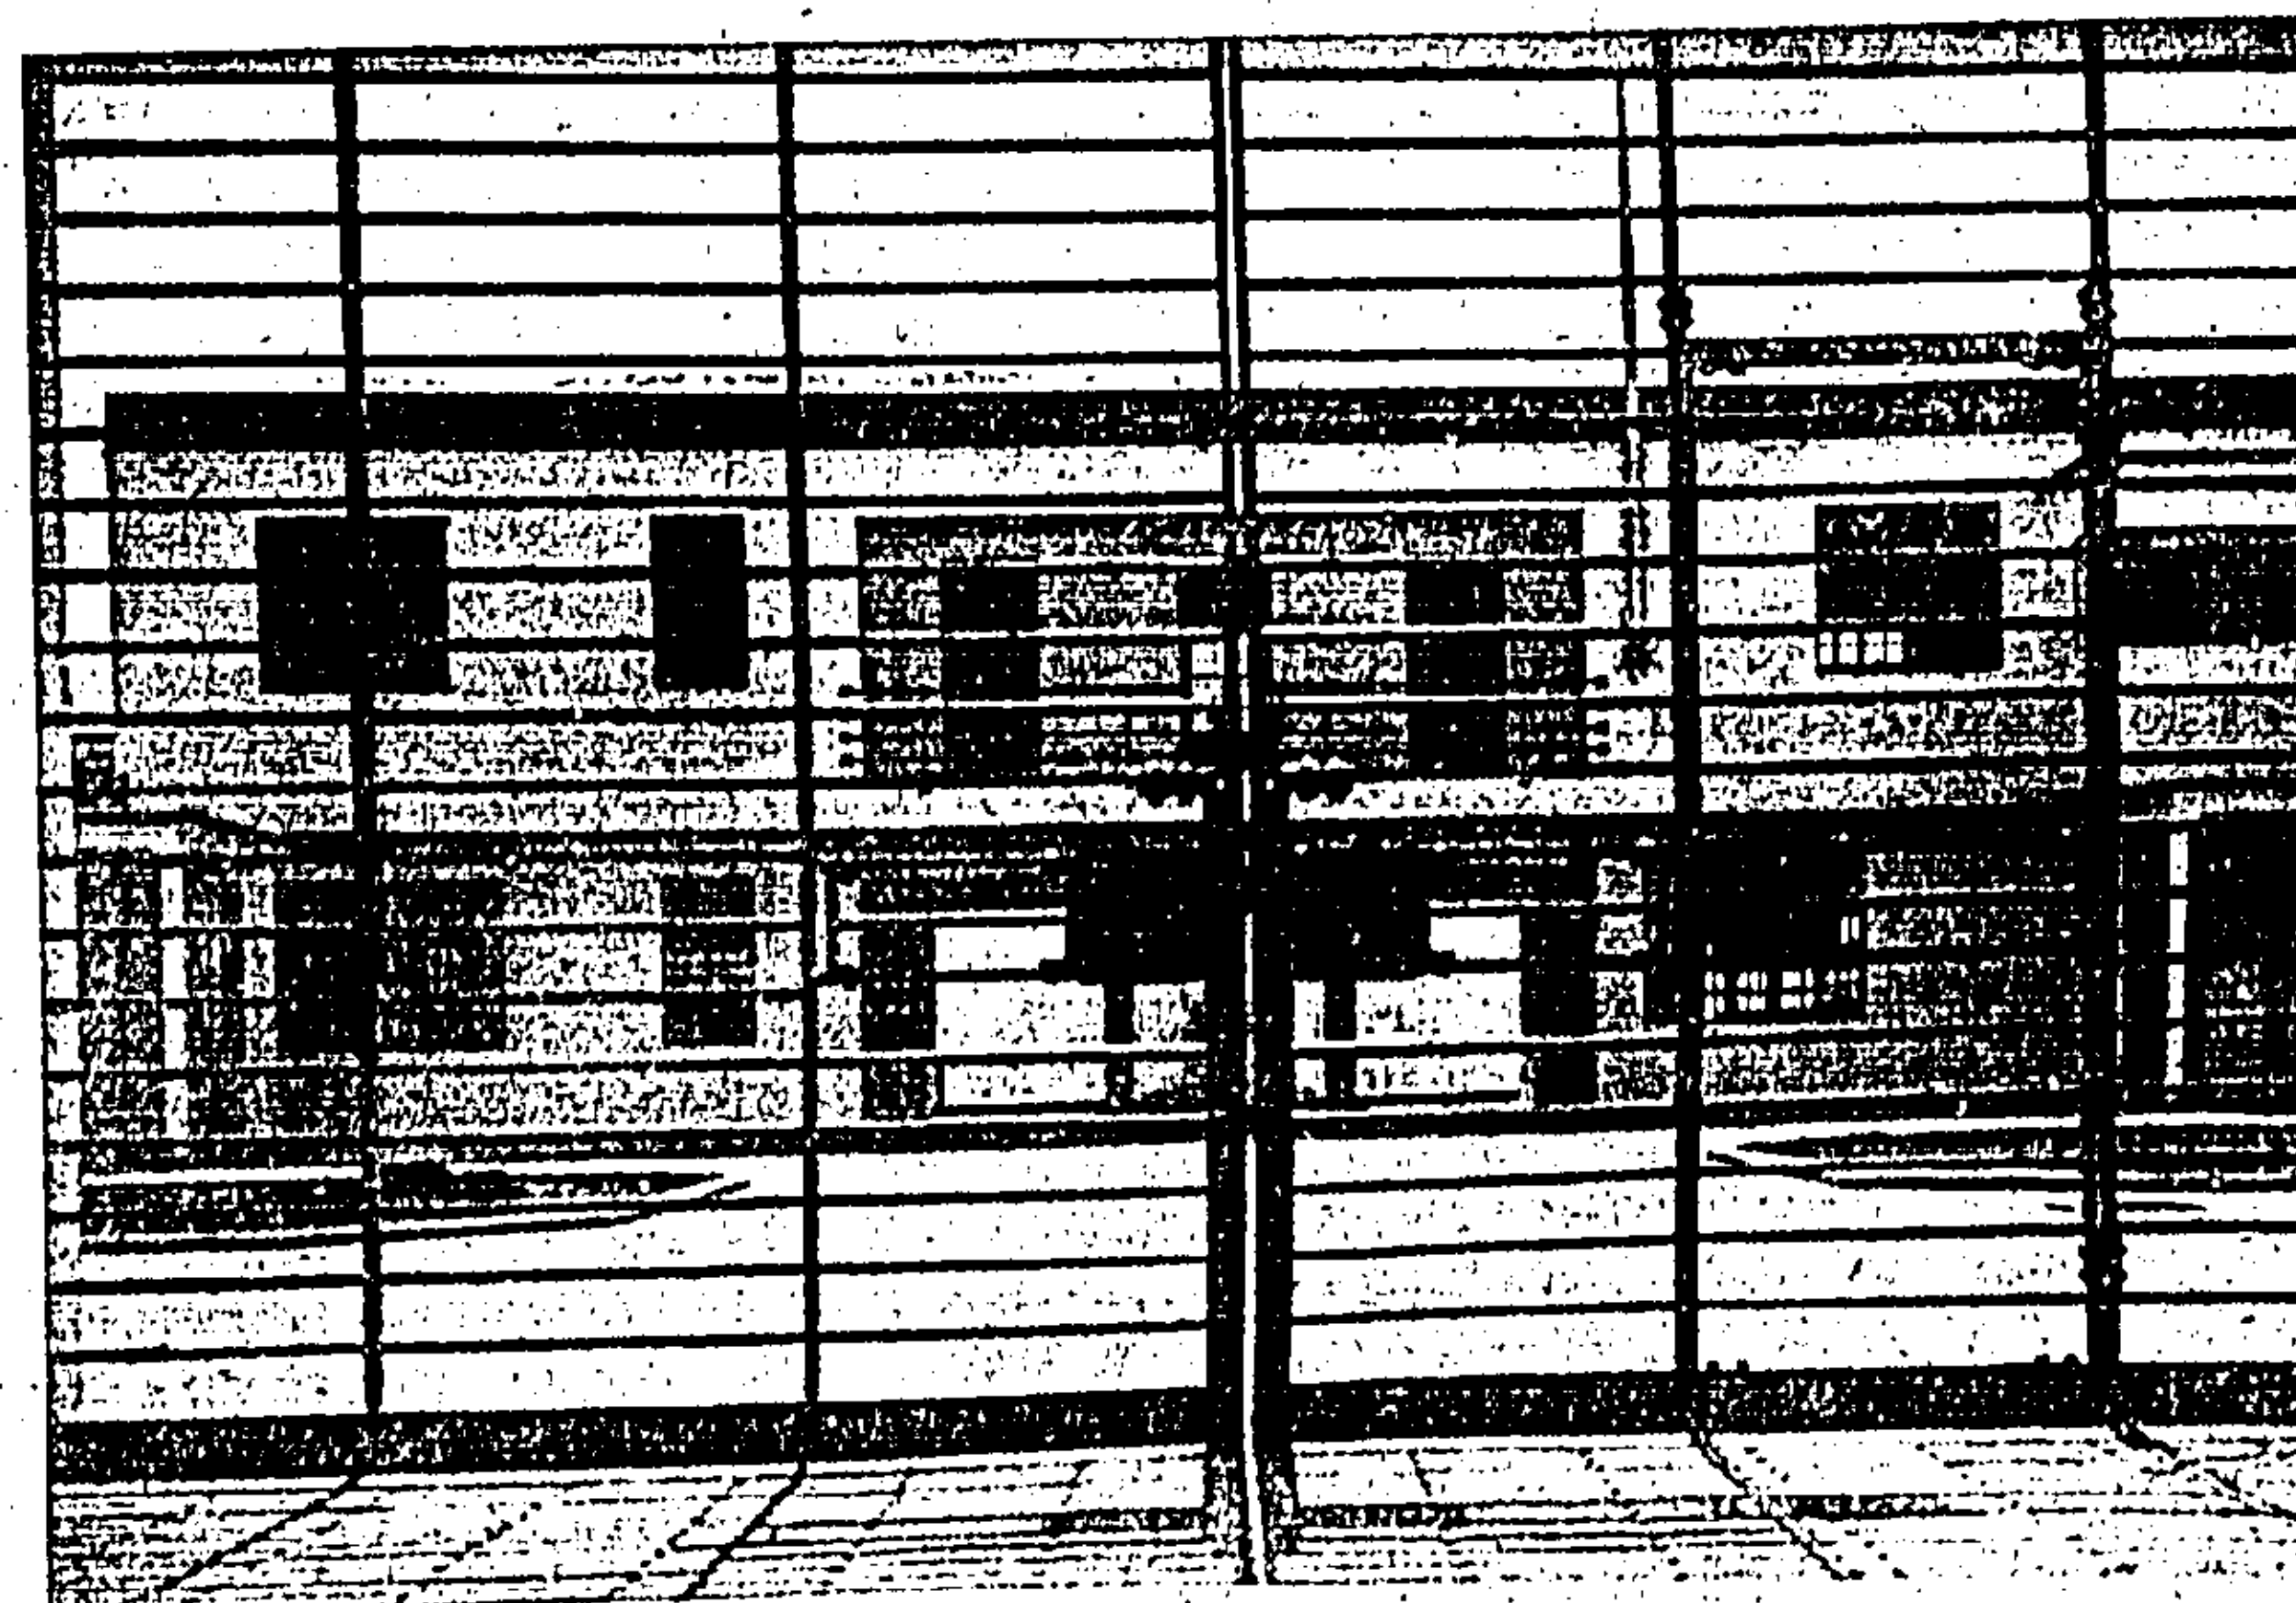

Warders will constantly patrol inside this cage, one of many in the prison's workshops.

FORTY CONVICTS AT LARGE

AFTER PRISON RIOT IN CANADA

HUNTED INTO HILLS

Guelph, Jan. 18. Following a riot at the Ontario Reformatory, 150 prisoners have escaped and caused property damage estimated at $40,000. Practically all of the 700 men at the prison were involved.

Trouble began when a number of men refused to eat their supper, and developed quickly. Some of the prisoners, wielding pieces of smashed iron bedsteads for weapons, forced officials into the administrative building and for a time completely controlled the prison.

In a sort of frenzy they ran about smashing windows, fusing lights and doing whatever destruction they were able. Others, apparently, opened the prison gates and walked out into the surrounding hills. Most of them have been recaptured, but there are still nearly 40 at liberty, being hunted by armed officers over a wide area.

The destruction in the prison mainly affected the chapel, the hospital and the kitchens. Police eventually succeeded in restoring order at the goal.—Reuter.

NO CONSCRIPTION IN PEACE TIME

London, Jan. 18. The War Secretary, Mr. Duff Cooper, speaking on conscription in London to-day, said he hoped shortly to make an important announcement concerning conditions of service in the regular army.

Revolting for the territorial army had improved, but for the regular army it was not so good, and he hoped announcement would have the result of bringing a satisfactory increase.

He denied reports attributing to him the suggestion of conscription in peace time.

"Conscription would not solve our problem. We do not want a vast army for home service but a small, highly trained, specialised army for peace time service overseas."

In the event of war there was little doubt but that conscription would come and come quickly, but not even the most patient citizen of the most authoritarian and totalitarian state would accept conscription for service overseas in peace time.—British Wireless.

JAPAN'S CURB ON EXCHANGE

CAUSES CONCERN IN BUSINESS CIRCLES

Washington, Jan. 18. Members of the Administration here are expressing concern regarding the Japanese exchange control which was announced in Tokyo on January 11.

They say that they are being bombarded with complaints from businessmen to the effect that they are unable to obtain foreign exchange.

Officials also say that they are finding difficulty in ascertaining the exact basis of the exchange control. One official said that the Japanese action is contributing to the uncertainty throughout the world.—United Press.

Thousands To See Roosevelt Inauguration

Washington, Jan. 18.

In depressing and rainy weather the first thousand of the 300,000 who are expected at Wednesday's inauguration ceremonies, arrived here to-day. They are cheerfully paying the swollen prices for accommodation at leading hotels, where there is a minimum charge of $10 a night for a single room.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate 50,000 spectators in the great Capital Plaza, from where they can watch President F. D. Roosevelt take the oath and deliver his second inaugural address. In his speech he is expected to specify his objectives for the next four years. His words will be broadcast to all the world.

The President's reviewing stand, outside the White House, is a replica of Andrew Jackson's home. In front is a glass-enclosed look-out box, from where President Roosevelt will take the salute as thousands of troops, marines and naval ratings march past. Their parade will take three full hours.—Reuter.

HINTS AT REFORMS

Washington, Jan. 18. Following conference at the White House, Senator Sherman, Minn., quoted President Roosevelt as saying to-day that he would soon call for discussion of legislation affecting the Supreme Court of America, which, by its interpretation of the Constitution, so greatly hampered the New Deal programme.

Senator Minton said he was not at liberty at present to discuss the exact nature of the legislation. He suggested that it should provide for at least a two-thirds concurrence of opinion before a judgment could be handed down. He carefully stressed, however, that he had not discussed this suggestion with the President.

Meanwhile, the Supreme Court went into recess, apparently still deadlocked over the controversial social legislation and without taking action on any of the pending major cases.—United Press.

WIDER POWERS

Washington, Jan. 18. The House of Representatives' Coinage Committee has favourably reported on the Administration's Bill extending the President's powers to devalue the dollar and continue the operation of the Stabilisation Fund until June 30, 1939. Action by the House is expected during the current week.—United Press.
